At Second Term Start:

Sheets Sees $4-M Shortfall But No Override

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The City faces a $4 million budget shortfall in FY 93 Mayor James Sheets declared Monday as he was sworn into a second two-year term in the North Quincy High School Auditorium.

After taking the oath of office from City Clerk John Gillis before some 400 state and local officials, department heads, city employees and invited guests, Sheets based his budget projection of an anticipated 10 percent or $2.9 million reduction in local aid and soaring fixed costs such as employee insurance, retirement benefits and workers compensation.

To close the expected $4 million budget gap in the FY 93 budget which begins July 1, Sheets proposed four courses of action:

•30 municipal positions which have become vacant through attrition will remain unfilled or cut, saving approximately $1 million.

•Continue pursuing major tax delinquents. During FY 91, the city recovered $1.4 million in delinquent tax money.

•Continue to search out new revenue sources.

•Recommend major reorganization of department structure.

Sheets, who did not offer any specific proposals regarding new revenue sources and department reorganization, said he would not recommend a Proposition 2 1/2 override. Instead, he called on all city departments and officials to work together to meet the economic challenges of the next fiscal year.

"We must remember that it isn't the revenue shortfall or the budget that will make the difference in 1992. It is our collective commitment to take charge of our own destiny," he said.

During his 33-minute address, the mayor also noted other top priorities for the next two years, including improving the city's school system, revitalizing the city's three business districts and enhancing the physical environment. In addition, he recounted some notable achievements, such as recycling, the budget turnaround at Quincy Hospital and the ever-growing Quincy College.

On education, the mayor said his administration will concentrate on making the city's school system "first rate." He did not offer any specifics, saying only,

Applaud Education Focus; Anxious About FY 93 Budget

Officials React Favorably To Mayor's Address

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A random sample of city officials surveyed by The Quincy Sun responded favorably to Mayor James Sheets' second inaugural address Monday.

City councillors, state representatives and school committeemen surveyed gave the mayor high marks for his education emphasis and fiscal honesty in light of an anticipated $4 million shortfall in FY 93.

Some officials, who agree FY 93 could be the most difficult in recent years, said they are anxiously awaiting the mayor's proposals for government restructuring. Others had their own ideas on how close the shortfall next year.

Officials reacting to the mayor's address:

Council President Charles Phelan: "It was a very uplifting speech in some very dark, dark times for the city. He's looking at ways to deal with the city budget problems. The city council has been talking the last two years about doing some consolidations and combining some departments and I think that was a good part of the mayor's speech today.

"I think you'll find a lot of support on the city council on that. I'm very happy he's focusing on education. I think those are extremely important issues and I'm very pleased with the speech overall."

As for his own thoughts on saving money next year, Phelan replied, "I think we should look at combining, especially in the school department, some of the administrative functions such as the purchasing department. We have two purchasing departments, do we really need two purchasing departments?

"I think other city departments, in terms of the fire and the police, we have a tremendous overlapping in the emergency dispatch that I think that could be combined and worked into one. It would have to be

Third Quarter Property Tax Bills Due Feb. 3

Property tax bills for the third quarter of fiscal 1992 were mailed Dec. 26 and will be due Monday, Feb. 3, announces Quincy Tax Collector Dana Childs.

Payments received in the collector's office after Feb. 3 will be assessed a late charge of 14% back to Feb. 3. Childs said payments are considered late if received after Feb. 3, regardless of the postmark date.

Property owners who have not received a bill should contact the collector's office Monday through Friday between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

New owners since Jan. 1, 1991 are advised that tax bills for 1992 are issued in the name of the old owner. They should obtain a copy of the bill from the old owners or the tax office.

The Board of Assessors also reminds taxpayers that applications for abatements must be filed by Monday, Jan. 27, 1992 and applications for exemptions must be filed by March 26, 1992. Also applications for abatement of personal property tax must be filed by Jan. 29.

Cheney Forming First Night Committee In Quincy

Councillor Michael Cheney announces he is forming a committee which will examine the feasibility of establishing a First Night Celebration in Quincy.

Cheney said there are several communities who have modeled their First Night after Boston which is typically a non-alcoholic family celebration whereby local residents get together in a festive atmosphere and enjoy the performing and non-performing arts while bringing in the New Year.

Many communities have events such as choral groups, small theatre groups that put on skits, individual performers such as mimes, as well as traditional holiday music, ice sculptures and a variety of children's activities throughout the evening.

Cheney said he hopes to get the business community involved in this project.

"We have a city that we can be proud of and a downtown that is the perfect setting for a First Night Celebration," said Cheney. "Quincy is a family community and our downtown is a most appropriate setting for this event."

He also noted Quincy has failed to tap into the many Quincy residents who are both from the performing and non-performing sectors. Anyone wishing to serve on this planning committee or otherwise become involved with Quincy's First Night may contact Councillor Cheney at his City Council Office at 773-1380, ext. 341.

Cheney is the chairman of the City Council's Tourism Committee and it is his hope that a First Night Celebration will enhance the city's increased efforts in attracting tourists to Quincy.

New City Hall Phone System Begins Operation Monday

By STEVE KAVANAGH

City Hall's new telephone system is scheduled to go on line Monday.

"Everything's on target. The conversion will be this weekend," said Robert Brennan, head of Quincy's Data Processing Department. Brennan said he spoke with NYNEX officials this week and was told that the phone company is ready to do the conversion.

The new system will not go into effect until Tuesday or Wednesday for the Fire Department because of major rewiring that has to be done, Brennan said.

The phone company is conducting training all this week for 350 city employees in the use of the new system.

Quincy will be converting its phone service to New England Telephone's Centrex system. City and phone company officials estimate the city will save approximately $65,000 a year or about $5,000 per month. The savings will total about $450,000 over the course of the seven-year pact.

Presently, if a resident calls the City Hall switchboard after 4:30 p.m. there is no answer.

One way the new system will improve service is to allow the public to dial a specific city department directly. The present system requires all calls to go through the city's switchboard at 773-1380.

A listing of individual department phone numbers will be listed in future editions of the telephone book and will also be mailed out with resident's water bills. The new listings will also be advertised in The Quincy Sun.

Centrex is simple to update which means new technology and equipment can easily be applied to the digital system.

Features of the new system include 25 "call processing" numbers for many city departments. For example, Brennan said, if a resident calls the Recreation Department a recording will instruct the caller to press "1" for information on the Lincoln-Hancock pool, "2" for vacation-week gym programs, "3" for the city tennis tournament, etc., or "9" to speak to a Recreation Dept. employee.

Each school in Quincy will be able to leave various messages for parents and students including "no school" announcements, information on PTO meetings, social and sporting events, etc.

Brennan said residents will be able to dial for information 24 hours a day although most departments and the main switchboard will still operate during normal 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. hours. Callers dialing from a rotary telephone will still be connected to an operator during normal business hours. Callers who don't know which department they want should call City Hall's new main number, 376-1000.

The new system will also allow city departments, such as fire and public works, to list emergency numbers 24 hours a day--seven days a week.

Quincy Hospital and the Police Department will keep their present systems.

Brennan said that the schools, Quincy College, libraries, Fire Department and City Hall each have separate systems and will be consolidated.

The new system will also include a "Voice Mail" feature for most department heads, each City Councillor and the School Committee. Voice Mail works like an answering machine.

In addition, there were 285 inspections, 72 defects noted, 37 reinspections and three fire calls.

Quincy Bay Inn Hearing Continued Until Jan. 28

By STEVE KAVANAGH

A decision will be handed down by the License Board Jan. 28 regarding charges that the Quincy Bay Inn served alcohol to minors and to intoxicated individuals Sept. 24, 1989.

Assistant City Solicitor James Timmins is handling the city's case against the nightclub which revolves around the tragic death's of two 19-year old Quincy men that night.

Daniel Ward and Shawn Clancy died when Clancy lost control of his car and crashed on Route 3A in Hingham. Both were legally intoxicated and had been seen drinking earlier at Aquarius Nightclub at Quincy Bay Inn.

The License Board hearing had been delayed pending the outcome of the criminal case against the nightclub.

The hearing was continued when Michael Traft, an attorney representing the families of Ward and Clancy, submitted documents relating to the case which board members requested a chance to review.

"The corporate entity (of Quincy Bay Inn) admitted to sufficient facts on two counts of serving intoxicated individuals," Timmins said.

"This decision in the Dedham Court should trigger disciplinary action by the board," Timmins said.

Attorney for Quincy Bay Inn, Brian Gilligan argued that the License Board is different from a court of law and that the same standards do not always apply.

"The question for the board is did a violation of a statute occur?" Timmins said.

The defendants admitted in court that a statute was violated, Timmins said, and it is the License Board's duty to make a decision now.

The charge of serving underage individuals was more controversial.

A video tape was played which showed Ward brandishing an ID to the doorman at Aquarius. A fake ID was found in Ward's possession at the accident scene. Clancy was visible on the tape but the tape shut off before he could be filmed showing identification to the doorman. Clancy's regular driver's license, stating he was 19, was found in his possession at the accident scene.

Traft contends that Clancy did not have a fake ID that night and the nightclub was negligent in admitting him.

Quincy Liquor Inspector, Det. Sgt. Richard Laracy, told the board he had been at the nightclub that night and that he observed the doorman doing his job properly.

While he was there "Everyone was carded (checked for ID)," Laracy said.

Ward and Clancy visited Aquarius that night with a group of four other friends. Laracy said that the other four men had fake IDs.

An investigation led Laracy to believe that many of the IDs were being obtained by North Quincy youths through a connection in the Watertown Registry of Motor Vehicles office.

Ward's fake license identified him as Brendan Walsh. An investigation revealed that there were seven activities on Walsh's license between April 1987 and Dec. 1990. Walsh claimed his wallet had been stolen, Laracy said.

The activities on the license included a name change, two amended licenses, two duplicate licenses, a liquor ID and a duplicate liquor ID.

Laracy also discovered that Clancy's older brother, Donald, had six activities on his license in a short time period. They included three amended licenses, a duplicate, a liquor ID and a duplicate liquor ID.

"The only charges I brought against Quincy Bay Inn in court were for serving intoxicated persons," Laracy said. He said he would have been "laughed out of court" if he had pursued the underage charges.

THE SERIOUS PAIN OF TENSION HEADACHES

Headaches are more often the butt of jokes than subjects for serious attention. Yet tension headaches, the kind that occur at times of physical or emotional stress, hit most of us at one time or another, and can be devastating. People who suffer severe, frequent tension headaches should get professional help. Because many long-time sufferers are heavy users of painkillers, treatment may include a weaning away from those drugs plus a prescription for antidepressants or muscle relaxants. Warm-water soaking, stretching exercises, heating pad sessions, and massaging of tense muscles may also be suggested. The key to long-term prevention of the headaches is to discover the triggers that bring them on, then finding ways to cope.

P.S. Tension headache suffers tend to repress anger and are often either highly competitive or chronically depressed.

Reducing the stress in your life can help prevent many medical problems from developing. If you would like to learn more about how you can modify your lifestyle to help ward off heart disease, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St. Suite 24, in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

And, the Next Mayor?

In politics today is also tomorrow and this year is already next year, too.

On Monday, for example, there was Mayor James Sheets with his right hand raised taking his second term oath of office from City Hall Clerk John Gillis.

SHEETS

The setting was different. Instead of at City hall or the Quincy Vo-Tech gym, the inaugural ceremonies were held for the first time at the North Quincy High School auditorium.

But politician watchers were once again tuned in on their usual thought channel and political quiz program: Is The Next Mayor Also Here Today?

Well, if the next mayor is coming out of the City Council — where they usually come from — who will it be?

Two names most mentioned as potential mayoral candidates are Tim Cahill and Mike Cheney. Political observers think they are already on a mayoral collision course and will square off against one another down the road.

CAHILL

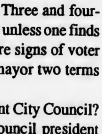
CHENEY

Possibly in 1993 if Sheets decides four years is enough of Excedrin headaches that go with being the city's chief executive and tires of trying to pull a fiscal rabbit out of the hat to cure the city's financial woes. And if times do get worse — and many experts still believe they will — he just might decide to let someone else pick up the torch and run with it.

And there's the increasingly restless voters an incumbent mayor has to contend with. Three and four-term mayors may be a thing of the past unless one finds a gold mine under City Hall. There are signs of voter attitude already shifting to giving a mayor two terms and then next batter up.

Any other possibilities in the present City Council?

Chuck Phelan as the new City Council president could put himself in a strong position the next two years. The City Council presidency is the city's second most powerful elective office and considered by many as the springboard to the mayor's office although that is not always so.



PHELAN

Of the holdover councillors from 1991, probably Ted DeCristofaro is the only one who doesn't have mayoral fantasies.

TOLAND

Patricia Toland who once said she was not interested in being mayor has changed her mind. She wouldn't mind being Quincy's first woman mayor.

KOLSON

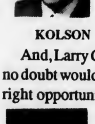
CHRETIEN

And, Larry Chretien, Tom Fabrizio and Peter Kolson no doubt wouldn't mind someday to be His Honor if the right opportunity came along.



AYERS

And how about newcomer Bruce Ayers? Ward 6 has never produced a mayor. Could he someday be the first? He is considered a rising bright political star.

If the next mayor were to come out of the School Committee there would be some heavy betting on Dan Raymondi.

RAYMONDI

Raymondi, in a stunning political comeback, topped the School Committee field in both the preliminary and final elections last fall.

He says his interest is being a good School Committeeman and tackling the challenges of that job. But observers looking at his gung-ho comeback, feel he also has other things on his mind. Like, they think, another crack at the mayor's office.

He lost to Frank McCauley in 1981. But he would be a strong candidate if he decided to give it another shot in 1993 or 1995.

School Committeeman Ron Mariano who was elected state representative in the Third Norfolk District's special election to succeed Robert Cerasoli last fall, is another potential mayoral candidate. But he and Raymondi would not run against one another.

MARIANO

Anyway, last Monday wasn't just Monday. And this isn't just 1992. It is already tommorrow and 1993 to politician watchers.

YOU'D HAVE TO say that Tom Nutley carried out his Ward 6 City Council duties right to the very end.

NUTLEY

Nutley dashed off a letter dated Dec. 31 to MDC Commissioner Ilyas Bhatti expressing concerns over "the mounting piles of debris on Wollaston Beach."

"I assume," he wrote, "that you are thinking in terms of a spring cleanup, but I am worried that people upon observing the debris and also assuming a spring cleanup might just use the beach this winter to dump their rubbish, old furniture, etc. which would not only create a larger problem but could result in an increase in rodents, etc. in this residential area."

IF THERE WAS a Quincy Courage Award, our nominee would be Sean Barry who made his political debut — and an impressive one at that — in last fall's School Committee race.

SEAN

Sean, who is 27, has been waging a tough fight to save his right leg since 1986, after a bout with cancer. A severe infection reared up in his leg implant last October after a bad fall.

Sean came home from Massachusetts General Hospital for the holidays but has been re-admitted. The leg has to be amputated — probably this week.

"I'm doing fine — for now," he says. "I'm upbeat but ... I'll know better when it's over."

Sean says he'll be ready for the surgery after a special from Barry's Deli: a honey ham sandwich with Swiss cheese on an onion roll.

"If you only knew what he's been through," says his mother, Jeanne. "It's been so traumatic for him. "But he has faced it."

Sean, a journalism major graduate, hopes to go into that field in the future and already is returning to the political field.

He's a candidate for the Ward 5 Democratic City Committee in the March Presidential primary.

"And if I could have made it, I'd be in New Hampshire right now campaigning for Tom Harkins for President."

Best of luck Sean. A lot of prayers are with you.

To Focus On Community Input

Ayers: 'I Want To Be There For The People'

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Bruce Ayers won't be wading into his new position as Ward 6 councillor. The new freshman councillor is diving into political waters head first.

Ayers, who was sworn in with Quincy's other elected officials Monday, already has a three major issues which demand his immediate attention: the reconstruction of the Quincy Shore Dr.--East Squantum St. intersection; possible rezoning of the Jordan Marsh parcel in Squantum; and the future use of the former Best Buy building on Quincy Shore Dr.

Although Ayers's transition to Ward 6 councillor will be fast and furious because of those issues, he is ready to accept the challenges of a freshman councillor.

"I'm excited," he said three days before his swearing in. "I'm looking forward to working with the mayor, the other councillors and most importantly the people of my ward mainly because no one knows the ward better than the people who live here."

Ayers, who will turn 30 in April, succeeds former Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley who he defeated last November.

Looking ahead to the next two years, Ayers has set short and long-term goals as Ward 6 councillor. In the short run, he hopes to establish an open line of communication for his constituents.

"I'm trying to establish an open line of communication with my constituents," he said, pointing out he will soon set up office hours at his business, Ayers Bros. Handicap Conversion Center, off East Squantum St.

The hours, he says, will be held a few different weekday nights not to conflict with other city or community meetings.

"I want to be a communicator. I want to have a good relation with the ward. People want to be kept informed of what's going on. Community meetings are very important. I also want to be a watchdog for them by watching out for their interests."

By keeping communication lines open and meeting with constituents, Ayers hopes to act on and resolve community issues with the help and support of Ward 6 residents.

For example, Ayers intends to set up separate community meetings on the intersection reconstruction project, Jordan Marsh rezoning issue and the future of the Best Buy site before voting on them. He'll also meet with the proper representatives and officials for more input.

NEW WARD 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers examines a blueprint for the reconstruction of the Quincy Shore Dr.--East Squantum St. intersection. The intersection project is one of three major issues the freshman city councillor will be addressing early in his first term. (Quincy Sun photo by Robert Bosworth)

Ayers "inherited" one of the issues, the proposed rezoning of the Jordan Marsh site, from Nutley. The former councillor proposed the 10-acre site be rezoned from Business B to Planned Unit Development last month.

In proposing the change, Nutley said PUD would allow the community to provide public input to any significant change, or expansion, to the Jordan Marsh warehouse building and adjoining property to protect the quality of life and property values in the area.

Ayers will soon meet with representatives from Jordan Marsh, councillors-at-large, Planning Director Richard Meade and the community to discuss the proposal and the pros and cons of the Business B and PUD zoning categories.

"Jordan Marsh has always been a good neighbor and one of the city's biggest taxpayers. I'd like to give them a chance to sit down and air their concerns.

"Then I'll meet with the directors of the community associations and the residents. I don't want to make a zoning change without community input and without understanding the pros and cons of each zoning classification."

Ayers said he hopes to schedule meetings on Jordan Marsh, as well as the intersection reconstruction and Best Buy site, in the next few months. The first meeting could be held by the end of the month.

"I'd like to start these meetings in January but we have the Best Buy issue and intersection project going on so it will be a busy first half of the year. I want to give each project the time it needs to do a thorough research job."

The Quincy Shore Dr.--East Squantum St. intersection reconstruction could begin in the spring. According to Ayers, three proposals have been drafted and will be brought up at a future meeting.

The plan which seems to have the most support from local officials calls for a small island or barrier in the middle of East Squantum St. from the Quincy Shore Dr. intersection past the entrance to Dunkin Donuts. The island would prevent motorists who travel north on Quincy Shore Dr. and take a right onto East Squantum St. from cutting across East Squantum St. and entering the donut shop, thereby eliminating any traffic tie-ups on East Squantum St.

All three plans call for the MDC side of East Squantum St. to be widened to accommodate the increased traffic created by the MWRA's Squantum ferry. The project will be financed by a $1.3 million mitigation package signed by the city and MWRA last year.

As for the Best Buy site. Ayers said one proposal under consideration is a Walgreen's moving into the front section of the building. The rear may be used to expand the adjoining liquor store.

"Residents are concerned about traffic, lighting and creating jobs. They also want to know if there is a need for the proposed store. People want jobs.and this would be a great opportunity for the Best Buy site to get back on its feet," Ayers said, adding, "We'll hold more meetings on that, too."

The freshman councillor will have the distinction of serving as the first chairman of the council's new Handicapped Affairs Committee. The committee was created by new Council President Chuck Phelan.

The appointment is right up Ayers's alley. Besides managing the handicap conversion center, he is a community access monitor for the state's Office of Handicapped Affairs.

The new committee will be responsible for ensuring that new buildings in Quincy, as well as existing structures which undergo more than $50,000 in changes, meet the requirements spelled out by the Americans With Disabilities Act.

Requirements include handicapped parking, curbcuts, sidewalk ramps with hand rails, fire alarms and handicapped accessible bathrooms with proper faucets and toilets.

When Nick's Restaurant, corner of Granite and Whitwell Sts., was being built, Ayers met with the owner to explain the new requirements. In turn, the owner complied as the building was constructed.

"It didn't interfere with his building. It worked out well.

"To the average person, the requirements don't seem like a big deal but if you're in a chair. . . it can be frustrating because they can't go into places because they're not handicapped accessible."

In addition, the committee will explore federal and state grants which fund such items as house lifts.

Phelan also appointed Ayers chairman of the council's Public Works Committee. "I'm looking forward to working with (former chairman and Ward 1 Councillor) Peter Kolson and Public Works Commissioner David Colton."

As for long-term goals, Ayers said he wants to improve the quality of life in Ward 6 as well as work with other officials to bolster public safety and education.

The people of Ward 6 want good schools, safe streets and hope for a bright and healthy future.

"I want to protect people's interest in the ward and be there for the people when they need me."

McIntosh Bows Out Of 'Plan E' Dinner

Jan. 8-14 1953 39 Years Ago

Mayor David S. McIntosh and Mayor Francis X. Collins of Salem were to have been the featured speakers at a dinner honoring City Manager William J. Deegan Jr. at the Masonic Temple.

But McIntosh withdrew at the last minute, saying that while he had nothing against Deegan, he suspected that the dinner would be little more than a rally for the controversial Plan E.

"I have every reason to believe that this will be a testimonial, not to the city manager, but to Plan E," said the Mayor.

"I am against Plan E."

MODERNIZE CENTRAL

Rudolph Lofgren, assistant school superintendent for maintenance, suggested that three major changes could be made in Central Junior High School to make it usable for the next 15 years.

He listed the changes as additional toilet facilities on all three floors, moving the cafeteria to the basement, and replacing the 47-year-old boiler.

COST OF FENCING

Henry F. Nilsen, superintendent of engineering, estimated it would cost $64,000 to fence in the Quincy quarries and the fences would not be effective in keeping out youngsters.

The city owned 24 quarries and was considering the purchase of Field and Wilde Quarry, where the body of the long-missing Danny Mattson was found recently.

Nilsen said it would cost between $115,000 and $160,000 to fill in Field and Wilde.

BRADFORD REJECTED

The School Committee, citing a long-standing policy against naming buildings for living persons, declined to name the newly enlarged Trade School for former Mayor William A. Bradford.

But City Historian William C. Edwards pointed out that the Willard School in West Quincy was named on March 28, 1855, six years before its namesake, Solomon Willard, died.

Marie's Kitchen

Diane's Meat Stuffed Peppers

I can certainly tell the holidays are over because I put all the Christmas table cloths away and our "funds are low." So I take to the kitchen where it's just waiting for the activity of normal cooking to begin again. Here is a great recipe for stuffed peppers given to me by a friend, Diane. They were a welcome change from all of the holiday fare.

DIANE'S MEAT STUFFED PEPPERS

6 large peppers, either green, red, yellow or combination (or the ones on sale)
1/4 cup olive oil
1/2 cup chopped onion
3/4 Lb beef, turkey, pork or veal (or a combination)
3/4 cup parmesan or romano cheese
2 cups cooked rice
3 Tbsps parsley
salt and pepper to taste
3 Tbsps red wine (optional)
3/4 cups tomato juice (or leftover tomato sauce.)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Trim the stems from the peppers and remove seeds.

In a large skillet, heat the oil and add the onion and garlic. Saute until transparent. Add the meat and stir until blended. Stir in the remaining ingredients (except the tomato juice or saute). Let cool slightly and then stuff the peppers with the mixture. Place the peppers on a greased baking dish and pour the tomato mixture around them. Bake until tender (about 30 to 40 minutes). Baste occasionally with the liquid from the pan if needed. When I stuff peppers, I sometimes cut them in halves for easier cooking, but either way is fine. Thanks Diane!

Anniversary Mass Sunday

'Father Bill': 40 Years As A People's Priest

By STEVE KAVANAGH

St. John the Baptist Church is expected to be overflowing Sunday afternoon for a tribute to "Father Bill."

The Rev. William R. McCarthy, Pastor, a beloved "people's priest" will be honored at a 12:30 p.m. Mass and party celebrating his 40th year as a priest.

Fr. McCarthy's extensive involvement in church and community activities have made those 40 years pass quickly. He has made an impact, directly or indirectly, on the lives of a countless number of people.

"Times go by very fast. Hopefully we've served the three parishes I've been in (St. Rose in Chelsea, St. Gregory's in Dorchester, and St. John's) to the best of our ability. I've enjoyed serving those three parishes. There are great people in all of them," he said.

YOUNG FATHER BILL--Fr. William McCarthy as he looked Jan. 10, 1952, the date of his ordination by the late Cardinal Richard Cushing.

Fr. McCarthy is best known for his work aiding homeless people. He has often dug into his own pocket to help pay rent for others down on their luck.

Father Bill's Place, named after Fr. McCarthy, opened in 1989. It is the first major shelter for homeless people on the South Shore. The shelter was established by the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition, a group of Quincy's clergy organized in 1984.

He helped get approval to have the shelter located in the former Registry of Motor Vehicles building behind the police station. The shelter opened in 1989 and provides a place to stay for 65 people. St. John's provides an additional 20 beds in the basement of it's school building.

Prior to that Fr. McCarthy and the Coalition attempted to create a shelter at the National Guard Armory on Hancock Street. Plans for that site fell through and "That's when we put 'em in the basement of St. John's School," Fr. McCarthy recalled. "But at that time it was only funded for the winter months."

A site was found at Quincy Hospital but it turned out to be temporary when construction on the new hospital wing began. At that point a shelter for men was set up at Wollaston Lutheran Church and for women at Quincy Point Congregational Church until Father Bill's Place opened.

"It's been a privilege and an honor working with Fr. McCarthy in regards to issues pertaining to the homeless," said Joe Finn who took over as Executive Director of the Coalition in March and manages Father Bill's. "I'm very impressed with his concern for the poor and disenfranchised. He is really a humble man. He doesn't do these things to draw attention to himself."

Finn's office is located at Father Bill's Place and he notes that Fr. McCarthy is no stranger to the shelter.

"He shows up here on numerous occasions. He drops off donations and he always wants to know what's going on," Finn said. "He's not involved with the day-to-day operation but in many ways he sets the spirit here which is for dealing with people as individuals with individual problems."

Fr. McCarthy also works with other programs to help provide housing for the needy including Caritas, a non-profit organization backed by local developers which provides low-income housing.

"With Caritas we try to pick up (purchase) permanent housing for the working poor," Fr. McCarthy said.

At St. John's, Fr. McCarthy has been instrumental in the purchase by the church of three nearby houses to help those less fortunate. One is a boarding house for eight women who were previously homeless. Another is for unwed mothers-to-be; and the other is a two-family for low income families.

Quincy developer and businessman Peter O'Connell has worked with Fr. McCarthy in the past to provide housing for people with low incomes.

"He is a man for others," O'Connell said. "That is truly what Bill McCarthy is all about. His life is dedicated to helping people in need... many times putting himself at risk either personally or financially," he said.

Fr. McCarthy said he began helping people find housing after being appointed to the Quincy Housing Authority in 1978. O'Connell was one of the first people to help Fr. McCarthy.

"While I was at the Housing Authority a lot of people came to us without housing. We were putting people into hotels... they were a lot cheaper back then... and putting people into subsidized housing. Mr. O'Connell purchased a house for a family which was subsidized by the QHA," Fr. McCarthy said.

The man who appointed Fr. McCarthy to the QHA was then Mayor Arthur Tobin, now Clerk Magistrate at Quincy District Court.

"When the Housing Authority vacancy occured I talked to him about it and he was very interested in helping people like he always was," Tobin recalled.

"I tell him he's a walking saint. Recently a young single mother was in court and she had problems with alcohol or drugs and she said she had no one to turn to. Fr. McCarthy talked to her and helped her with money and bills. She came back to visit at Christmas and told us she has put her life back together because Fr. McCarthy interceded," Tobin said.

"He doesn't ask anyone who they are or where they're from," Tobin said. "He just helps them. He believes that's what he's supposed to do as a priest."

Regional Bishop Daniel Hart has known Fr. McCarthy since 1945 during their days together in the seminary before they were ordained. Fr. McCarthy was ordained in 1952 by Cardinal Richard Cushing and Hart was ordained in 1953. Bishop Hart will be attending the Mass for Fr. McCarthy on Sunday.

"I was a year behind him at the seminary and used to drive home with him to the Merrimack Valley area (Fr. McCarthy grew up in Haverhill)," said Bishop Hart.

"He is a wonderful pastor. He is the kind of pastor who really cares about people. There are many examples of that in the different ways he helps people.

"He's been a hard-working priest all the time in his 40 years and he's beloved by the parishioners. In fact, at a meeting I attended recently at St. John's, many of the parishioners asked that he be nominated for Monsignor," Bishop Hart said.

Congressman Brian Donnelly, a Dorchester native, knew Fr. McCarthy while he was at Donnelly's parish, St. Gregory's. In fact Fr. McCarthy married Donnelly and his wife Ginny and baptized their daughter.

"Father Mac literally embodies what a priest means. He never thinks of himself but only of serving others. There are not many people in the world like him," Donnelly said.

"At St. Gregory's he ran a mini Father Bill's. He was caring for homeless people before it became a public issue and before people were aware it was a problem," Donnelly said.

"When he left (St. Gregory's) people were crushed."

"I lived with him for 12 years and I know him like a brother," said the Rev. Daniel Graham, pastor of St. Joseph's Parish. Fr. Graham served with Fr. McCarthy as an associate pastor at St. John's. "In addition to being colleagues we were good friends.

"I've always known him to be a hard working priest, a tireless worker, always giving of his time and energy," Fr. Graham said.

"His big thing is caring for the poor. We used to tell him he had to cut back (giving his money) and he'd say, 'yes, yes,' and then turnaround and put up a homeless family in a hotel," Fr. Graham recalled.

"Before it became 'fashionable' to help with the plight of the homeless he was a key figure in recognizing and working to solve the problems of those in need," Fr. Graham said.

"He was always kind and hospitable to the priests and the staff at St. John's. For a pastor you couldn't ask for more," Fr. Graham said of his friend. "He has served the church well for 40 years."

Rabbi David Jacobs of Temple Beth El worked with Fr. McCarthy during the Interfaith Coalition's early years.

"The wonderful thing about Fr. McCarthy is his sensitivity towards poor people," he said. "I've never met anyone who understands what it is like to live in deprivation as he does.

"There is an unbelievable kindness in that man," Rabbi Jacobs said.

The Rev. Dr. Sheldon Bennett of United First Parish Church credits Fr. McCarthy with being a big factor in establishing the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition as a significant group in the city.

"It was largely due to his commitment and vision that the Coalition is the success that it is in serving the community," Rev. Bennett said.

The two men have also worked together on the Woodward School Board of Supervisors.

Charles Phelan Council President

'I Vow To Look At Proposals With A Very Critical Eye'

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan, unanimously elected the new City Council president at inauguration ceremonies Monday, called on his council colleagues to re-establish budget priorities and eliminate duplicate city services.

Phelan, who is beginning his third term as Ward 5 councillor, succeeds Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro who was council president the past two years.

He was nominated by Councillor Patricia Toland, who said Phelan has a "quiet competence" which is widely respected by residents in Ward 5 and beyond. In seconding the nomination, Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien said Phelan is a "well-liked, respected and trusted city official" who makes "good, solid decisions."

NEW CITY COUNCIL President Charles (Chuck) Phelan calls on his colleagues to re-establish budget priorities and eliminate duplicate city services.

In his address, Phelan said he intends to convene a conference of the chairmen of the council's major committees to examine proposals for consolidation among city departments.

"As an example, we should look at combining similar functions carried out both at City Hall and within the school department. In addition, I firmly believe that the city should move to combine the emergency dispatch function of our police and fire departments, both as a public safety measure and to free up more firefighters and police officers around our city."

Phelan said one of his top priorities will be monitoring noise and other effects created by MWRA operations in city neighborhoods. "We must not allow the MWRA to run roughshod over Quincy residents," the new council president said.

In addition, Phelan said he and other elected officials must continue to speak out strongly against the ever increasing financial burdens brought on by the MWRA's rising sewer and water user fee assessments.

"Many of our neighbors are suffering unbearable financial burdens, which are only heightened by increasing sewer and water user fee assessments posed by the MWRA. As elected officials, we must continue to speak out strongly for residents against this unfair burden.

"In this regard, I strongly support, and urge your support, for Sen. (Paul) Harold's bill which would reasonably limit MWRA fee increases. As council president, it will be a major priority of mine to work with fellow councillors to address residents' concerns regarding noise and other effects of MWRA operations in our neighborhoods."

Although he acknowledged the importance of revitalizing the Quincy Center, Wollaston and North Quincy business centers, Phelan said he will strongly resist any proposal, including the siting of a commuter rail station in Quincy Square, which disregards the important and legitimate neighborhood concerns of residents "who deserve every consideration.

"I vow to look at proposals such as the crosstown connector and the restoration of commuter rail with a very critical eye. And, if commuter rail is to come to Quincy, we must insist on guarantees, protections and benefits to Quincy residents as well as sound barriers to guard against noise and a firm agreement that there will be no nighttime transportation of freight."

In addition, Phelan announced the formation of a new council committee, the committee on Handicapped Affairs. Chaired by new Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, the new committee will address "the concerns of citizens who are physically challenged."

Ayers, who succeeds former Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley, was sworn in Monday with the city's other eight councillors.

The new council president has also renamed the existing disposal committee to include recycling to emphasize Quincy's commitment to furthering recycling efforts for both environmental and cost-savings reasons.

Phelan, who is the son of a Quincy police officer and grandson of a Quincy firefighter, said he is proud to continue his family's tradition of public service to Quincy. He pledged to work cooperatively with the mayor, his staff, city departments and fellow councillors "to reach consensus on critical issues facing our city.

"I will be open to ideas and suggestions, and as a ward councillor, I am keenly aware of the types of neighborhood concerns that ward councillors face. I know, that they will find me to be receptive to their needs."

Looking ahead to the challenges facing city government, Phelan said, "With your continued support and god's blessing and guidance, I am confident that as city council president I can set a positive and successful course for the city council during the next year."

The council held its organizational meeting and re-elected Jeanne Reardon clerk of committee.

Jeanne Reardon was re-elected the City Council's clerk of committee.

TAKING OATHS ARE new Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, Councillors at-large Tim Cahill and Michael Cheney and Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien.

"There must be major changes in the administrative structure and process."

In the weeks and months ahead, Sheets said he will recommend major administrative reorganization for Quincy public schools. "Reorganization will be designed to make more resources available for teaching and curriculum improvement--thus preparing us for the educational challenges in the 21st century."

Regarding revitalization, the mayor said he intends to pursue the renewal of the Quincy Center, Wollaston and North Quincy business districts.

Planning Director Richard Meade has begun formulating a plan to market Quincy's excess commercial space. The Planning Partnership, under the Quincy Plan, should be actively marketing vacant retail space as early as April or May.

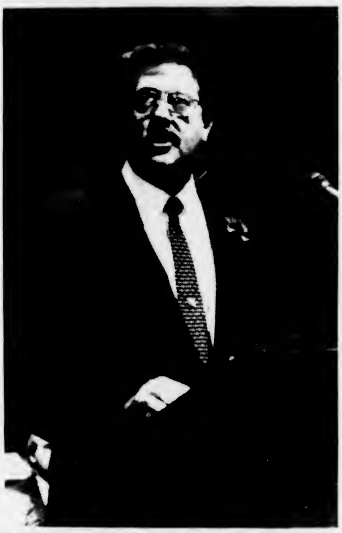
The mayor said he will immediately begin "aggressively pursuing" funding for an Old Colony Commuter Rail Station in Quincy Center and a bridge which would link the Osco/Grossman's retail areas with the Parkingway.

"Infrastructure is absolutely necessary if we are to prepare for major new retail facilities and the certain expansion of tourism," he said.

To improve the city's environment, Sheets said he will propose over the next year a program to ensure that "both the eastern and western frontiers of our city are preserved for recreational use."

By the end of 1995, the mayor said he hopes the city's bays and beaches are free from disease and pollution. He also wants to convert the West Quincy landfill area into a recreational facility.

Sheets said the facility, which would feature a golf course, soccer and baseball fields, would be constructed and managed privately with the city's share of the proceeds put back into the park department to improve existing park facilities.



MAYOR JAMES SHEETS delivers his second term inaugural address at North Quincy High School auditorium. (Quincy Sun photos by Tom Gorman)

Reflecting on his first two years in office, Sheets said it has been "the best of times and the worst of times."

On the plus side, the mayor mentioned Quincy Hospital. After falling to a $3.5 million deficit in FY 89, the health care facility is on the verge of breaking even this year and is expected to post a profit in 1992.

Quincy College has also experienced growth, with enrollment climbing 11.5 percent the past two years to 3,800 full and part-time students. The municipally-managed institution has a surplus of nearly $2 million. Last year, a new campus opened in Plymouth.

Quincy's recycling program continues to be successful. Since it began, the program has saved the city $1 million in disposal fees by collecting 11,000 tons of glass, plastics and newspaper and conversed 102,000 trees, 42 million gallons of water

On the down side, economic difficulties have posed great challenges for city government.

Over the last two years, local aid to Quincy has been cut $9.7 million while property taxes and fee revenues have dropped. Those two factors have been the main contributors to the city's budget problems.

In addition, water and sewer assessments have skyrocketed while the number of full and part-time municipal jobs cut has reached 208. Expenses for school and municipal departments have been curtailed 5.2 percent.

Mary Collins New School Committee Vice Chairperson

'We Want Our Students Mentally, Physically And Morally Healthy'

NEW SCHOOL COMMITTEE Vice-Chairwoman Mary Collins tells audience at inaugural ceremonies that the city has an obligation to provide the best education possible to all students.

New School Committee vice chairperson Mary Collins says the city has an obligation to provide the best education possible to all city students as well as help them deal with societal and other problems.

"I am committed to close monitoring of the school budget and to insuring that we improve our curriculum and develop our staff. Quincy's chief goal is the best education possible to all our students.

"If that means that all of the problems students bring to school must be taken care of in this school system, I am in favor of that, also.

"It's time that the community realize that better educated students are the responsibility of every citizen, business person, social service agency, church and synagogue. I am extremely pleased today that Mayor (James) Sheets has made education one of his top priorities.

"It takes many people to educate a child. I hope that the entire city of Quincy will join the School Committee and take that task on as their top priority for 1992."

Collins was unanimously elected vice chairman for the third time in her 14 years on the School Committee Monday at the city's inauguration ceremonies in the North Quincy High School auditorium.

Collins, who was first elected to the School Committee in 1978, thanked her colleagues for their vote of confidence. Since that time, the school system has undergone many changes, she said, especially in the wake of sharp funding reductions.

"The percentage of the city budget attributed to the operation of the schools has dropped drastically since I was first elected in 1978. Although our school population has decreased, our responsibilities to the community have increased tenfold.

In 1978, "The schools had no programs for teen mothers, suicide prevention, child abuse, no multi-cultural programs, minimal drug prevention programs, no breakfast program and no AIDS or anti-violence curriculum.

"These programs were begun because, although the numbers of students have decreased, the problems that students bring to school have increased, reflecting the radical changes in our society over the last 10 years.

"As the influence of the family and church have lessened, problems have grown and social service agencies have not been able to keep up with the pace, so more and more of the problems are being cared for by the schools," Collins said.

The new vice chairman said the school system should focus on making its students "mentally, physically and morally healthy. "I want our students prepared for work, for school and for life when they leave the Quincy public schools. But the school days are only so long and when we teach students about all the things I mentioned earlier, we shorten the time to teach them English, history and mathematics.

"We want our students to do well in state and national tests. We want them to get a good job or go on to college well prepared for the challenges they will face."

She also said Quincy has many educational accomplishments, some recognized and others unnoticed.

"Quincy has a Blue Ribbon School (Broad Meadows Middle School) and the state teacher of the year (Ron Adams) and the only municipally operated two-year college in the state. I believe we have other Blue Ribbon schools and many excellent teachers--they just haven't been formally recognized yet."

In other School Committee news, Stephen Durkin, Daniel Ramondi and Linda Stice were sworn-in to a four-year term by Mayor James Sheets who is also school committee chairman.

Acting School Supt. Eugene Creedon was elected secretary of the School Committee, replacing Dr. Robert Ricci who will step down later this month.

Tefta Burrelli was re-elected clerk of the School Committee.

something worked out by both the fire and police but I think with the enhanced 911 system coming on line within a year from now that this would be the opportunity to put in one combined dispatcher. I don't know if we would actually save personnel but it would certainly relieve police and firefighters to be out on the street, not to be tied down to the fire house or the police station."

Ward 2 Councillor and immediate past council president Ted DeCristofaro: "I was very, very pleased to hear some of the things the mayor said in his inaugural and I honestly believe he has the best intentions and I believe many of them will come to fruition. He's worked very, very hard with the council, with the school committee and other city agencies and I believe that the closeness he has with them will certainly pay off in the next two years."

As for his own budget ideas, DeCristofaro said, "I think the main thing that (the mayor) talked about is coordinating some of the different departments between the school department and the city of Quincy and I think at this time it's probably about the only area that can be coordinated to eliminate some positions or to help cut the deficit. Other than that, there's really nothing as far as I can see right now."

State Rep. and School Committeeman Ronald Mariano: "The mayor comes for a educational background, he's a teacher, he's very sensitive to the needs of the kids in the city so it was really good to hear him make it a priority. I think that we do have a lot of work that's got to be done. He highlighted a couple of our real success stories, the Broad Meadows School and the teachers of the year that we have in our system but we're facing budget cuts again and programs are being questioned and an awful lot of tough decisions are going to have to be made.

"I'm looking for the mayor to provide some solid leadership and get us in the direction that I think we all want to be in."

As for ways to save the school department money, Mariono said, "The last two budget sessions I proposed cuts in the vocational-technical school to the tune of about $200,000. I don't believe we're going to be able to do that again so I am very concerned in how we're going to raise money this year.

"I firmly believe this (school) budget that we have now is really a bare bones budget. We have to severely question where we're going to get any increase revenues, any monies we need."

Rep. Steve Tobin: "I think he focused properly on the fact that the city's going to have to make some fundamental changes in the delivery of services and the restructuring in the departments because as we saw the state is not going to be increasing local aid and he even mentioned a figure of about a 10 percent cut in local aid. I would say that is speculative but I'm pleased that he would take a scenario that is as bad case as that and try to balance Quincy's budget from a worst-case point of view. That way, if things get better, Quincy's in a better position.

"His focus is based on reality and he's got his eye on the ball and he's the right guy for the job for the next two years." School Committeeman Daniel Raymondi: "I think it's important that we continue on with the mayor's goals of restructuring and reorganizing so that there are reductions in the budget that have to take place within the school department budget that they're in areas farthest removed from the classroom experience with

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

A New Year is here. The old year probably had moments of fear, distress, disappointment and unfulfilled hopes.

But you had days of good cheer, beauty, variety and happiness too. It is the usual pattern of life.

There is really no use in mourning the past year or the years before. The New Year is here for all of us. It gives all of us a chance for new hopes, new dreams, new individuals if we make it so. It gives us a new chance to have good intentions; a chance to have whole-hearted instead of half-hearted resolution to do better. It gives us a chance to live better through guidance from the Good Book and the counsel therein. It gives us a chance to good things; write long delayed letters, live cheerfully with new understanding and concern for others. It gives us a chance to have new enthusiasm.

It is a God given opportunity for all of us. Can you think of any reason why any one should not at least try to make the most of it?

Olson chipped in with 11 points and Johnson finished with 8 rebounds.

In the opening round North edged Stoughton, 68-65, as Donovan scored 19 points and Bellot 16. Stoughton's Jamie McGarry had a phenomenal night with 34 points.

Bellot, Donovan and Flynn were named to the all-tournament team.

In its previous game Quincy lost to Cathedral, 71-65, in the consolation game of the Boston College High Christmas tournament. The Presidents had bowed to Fitchburg in the opening round.

Jolley and Robbie Kane scored 16 points each for Quincy. Kane, a standout all season long, was named to the all-tournament team.

North Edges Falmouth

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy hockey team edged Falmouth, 1-0, last Saturday to improve its record to 4-2, but the Raiders have a rough road ahead of them the rest of the season.

Coach Tom Benson lost his leading scorer, Mike DesRoche, for the rest of the season after he suffered torn knee ligaments in a loss to Marshfield.

North (2-1 in the Old Colony League) played at Weymouth last night (Wednesday), will host Bridgewater-Raynham Saturday night at 7:50 at the Youth Arena and will meet Quincy next Wednesday at 6:40 at the Youth Arena in what should be one of the best games of the season. Quincy was 3-1-3 going into last night's game with Silver Lake.

Sophomore Jim Sapienza scored the only goal in the win over Falmouth with Sean Vernetta and John Gladu assisting.

Junior goalie Sean Conley was outstanding as he came up with more than 30 saves.

In their previous game the Raiders had lost to unbeaten Marshfield, 5-1. The Rams are 7-0 and must be setting some sort of record for shots on goal. North goalie Dennis Ruggere has 44 saves. In previous games Marshfield had a phenomenal 79 shots and more than 50 shots on goal.

Earlier North Quincy has defeated Rockland for the second time, 6-3.

"The boys have been playing excellent hockey and, although we will certainly miss Mike DesRoche, one of the top scorers in the league, we have other boys who can score and I think we will be all right," said Benson. "Dennis Ruggere has been outstanding in goal and Sean Conley played a superb game in goal in the win over Falmouth."

THE WEST QUINCY ELKS won the Quincy Youth Football League cheerleading competition recently. The squad performed a modern, '50s- style dance routine choreographed by Kim Lincoln. Kneeling, l to r, co-captain Suzanne Civitarese, Michelle Zaborowski, co-captain Lynne Garland, captain Nicole Sheffer, and Nicole Forti. A 'Tying' Week For Presidents

Quincy's hockey team, off to its best start in years, finished off a "tying" week by scoring late to tie Bridgewater-Raynham, 3-3, last Saturday.

It was the Presidents' third tie of the week and improved its record to 3-1-3.

Quincy hosted Silver Lake last night (Wednesday), will be at Weymouth Saturday night at 7:20 and will meet North Quincy next Wednesday at 6:40 at the Youth Arena. This should be a fine game as North took a 4-2 record into last night's game at Weymouth.

Scott MacPherson, again one of the top scorers in the Old Colony League, gave the Presidents their tie with B-R as he completed a hat trick at 9:46 of the third period. Jimmy Smith assisted on the goal.

B-R had taken a 3-2 lead with a goal at 1:26 of the final period.

Shane Abboud and Sean McArdle assisted on MacPherson's other two goals. The three goals gave him 17 points on 12 goals and five assists.

Steve MacPherson had another excellent night in goal with 25 saves.

"Bridgewater-Raynham, like most of the other teams we play, was a good deal bigger than our kids and tried to outmuscle us," said Quincy coach Bob Sylvia. "But our greater speed more than makes up for our lack of size. The kids are doing a great job and I am very pleased with results so far."

In their previous game the Presidents again came from behind late in the game to tie Boston Latin, 3-3. Latin had previously handed Quincy its only loss.

Jeff Craig's five-foot wrist shot with 2:26 left in the game gave Quincy the tie. John Lewis assisted on the goal.

Latin jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the opening period but Smith scored twice in the second period to knot the count with MacPherson and Jamie Schatzal assisting on the goals.

Steve MacPherson had 20 saves in another fine performance.

The third game last week resulted in a 2-2 tie at Falmouth. MacPherson scored a goal and also assisted on Craig's goal.

In an earlier game Quincy rolled over Revere, 8-3, in a non-league game as freshman goalie Mark Smith had an outstanding game in his first start and had 20 saves.

Schatzal put Quincy on the board early in the game with "the other" Scott MacPherson, no relation to the top scorer, having an assist. Abboud and McArdle had other goals in the opening period with McArdle and Abboud assisting on each other's goals.

Track

North Girls Too Much For Quincy

The North Quincy girls' track team improved to 2-1 with an easy 69-21 victory over Quincy, which fell to 0-3.

Karen Leary was North's top performer with a come-from-behind win in the 1000 over Quincy's Sarah Edwards, who led the entire race only to be beaten down the stretch. Leary also led off the winning mile relay team, beaming up with freshman Laura Blaikie, Katie Gustafson and Elisabeth O'Donnell.

Quincy's Amy Dunn was a triple winner, taking the high jump, 300 and anchoring the 4X176 relay team, just holding off North's Susanne Hamilton. Her winning leap of 4-10 in the high jump qualified her for the state championships.

Although Quincy had only eight girls with several from both school out with the flu or injuries, North coach Geoff Hennessy had words of praise for the Quincy squad. "Every kid on that team did their very best and never gave up," he said. Hennessy was also proud of his own squad with 59 of the 69 points scored by underclassmen, including six freshmen.

North's other winners were Amy Wong in the 50 (6.7), Chrissy Herman, 50-yard hurdles (8.7); Melanie Gaziano, 600 (1:47.7); Sonia Olmedo, mile (6.18.8); Kate McNamara, two-mile (13:53.0); Trish McNamara, shot put, (26-1 1/2).

Quincy's 4X176 relay team of Kelly Stewart, Amy Galman, Terry O'Neil, and Dunn won in 1:40.6.

Taking second place for North were Hamilton, 50; Mary Ellen Eddy, 300; O'Donnell, 600; Blaikie, mile; Kristy Kabilian, two-mile; Hamilton, high jump; and Anh Ho, shot put.

Quincy seconds were taken by Galman, 50 hurdles; and Edwards, 1000.

City, Co-operative Bank Program Helps First Time Homebuyers

The City of Quincy has developed a First Time Homebuyer Program to help low and moderate income families afford a home of their own.

The First Time Homebuyer Program, designed as a joint effort of the City of Quincy, The Co-operative Bank of Concord, and the Massachusetts Housing Partnership, provides potential homebuyers with the assistance that they need to afford the down payment and monthly payments on a home.

The program offers qualified homebuyers a conventional mortgage and a subsidized second mortgage with a maximum of 95% financing without the added cost of private mortgage insurance. In addition to lower down payment requirements and flexible underwriting, the subsidized second mortgage helps to lower monthly payments.

Properties eligible for the program must be located in Quincy and have sale prices of $125,000 or less. Income limits range from $26,600 for a single person household and increase to $50,150 for a family of eight. Borrowers must have 3% of the purchase price as a down payment made up of their own funds. The remaining 2% can be donated by the City from Community Development Block Grant Funds, or other sources.

The Co-operative Bank offers other financing incentives that relate to the first time borrowers' needs such as interest rate reduction, elimination of points, and reduced attorneys' fees.

The second mortgage program is administered by the Massachusetts Housing Partnership. The borrower pays only interest on the second mortgage for a ten year term.

Robert Scott Hines, his wife Eileen, and their five children are one of the first homeowners to take advantage of the First Time Homebuyer Program. They contacted Veronica Collins, assistant planner for the City of Quincy and coordinator of the program who interviewed and prequalified the Hines family for their loan. They subsequently met with Judy Farmer, mortgage representative of The Co-operative Bank and applied for their mortgage. The family moved into their new home just in time for the holidays.

David Bradbury, chairman and CEO, said "the bank is very excited to be involved in such a beneficial program that assists families in attaining their goal of home ownership. Such worthwhile ventures clearly show that a partnership of public and private interests can work together to increase affordable housing opportunities for first time homebuyers."

The Co-operative Bank of Concord, with assets of $629 million is a state chartered, FDIC insured co-operative bank with headquarters in Acton and 13 retail banking offices in Middlesex, Norfolk and Plymouth counties.

Quincy," said Rev. Bennett, chairman of the Board of Supervisors. "I am very grateful for all he has done and for the support and commitment he has shown with the leadership of the Woodward School."

Rev. Bennett said Fr. McCarthy's involvement in so many different organizations is why his effects on the city transcend the church.

"In a quiet behind the scenes way he has contributed to the quality of life, not only at St. John's, but in the entire city of Quincy. His ministry goes beyond St. John's Parish," said Rev. Bennett.

The Rev. Cornelius Heery, pastor at Sacred Heart Church has known Fr. McCarthy for many years.

"Fr. McCarthy is the Mother Theresa of the South Shore. He reaches out to the poor.

"The Lord said if you love the poor your salvation is assured," Heery said.

"We in the North Quincy section of the city admire what goes on at St. John's," be said "Although they like to come down to Sacred Heart and spy on us once in a while," Fr. Heery joked.

"I hope we'll all be together for his 50th," Fr. Heery said.

In addition to his work with the poor Fr. McCarthy has done extensive work at St. John's.

Fr. McCarthy also revitalized the parish's idle parochial school building. It is now used for various purposes including a Drop-In Center for teens, CCD classes, an adult center for seminars and classes, and a Catholic literature library. The basement is also used as a shelter for homeless people when there is an overflow at Father Bill's Place.

Fr. McCarthy also directed many physical improvements at St. John's, including renovation of the downstairs hall which was dedicated to former St. John's pastor, Bishop Joseph Maguire.

Another improvement of which Fr. McCarthy is proud of was the installation of an elevator to provide handicapped access to the church.

Under Fr. McCarthy, St. John's became the pilot parish for RCIA, a program for converting adults of other faiths to Catholicism.

A popular idea initiated by Fr. McCarthy are the Masses held at the senior citizen housing complexes, Granite Street, Town Brook and Sawyer Towers each week "for people who can't get out and get to church," Fr. McCarthy said.

Another trademark of Fr. McCarthy is that he tries to make church services a positive experience for parishioners. Now many of the Masses at St. John's include music.

"I like to make the celebration of Mass uplifting to the people," he said.

"I try to communicate to parishioners that they own the parish. It belongs to them, not the priests."

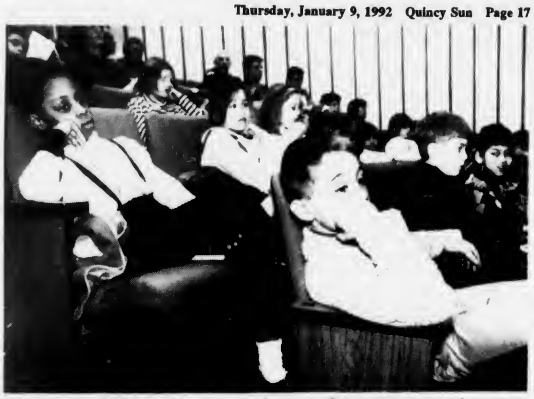
In the past he has been involved with the planning of Quincy's 200th Anniversary Celebration of the United States Constitution. He also worked with the city to try to prohibit video games in Quincy.

In addition to his work at St. John's Fr. McCarthy has used his talents to help with fund raising efforts at Quincy Hospital, Woodward School, Caritas and Father Bill's Place.

"I feel that the people in Quincy have been most cooperative and supportive in my ventures, especially the parishioners at St. John's."

Fr. McCarthy would not reveal whether he has any plans for retiring soon.

"I have three more years to serve on my term (his third six-year term at St. John's)," he said, "And then we'll see how things are going health-wise."



SECOND AND THIRD graders from the Squantum School were among the invited guests attending the Mayor-City Council-School Committee inaugural ceremonies at North Quincy High School.

Squantum School Students Attend City Inauguration

Students from Mrs. Barbara Arnold's second grade class and Dr. Diane Willard's third grade class from the Squantum school attended the City of Quincy Inauguration ceremonies of the mayor, City Council and School Committee Monday at North Quincy High School.

Mrs. Arnold's class has been involved in learning activities relating to many aspects of city government over the last several months.

During the recent city elections, the students wrote to many candidates expressing their ideas and sharing information. Mayor James Sheets, Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, School Committee member Linda Stice, and School Committee candidate Joann Bragg paid personal visits to the classroom and discussed topics such as recycling, city government, citizenship and ecology with the students.

The class also received letters from Councillor-At-Large Michael Cheney, former Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley, Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien, Ward Six Councillor Bruce Ayers and his mother Mrs. Beverly Ayers, and School Committee candidate Margaret King.

More letters may be forthcoming from other elected officials and candidates.

teachers and the learning that's going on in the classroom. To that extent, I suppose like other (School Committee) members I'm anxiously awaiting what exactly his program is and how that affects the dollars in the school department budget.

"I was pleased that he is focusing in on the administrative and those areas that are not directly related to the classroom experience."

Asked whether he has own ideas for trimming the school department budget, Raymondi replied, "I do and in the next few weeks I'll be talking about them."

Councillor Michael Cheney: "I think it was positive, upbeat and I look forward to working diligently on making sure some of those plans are fulfilled and we succeed in the city of Quincy.

"It's going to be very, very challenging because of the fiscal situation and with the environmental situation there's going to be a lot happening in Quincy so hopefully it will be fun."

As for his ideas on closing the expected $4 million budget gap in FY 93, Cheney said, "I'll be proposing some of my own ideas probably within the next few months."

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers: "The mayor brought up a lot of good points, especially utilizing the limited amount of money we have. I'm glad to hear the emphasis is going to be put on education and he noted some good facts on recycling.

"I'm looking forward to working with the mayor and the other councillors to come up with different areas that we might be able to create money for the budget."

Six Liquor Stores Suspended

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The City License Board slapped a one-day suspension on six package stores which served a minor during a Quincy Police Department "sting" operation last November and adopted strict penalties for stores who serve minors in the future.

The board voted 5-0 to follow assistant city solicitor James Timmins' recommendation of a one-day suspension and to develop guidelines for future offenses.

Police Chief Francis Mullen proposed a "progressive discipline procedure" which was approved by the board, 4-1.

The new policy calls for a 7-day suspension for a first offense and 30-day suspension for a second offense. Suspensions must be served on consecutive days exclusive of Sundays. Stores which commit a third offense will face a hearing before the board regarding a revocation of license.

"We have to send a message (to package store employees). You have to make identification!" Mullen said.

Board Chairman John Gillis voted against the new guidelines. While not disagreeing with Mullen's proposal Gillis said, "Each individual case is different. There can be mitigating circumstances."

The six stores who will have their licenses suspended Wednesday, Jan. 22, are Old Colony Liquors, 519 Southern Artery; Previte's Market, 72 Sumner St.; McNieces, 205 West Squantum St.; \ Neck Package Store, 1183 Sea St.; Shop 'N' Save Liquors, 20 Independence Ave.; and Fleishman's Liquors, 603 Washington St.

"These were isolated incidents. There was not a pattern of activity here," Timmins said. "But we want to put the package stores on notice."

For Outstanding Community S...

Frank Kearns Sun 'Citizen Of Year'

Frank J. Kearns, 79, of Quincy, a community activist and advocate for the city's elderly, homeless, needy and poor, has been selected The Quincy Sun's 1991 "Citizen of the Year."

Kearns, of 162 West Elm Ave., who began a "second career" in local community service after retiring from the U.S. Postal Service in 1977, was selected from 34 nominees submitted by Sun readers.

An 11-member panel representing the city made the final selection from those 41 nominations.

The award was established in 1985 to annually honor an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Kearns joins the six other award recipients. They are, in the order of their selection beginning in 1985:

Anthony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management (formerly Civil Defense); Ruth Wainwright, long-time community volunteer; the late Richard J. Koch Sr., a leader in community and charitable causes; Martin Finnegan, coordinator of Project Impact, a program which helps youngsters deal with substance abuse; Clara Yeomans, long-time environmentalist and charter member of the Quincy Conservation Commission; and Gerald Gherardi, a contributor to many charities and service organizations.

Kearns was nominated by Fr. Jack Ahern of St. Ann's Church in Wollaston. In his nomination ballot, Ahern noted Kearns' dedication and service to the area's elderly and homeless.

When told that Fr. Ahern had nominated him, Kearns replied, "He's a terrific guy. I like him very much. I'm glad to hear that."

Surprised by the recognition, Kearns said he is honored by the panel's selection. "It's an honor to receive this award from the panel and The Quincy Sun. This means a lot to me."

Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth congratulated Kearns for his community activism and involvement on behalf of the city's

Sheets To Lobby In D.C. For Quincy Plan

QUINCY MASONS LODGE Past President Robert Parker, left, and Nathan Rosenhek, Master of the Lodge, present Mayor James Sheets with a "Say No To Drugs and Alcohol" entry mat. The mat, measuring three feet by five feet, will be placed in the foyer of the City Hall annex. Similar mats will be placed outside Quincy's 15 public schools. (Quincy Sun photo by Robert Bosworth)

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Mayor James Sheets will travel to Washington, D.C., next week to attend the U.S. Conference of Mayors and while in the nation's capital, the mayor hopes to start his lobbying for his downtown revitalization plan.

"If my schedule permits, I'll do some lobbying for the crosstown connector and Old Colony commuter rail station projects. This is a preliminary trip which will give us some preliminary contacts," the mayor said.

As far as contacts, Sheets said he hopes to meet with key officials from the Department of Transportation and the AFL-CIO labor union. If possible, the mayor said he will meet with Cong. Brian Donnelly and aides for Senators Ted Kennedy and John Kerry.

The east-west crossway connector, which would link Route 3A with the Burgin Parkway, carries an estimated $25 to $30 million price tag. The commuter rail station, which the mayor hopes to locate in Quincy Center, would cost an estimated $5 to $15 million.

Sheets said federal and state funding are needed for both projects, the key infrastructure elements to his Quincy Plan. City revenue would not be spent on the projects, he said.

Sheets will attend the three-day conference which begins next Tuesday, Jan. 21 and return to the city next Friday, Jan. 24. He called the winter conference "important" since the nation's mayors will discuss urban funding policies.

"It's an important conference because it will deal with policies for urban funding for cities. Because of the cuts in military spending, the role of mayors across the country becomes more important," he said.

Sheets is a member of the Committee for Urban Development and International Development. "It will be an active schedule," he said Tuesday, looking ahead to next week's three-day conference which will be chaired by Boston Mayor Ray Flynn.

Sheets does not expect the U.S.S. Lexington to be on his lobbying agenda. He said his administration has been kept up to date on the aircraft carrier's future whereabouts. He

Masons Donate Anti-Drug Door Mats To Public Schools

The Quincy Lodge of Masons want the city's youth to walk all over it....Well, sort of.

Tuesday morning Lodge officials presented Mayor James Sheets an entry mat with the message, "Say No To Drugs and Alcohol." The blue mat with white lettering which also displays a bold anti-drug symbol was presented by Nathan Rosenhek, Master of the Lodge, and Robert Parker, a Past Master of the lodge.

The mayor's mat will be placed in the front foyer of the City Hall annex. Fifteen similar mats will be placed at each Quincy public school. The school mats will be done in the individual colors of each school.

The mats measure three feet by five feet are made of a synthetic fabric called olefin. Valued at $116 each, the mats were supplied by Pioneer Mfg. Co.

The mat presentation is part of the Masonic support of the Drug and Alcohol Awareness or DARE Program.

Sheets praised the Masons for their gift and support for the DARE program. "The people of Quincy appreciate the Masons' support and sensitivity toward the needs of the young people of this city.

Tire, Appliance Collections Begin

Responding to a new state solid waste regulation banning tires and major appliances from landfills and incinerators, the city's trash hauler has begun separate collections of tires, refrigerators, washers, dryers and ranges once a month.

During the second full week (the week beginning with the second Monday,) BFI will pick up the aforementioned items curbside on the same day as regular trash collection.

Collections will be done by a separate packer truck and taken to a transfer station in Cambridge for processing so that they may be recycled into other products.

Chinese New Year Celebration Approved

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Quincy residents will get a chance to celebrate the New Year a second time.

The License Board approved a request for a Chinese New Year celebration for Saturday, Feb. 8 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. The celebration is being sponsored by the Chinese Language School of Quincy.

The celebration will feature a "Lion Dance." A request for permission to use firecrackers on New Year's Eve, Feb. 3, and New Year's Day, Feb. 4, was denied at the recommendation of Fire Chief Thomas Gorman.

Peter Jae, principal of the Chinese Language School, told the board that the Lion Dance features a group of about 10 people which visits businesses and performs a dance ritual to bring good fortune for the coming year.

The highlight of the dance is "Plucking The Green" in which the lion "eats" an envelope full of money which is placed over the door. Jae said the proceeds from the dance will go towards expenses for the celebration and to the Chinese Language School. He also told the board he would inform them of the magnitude of the celebration after he finds out how many businesses will be participating.

The Chinese celebrate the Lunar New Year based on the moon. The celebration is also known as the "Spring Festival." Festivities get underway on the eighth day after the last moon of the year until the 15th day of the first moon of the New Year. 1992 will be the Year of the Monkey.

Stooges Cafe Seeking Downtown Move

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The owners of Stooges Cafe want to move their tavern from its present location at 3 School St. towards the center of Quincy Square at 1546 Hancock St.

The move would give Stooges a big increase in the occupancy limit, to 228 persons, and improve the bar's parking situation.

The License Board continued the hearing on the request for two weeks.

The new location would be in the 3,800 sq. ft. building formerly occupied by Posh Beauty Salon. Stooges' entrance would not be on Hancock Street but in an adjacent alley near the Hancock Parking Lot. The vacant Miller's Shoe Store fronts the building.

Police Chief Francis Mullen said he is concerned about adding to existing problems in that area of Hancock Street.

Eileen Cohen, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, said some members have contacted her about the Stooges proposal and are "concerned about security" in the area. Cohen said QCBPA members she spoke with are not against expansion by Stooges.

"I would like to see it as more of a restaurant-type operation," Mullen said. "Increasing the seating and just putting more bodies in there drinking leads to disaster."

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman made a motion to continue the hearing and proposed that the owners of Stooges meet with the QCBPA and formulate better plans in regards to their kitchen operation.

One of the owners of the building, James Markson of Jamark Management Inc., said he has been unable to rent the space for over a year and is facing foreclosure by the bank unless he rents it now.

"The condition of the property is deplorable. This can only improve the situation," Markson said.

Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey said he would favor the move if Chief Mullen has no objections. Mulvey said he is all for filling vacant business space in downtown Quincy.

"Something like this might have a "richochet" effect," Mulvey said. "And help fill some of the adjacent vacant stores."

Mulvey also said vacant stores attract vandalism.

Jeffrey LaPointe, attorney for Stooges, said the move would benefit Quincy Center by moving the tavern away from a busy intersection with no parking and away from two nearby churches.

Sheets Proclaims January 'YMCA Month' In Quincy

January has been proclaimed "YMCA Month" in Quincy by Mayor James Sheets in recognition of the non-profit organization's 100 anniversary this year.

The Articles of Incorporation for the YMCA were filed Jan. 5, 1892. The South Shore YMCA, located at 73 Coddington St., Quincy, is a non-profit organization committed to improving the quality of peoples' lives, serving people of all ages, religions, ethnic origins, and income levels on the entire South Shore and parts of Cape Cod.

The YMCA operates boy and girl resident camps in Sandwich and many programs including Teen Leader's Club, youth sports, English tutorial, water exercise, strength training for handicapped adults; full day and after school child care and more.

In his proclamation, Sheets said the South Shore YMCA through the years "has demonstrated in many ways it acceptance of a role of responsibility in the growth of our community, and this long record of accomplishment deserves public recognition.

On behalf of Quincy's citizens, the mayor extended the city's "highest commendation to the membership, staff and volunteers of the YMCA for the positive and successful programs and policies they have initiated and supported."

To celebrate the Y's 100th anniversary, the South Shore YMCA is planning a host of events throughout 1992.

On Feb. 14, the YMCA will hold a breakfast for YMCA members who have been affiliated with the Y for 10 or more years.

In April, YMCA officials will kick off its annual support campaign and host a Cabaret Dinner with a musical look at the past 100 years. In May, the YMCA will sponsor a Youth Olympics.

The summer months will also be full of celebration activities and events. A basketball extravaganza featuring a re-creation of basketball as it was first played when invented by a YMCA director 100 years ago.

Officials in the Camping Services Division are planning a Camp Reunion Day in July and August at Camps Burgess and Hayward in Sandwich.

The "grand finale" of Celebration '92 will be held Nov. 5 featuring "Up With People."

The South Shore YMCA has three divisions: Quincy, Community Services and Camping Services. The service area includes Quincy, Braintree, Milton, Weymouth, Scituate, Hingham, Cohasset, Norwell, Rockland and Hull as well as the remaining South Shore towns and parts of Cape Cod.

The YMCA first located in 1905 at 61 Washington St., Quincy. In 1955, the new facility was opened at 79 Coddington St.

Over the last 16 years, several facilities were added. In 1976, a women's area was added. Two years later, a new fitness wing was added. In 1984, a 21-station Nautilus center and a day care center opened.

The YMCA operates boys and girls resident camps on a 400-acre camp in Sandwich. Year-round programs, including conferences, adventure training and other non-summer camp activities, also run at this location.

Membership has increased from 500 members in 1955 to more than 9,000 members today. The Y also serves an additional 9,000 children and adults through programs.

There are also more than 200 YMCA volunteers. A volunteer board of directors oversees all policies and activities, and other individuals volunteer in many other ways.

Public Hearing Jan. 21 At City Hall

Residents Concerned Over South Quincy 'Recyclery'

ROBERT BOSWORTH

A proposed recycling center on Penn St. in South Quincy which would boost the city's recycling effort has some area residents concerned about increased vehicular traffic, potential noise and possible odors.

Supporters and opponents of the plan will have an opportunity to comment on the proposal at a public hearing Tuesday, Jan. 21 at 7 p.m. in the City Hall Council Chambers. The Quincy Planning Board was scheduled to discuss the technical aspects of the center Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the second floor conference room of City Hall.

Last November, BFI, the city's waste hauler and recycling firm, unveiled its plans to locate the state's first "recyclery" or recycling center at the vacant Antonelli property, 88 to 106 Penn St., South Quincy.

BFI and some city officials say the center would boost the recycling effort in Quincy by allowing business and apartment dwellers to participate in the city's recycling program.

With the center, businesses and landlords not part of the curbside program could pay BFI to collect recyclables, such as newspaper and glass, at their place of business or apartment dwelling, thereby reducing their waste stream and disposal fees.

As proposed, BFI would first collect paper and cardboard. If BFI's plan is approved, the firm would seek state permits which would allow it to collect glass, plastics and cans, the latter of which are not collected in the current curbside program.

Preliminary plans also call for a drop-off center which would allow Quincy residents to "drop-off" recyclables at no charge.

Besides boosting the city's recycling effort, officials familiar with the plan say the center would generate 20 to 30 full-time jobs. BFI would give South Quincy and other city residents hiring preference.

Since the proposal was unveiled, some residents living near the Antonelli site have expressed opposition and apprehension over the plan, according to Ward 4 Councillor Tom Fabrizio.

Fabrizio, whose ward includes the proposed site, has met with residents regarding the center several times, including Tuesday night at the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association monthly meeting.

Last month, about 60 abutters and other residents voiced their concern at a neighborhood meeting, he said.

Fabrizio said residents are most concerned about increased vehicular traffic, noise on site and any odor generated by the facility.

Fabrizio said "vague traffic counts" have estimated as many as 50 to 70 trucks a day entering and exiting the facility each day. "That count doesn't include any cars from the public going to the drop-off center. It's difficult to determine how much traffic will be generated (by the facility)," Fabrizio said.

Besides traffic, Fabrizio said residents are also wary about any noise and odors created at the facility. Under BFI's plan, the facility will receive, sort and bail recyclables.

BFI intends to do all those operations inside the facility by raising the present building 12 feet from 24 to 36 feet. The operation would be housed in 28,000-square-foot building.

Although the center may be beneficial to the city's recycling effort, Fabrizio said his first concern lies with the residents.

The Grand Hotel

Fr. Daniel Graham had them all smiling — two Bishops, 10 priests, two deacons, family, friends and the overflow crowd that had come to St. John's Sunday to honor Fr. William McCarthy on the 40th anniversary of his ordination.

And he also had them nodding in agreement as he likened St. John's rectory to literature's famed Grand Hotel.

Fr. McCARTHY

No, he didn't mean St. John's rectory is a fancy, swanky place. It is as plain and simple as most rectories.

What he meant was life in St. John's rectory was like life in the Grand Hotel, with all kinds of people with various problems coming and going.

(But at St. John's they get help).

Fr. Graham, now pastor of St. Joseph's Church in Quincy Point, spoke from experience and long-time close-up observation.

Fr. GRAHAM

He spent 12 years with Fr. McCarthy at St. John's as an associate pastor — years he calls "Camelot Years" for a young priest.

Sunday, in a heart-warming homily, he traced the changes in the church, the priesthood, the country and the world over the past four decades.

And, he then affectionately zeroed in on his former boss:

"Someone recently asked me what it was like to be assigned with Fr. McCarthy," he said. "I have given it some serious thought for I was assigned as his associate for 12 years which is more than one half of my years of ordination.

"I would like to tell you that just before Christmas, Fr. Bill Walsh (former Catholic chaplain at Quincy Hospital who lived at St. John's and was on hand Sunday) and I went to New York City to see a Broadway play, "Grand Hotel" which is a musical play that reveals life in a large hotel in Berlin in the 1920's.

"In it there were several characters: the lonely old man who was wealthy but never knew how to be a friend, the young pregnant girl, who was abandoned by her boyfriend. The old ballerina who was afraid of old age and retirement. The young German general who had a drinking problem. All lived in the Grand Hotel — and the melody of music kept pulsing in the background.

"Life in St. John's rectory was a bit like living in Grand Hotel. We never new if we were going to have street people sleeping in our cellar, pregnant teenage girls moving in next door. Food baskets delivered in the Common Room and homeless mothers with children standing in the front parlor. And all the while, Fr. Bill would be singing in the background:

"God will provide, God will provide."

"We come here today to celebrate 40 years of priesthood and service to the church. Fr. Bill has grown in the past 40 years into a new age with enthusiasm and joy.

"He has responded in new ways to the needs of a whole big little world with more colors and smells, more problems and pressures, more anxiety and despair than the Lord Jesus himself experienced.

"It is good for us to rejoice and be glad for this is life in the Grand Hotel. God will provide, Amen, Alleluia, Praise to the Lord."

The day was a beautiful tribute to a deserving People's Priest.

A priest who would literally give you the shirt off his back and if it didn't fit, run out and find one that did.

There were those who wanted to have a big testimonial dinner for him at some big fancy place.

But he said, no. He wanted to keep it simple and easy and at no cost for those who might want to attend.

So the reception was held downstairs in the church with coffee, punch and small pastries.

The important thing to him was the people. They were there because they wanted to be. That's what really counted.

SEAN BARRY is in good condition and in good spirits at Massachusetts General Hospital where his right leg was amputated last Wednesday.

"I'm doing fine — considering," he says. "There have been some good days and some bad days. But I'm upbeat and looking to the future."

SEAN

As previously reported here, Sean had waged a courageous fight since 1986 to save the leg after a bout with cancer.

Sean expects to be at the hospital at least another couple of weeks.

If you would like to drop him a card, or visit (Peter and Judy Kolson were in the other day), he's in Room 626 in the Gray Building. The address is 55 Fruit St., Boston.

Or you can call his room, 726-4916.

It can get to be a long day.

DRINK TO YOUR HEALTH

The evils of alcohol have probably been preached since the first grapes fermented into wine. So it has been with a bit of surprise lately that many in the medical community greeted reports that having two to three drinks a day may actually be good for you. A British study has concluded that such drinking may help protect against serious heart disease. Several other studies in recent years have failed to turn up evidence that moderate alcohol drinking increases risks of cancer or other diseases. The findings have not changed the strong advice, however, that alcohol should not be consumed by pregnant women or people who cannot control the amount they drink.

P.S. Heavy drinking is known to cause many serious health problems, including cirrhosis of the liver and high blood pressure.

You may be surprised at some of the new recommendations doctors have for heart patients today. If you would like to learn more, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE AT 472-2550. We are dedicated to the compassionate and caring practice of medicine. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24, in Quincy. Norfolk County Legion Oratorical Contest Sunday

The announcement was made by Commander Mary Timcoe of District Six.

High school students must memorize their speech and present it orally. The presentation topic must be about some part of the United States Constitution and be between eight and ten minutes in length.

Those who are successful move on to the next competition and winners go on to the national finals and could win scholarship money of $12,000 to $18,000.

Information on the contest is available at local schools. Norfolk County Chairman Henry Bradley will conduct the program this year.

homeless, poor and elderly.

He also congratulated the other 33 nominees and thanked the readers and panel for participating in this year's award selection.

"Again this year we have many outstanding and deserving nominees. To be nominated is an honor in itself because the nominations are made by residents in the community who recognize hard-working, dedicated people."

Besides Quincy, readers from several other South Shore towns as well as from Pennsylvania, North Carolina and Virginia submitted nomination ballots.

Kearns will be honored at a reception hosted by the Sun at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center in March.

His community activism is quite remarkable, considering his "second career" in local affairs and civic causes did not began until after he retired as a postal clerk at the South Boston Annex in 1977. He worked for the post office 37 years.

Retired professionally and 65 years old, Kearns set out to find out "what made the city tick" and make the most of his post-retirement years by helping others.

"When I retired, not having anything to do and not knowing anyone in Quincy, I decided to find out what makes this city tick. I started attending City Council meetings, then License Board meetings and then public hearings," he explained.

In 1980, Kearns got his first "break" in his new career when he was appointed to the Quincy Council on Aging by former Mayor Arthur Tobin. In later years, he has been reappointed by former Mayor Francis McCauley and Mayor James Sheets.

Kearns's first appointment "opened the door" for other opportunities to serve the community. In fact, over the last 12 years, he has been appointed or named to 15 community assistance groups and organizations, all of which he continues to serve on.

In 1981, Kearns was appointed to the South Shore Elder Services' Board of Directors as the Council on Aging's representative. "South Shore Elder Services takes care of the elderly and has four nutrition sites in Quincy," he says, adding SSES is also involved in home care and ombudsman programs in Quincy and 10 towns.

In 1982, Kearns was appointed to Quincy Community Action as then Ward 5 Councillor's Stephen McGrath's representative. As treasurer of QCA's Southwest Community Center, Kearns helps the organization feed 600 poor families a month as well as provide fuel assistance and housing for the elderly and poor.

In 1986, Kearns was appointed a commissioner of the Quincy Housing Authority by McCauley. He was reappointed to a five-year term last February by Sheets.

Kearns and the four other commissioners oversee the operation of the QHA which has 2,500 units for families and the elderly.

Other organizations Kearns is affiliated with include Quincy Fair Housing Board, Quincy City Club, Citizens Housing and Planning Association, Inter-Agency Council of South Shore, Quincy Citizens Association, Quincy Housing and Development Association, American Association of Retired Persons (Quincy and national chapters); National Association of Retired Federal Employees and Quincy Historical Society.

In addition, Kearns is a Norfolk County deputy sheriff and a former Silver Hair legislator representing the Norfolk County senatorial district.

Since his first appointment 12 years ago, Kearns has found out much more than what makes the city tick. He's become an integral part of many community organizations and worthwhile civic causes.

His approach to community service is modest and unpretentious. Whether he's representing the elderly at an important meeting or giving food commodities from his car trunk to a hungry street dweller, Kearns is always there to lend a helping hand.

"You try to help people, that's the main thing," he says, pausing briefly. "You know there's more poor out there than there were in the 1940s and 50s. Even after the depression there's more people who are poor and hungry, especially with people losing their jobs. It's tough out there."

Kearns, who will turn 80 years old Sept. 30, shows no signs of slowing down. "I'm out of the house at 6 a.m. I go to Mass and then the (Sheraton) Tara health club for a swim. Then I make my rounds."

Kearns has never refused to help any group. Nor has he ever given it a thought.

"I never say no to anyone. There is only yes. This is terrific. I love helping people. There is nothing else for me to do in my life except to help people.

"I've lived a full life."

Originally from Charlestown, Kearns is a 1932 graduate of Boston Latin High School and a 1936 graduate of Boston College where he received a BS in science.

In 1939, he moved to Quincy after marrying the late Mary C. Hynes. They were married 48 years until she passed away in 1988.

Kearns has one daughter, Mary Lou Dewar, who lives in Thousand Oaks, California; and three grandchildren.

Don't Shut Out Expelled Students

(The following letter was submitted to The Quincy Sun for publication)

Open Letter to the Quincy School Committee:

Being a school committeeperson in 1992 means dealing with inadequate funding of school programs in an age of cutbacks. Public schools still serve the same mission; the education of the city's young people so that they can cope with the world ahead waiting for them.

However, one issue; the issue of violence and dangerous weapons within the city's public schools must be dealt with in a viable manner. Should students be expelled for the possession of dangerous weapons? Recently that did happen and the end result is at-home tutoring for these law breaking students at huge financial expense to taxpayers and school parents.

Somehow, providing at-home tutoring for those expelled doesn't deal with consequences faced by students who bring guns or knives to school. Is at-home tutoring a punishment or reward and why should students segregated from the whole student body be provided such individual tutoring services?

Personally, schools should not become penal colonies and denying students and parents access to the city's public schools isn't going to solve the problem of violence or correcting those young folks.

Students considered trouble-makers are still students, still part of the future generation. We need to get them back on track and part of the learning process again. The school system should not allow anyone to rot. All must know that swift and fair punishment will be given all who break the rules but this "throw away the key" attitude toward Quincy's public school pupils in the long run will cost more.

Students caught with weapons on school property can not go unchallenged but we shouldn't close the door on their educational future because if we do, what has anyone gained? Everyone concerned is lesser for it.

Don't call me a bleeding heart, I voted for Nixon over McGovern, Reagan over Mondale, etc. But sometimes officials have to see beyond the immediate and the consequences of their own actions too.

Weapons of any sort hardly belong in out city schools, but whatever happened to common sense from our school administrators and elected officials?

Father Grateful For Concern Over FR Bridge

(The following letter was submitted to The Quincy Sun for publication).

To the people of the Quincy and the South Shore:

I wish to say thank you for your help and concern to make the Fore River Bridge safe for our children in the future. Although they (the state) have done some of the things they had promised to do they have not yet finished the job. And until they do I will never be satisfied nor will my son rest in peace.

To all the South Shore I say thank you from the bottom of my heart because of you the hate is beginning to subside.

So I make this promise to you and too my son and his memory I will do my best to make the City of Quincy and the Fore River Bridge as safe as possible.

I would like to also say thank you to Ted DeCristofaro for all his help in this fight for safety. I am very proud to say I have found a politician who is concerned and fights hard for us in the City of Quincy; a man, I believe, who is honest and caring.

I am so very proud that I had the chance to vote for a man like him. It's a shame that there are not more like him that could be put in office. Thank you Ted and God bless you.

Hearty Soups

Lentil, Green Pea

This past week our family enjoyed two kinds of hearty soups, lentil and pea soups. Both have almost the same ingredients added except the pea soup usually requires a ham bone. Here are the recipes for both.

LENTIL SOUP

1 Package of lentils
2 boullion cubes (or soup stock)
1 small onion (chopped)
1 garlic clove (minced)
1 celery stalk (chopped)
salt and pepper to taste
1 cup tomato sauce (optional)
grated cheese

Wash lentils and cook according to directions. Add all the other ingredients and bring to a boil and simmer covered for at least an hour and a half. Serve with sprinkled grated cheese if desired. When my mother used to serve it, she used pieces of hard bread and then we poured the lentil soup over that and added the grated cheese. But this soup is delicious eaten plain also.

GREEN PEA SOUP

about a quart and a half of water leftover ham bone
1 package dried green peas stalk of celery (chopped)
1 onion (chopped)
salt and pepper to taste
2 boullion cubes (optional)
an extra can of peas (also optional)

In a large pan, bring all the ingredients to a boil, cover and simmer for at least two hours or until peas are softened. Add the extra can of peas if desired. Remove the ham from the bone and add it to the soup. If you want a thicker soup, add a couple of tablespoons of flour or dried instant mashed potatoes. Both soups can be made ahead of time and stored in the refrigerator for several days.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

There is an old Dutch proverb which states, "an ounce of patience is worth a pound of brains."

To do swiftly what seems to need doing is good because this is a part of the business of survival. But to act too swiftly, without even an instant's reflection, is not good. The lower animals act swiftly; they do not meditate. Sometimes they survive, but often they hurl themselves into traps.

If we claim to be higher animals, we must practice a little reasoning, a little reflection, for these are said to be virtues which set us above other animals. It is good to remember the statement that has come down to us from an ancient Chinese sage: "One moment of patience may ward off great disaster, one moment of impatience may ruin a whole life."

A Few Words on FUNERAL SERVICE

Free literature on funerals

Many residents of our community have found our literature helpful in learning more about funerals and pre-planning.

Why pre-plan a funeral? First, you can make decisions and choices, yourself, with full composure instead of during grieving and emotional stress. Second, you need not "overspend." You should select only that service, casket, and those touches which you feel are important.

That beloved Scripture passage or special hymn, the minister whose understanding and compassion you so admire — all can be part of your service.

For those times when the darkness lingers

With the loss of a loved one through death, it is helpful to be able to share the feelings and emotions which we all experience.

For most of us, there are family members, clergy, and friends who are ready to listen in a caring way.

Yet, there are those who find it helpful to share their grief with someone outside their immediate circle of support.

Because of our continuing commitment to the families we serve, Keohane Funeral Service is pleased to announce that Dr. Sherry Johnson has joined our staff as a Grief Counselor. Her educational background, professional experience and understanding manner can be particularly helpful.

We are the first funeral home in New England to offer the service of a Grief Counselor.

Bellot led North with 18 points and Flynn finished up with 12. North led at the half, 22-19.

"The Eastern Mass. Tournament is open to everyone this year, despite a team's record, but I am aiming to win at least 12 games, the minimum number to qualify in the past," North coach Ted Stevenson said. "We just missed the past few years."

Hockey

North Skates By B-R, 5-3

The North Quincy hockey team defeated Bridgewater-Raynham, 5-3, last Saturday to improve its record to 5-3 (3-2 in the Old Colony League).

The Red Raiders faced Quincy last night (Wednesday), will host Plymouth Saturday at 8 p.m. and will be home to Silver Lake next Wednesday night at 6:40.

Dave Pacino scored North's first goal against Bridgewater-Raynham with Andrew Vermette and Matt Riley assisting. Sean Vermette scored the second goal with an assist for Jim Carinci and Jim Sapienza scored the next goal with Pacino getting the assist.

Mike Christopherson scored the tie-breaking goal with Dave DesRoche and Riley assisting and Riley scored an insurance goal unassisted.

Dennis Ruggere had an excellent game in goal for North.

Earlier in the week North lost to Weymouth, 4-2.

Sapienza had a goal with Sean Vermette assisting and Vermette scored the second goal to tie the score at 2-2 but Weymouth then scored twice to clinch the win.

Junior goalie Sean Conley had an outstanding game for North, making several sensational saves. Weymouth peppered him with shots in the opening period.

"This is going to be a real dog fight for the league title," said North coach Tom Benson. "Anyone of several teams has a chance and it looks like everything will be one-and-two-goal games in the league. I expect we will be in every game but no one has really stepped forward yet to be the league's best. Offense has been a bit of a problem for us. I'm happy with the effort, but we still need to buy a few goals. Our defense is strong and Ruggere and Conley have been doing a fine job in goal."

Track

North Wins Second Straight

The North Quincy boys' track team won its second straight meet with a victory over Silver Lake to improve to 2-2.

Senior John O'Connell had a big day with wins in the high jump and 300 and led off the winning 4x176 relay team.

Scott Kohler continues to improve in the shot put and won with a 41-6 1/2 toss. A pleasant surprise was sophomore Josh Walty, who came from last place to nearly steal the race in the 1,000, coming in right beside North veteran Josh O'Donnell, the winner.

The meet was decided in the mile relay and the team of Marc Sinclair, O'Donnell, Mike Yee and Jeremy Gott was never challenged, tying its seasonal best of 3:54.7.

North was scheduled to face Bridgewater-Raynham Tuesday and a win would guarantee its first .500 season in nearly 10 years.

North's other winners were Tony Licciardi in the 50, Yee in the hurdles, Eric Torvi in the mile, and the 4x176 relay team of O'Donnell, Marc Larson, Chris Murray and Licciardi.

Placing third were Murray in the 50, Larson in the hurdles, Gott in the 600, Jason Carson in the mile, Greg Buck in the two-mile and Kevin Price in the high jump.

North Girls' Depth Pays Off

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy girls' track team's depth paid off with several valuable second and third place finishes to defeat Silver Lake, 48-43, and improve its record to 3-1.

Heather Rendle was North's standout and was put to the test by Silver Lake's Kerri Crosby in the high jump. Both girls cleared five feet but Rendle was declared the winner with fewer misses. Rendle nearly came back to clear 5-2 but just nicked the bar with her heels.

"We needed a good performance to stay close and Heather delivered," coach Geoff Hennessy said. "Her clutch jump last spring turned the momentum around for North in a win over the Lakers."

Christine Herman has her best time in the hurdles, finishing a close third. "The three Laker hurdlers were much better than ours, but our kids dug down deep and came up with personal bests," said Hennessy. Herman's finish moved North to a point from victory and the relay team of Melanie Gaziano, Karen Leary, Ilana Cobban and Suzanne Lewis ran away to clinch the victory.

North's other winners were Amy Wong in the 50, Gaziano in the 1,000, Lewis in the mile and Erin Duggan in the two mile.

Finishing second were Susanne Hamilton in the 300, Cobban in the 600, Katie McNamara in the mile and Trisha McNamara in the shot put.

Third place finishers were Katy Deady in the 50, Jen Nutley in the 300, Sonia Olmedo in the 1,000, Kristy Kabilian in the two-mile and Anh Ho in the shot put.

Lewis placed sixth in the two-mile in the recent Dartmouth Relays. She raced to a personal best 11:47.4 and was the first girl from Massachusetts to finish.

Sophomore Duggan qualified for the states, running a 12:50.3 in the unseeded section. Wong turned in fast times in the 55 meter (7.30 and 7.33), but was eliminated in the semifinal in a photo finish. She had the seventh best time overall.

Teams from all over the Eastern U.S. and Canada competed in the meet.

The Con Artist

The clever con artist is a good actor who disarms his victim with an affable "nice guy" approach. But behind this friendly exterior is a shrewd psychologist who can isolate potential victims and break down their resistance to his proposals. Reach conquest is part of a game in which he must "best" his fellow man.

The typical con artist is amoral - but seldom violent, and mobile, with an excellent sense of timing. He sincerely believes his victims deserve their fate. And, if caught, he'll probably strike again later. Con artists are seldom rehabilitated.

The Victim:

Anyone can be a victim - even a person who considers himself too intelligent or sophisticated to be "conned". During the 1920's, "Yellow Kid" Weil routinely swindled bankers, saying "that's where the money is." Many victims share certain characteristics. Often, but not always, they are older, female and live along. They are trusting of others - even strangers - and may need or desire supplemental income. Loneliness, willingness to help and a sense of charity are characteristics a con artist will exploit to gain a victims cooperation.

The con artist ultimately will exploit his victim's assets - including life insurance benefits, pensions, or annuities, "nest eggs," home equity, or other tangible property. And he'll usually obtain the willing cooperation of his victim to complete the scheme.

Key Words:

An can artist is difficult to detect by looks alone. But you can often spot him by his words or expressions, including:

Cash only. - Why is cash necessary for a proposed transaction? Why not a check?

Secret Plans - Why are you being asked not to tell anyone?

Get Rick Quick - Any scheme should be carefully investigated.

Something for Nothing - A 'retired' swindler once said that any time you are promised something for nothing, you usually get nothing.

Contests - Make sure they aren't a 'come-on' to draw you into a money-losing scheme.

Haste - Be wary of any pressure that you must act immediately or lose out.

Today Only - if something is worthwhile and available today, it's likely to be available tomorrow.

Too Good To Be True - Such a scheme is probably not good or true.

Last Chance - If it's a chance worth taking, why is it offered on such short notice?

Left-Over Material - Left-over material might also be stolen or defective.

Next Week Part II.

Concerns Raised Over South Quincy Recycling

(Cont'd from Page 3)

"It has to be looked upon as a business going in a residential neighborhood. The issue can get clouded because it's recycling . First and foremost it's a business going into a neighborhood and that has to be addressed first," Fabrizio said, adding "this is not a referendum for or against recycling."

Although there are some homes in close proximity to the proposed site, the land is zoned industrial. The property once was used for minor mill work. It became idle several years ago.

After its meeting Wednesday night, the Planning Board may make a recommendation supporting or opposing the proposal to the City Council.

After next Tuesday's public hearing, Fabrizio said he expects to call for a vote on the proposal at the council's next meeting, Monday, Feb. 3.

Although the site is zoned industrial, BFI needs special permit from the City Council to operate the facility. The special permit is needed since the use entails waste recovery. Therefore, a two-third votes is required (6 votes of the full nine-member council) to approve the project.

To Take Position With Utah DOT

City Advertising For Traffic Engineer Vacancy

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

With 17 days left before the application deadline, newspaper advertisements for a new traffic engineer had yielded just two applications as of Tuesday morning, according to the city's personnel director.

Several weeks ago, Traffic Engineer David Kinnecom announced his resignation effective Jan. 31. Kinnecom, who was appointed the city's traffic engineer by former Mayor Francis McCauley in September, 1987, will become an engineering supervisor in the state of Utah's Department of Transportation.traffic and safety division Sheets said the city will have a difficult time replacing Kinnecom. "It will be tough to replace David. David has done a superb job. We're losing him at a bad time," he said.

The new traffic engineer, whomever he or she is, will have their hands full almost immediately. The intersection at Quincy Shore Dr. and East Squantum St. is expected to be reconstructed sometime this spring or summer. Other projects needing traffic engineering work in the not too distant future may be the Old Colony commuter rail station in Quincy Center and east-west crossway connector from Route 3A to the Burgin Parkway.

The city began advertising for the position in area newspapers over the weekend. As of Tuesday morning, two applicants had replied, according to Personnel Director Kathy Yaeger.

Yaeger said one of the applicants is from Quincy. She said the Quincy applicant does not work for the city.

With unemployment high and a salary which pays in the low to mid 40s, the traffic engineer vacancy is almost sure to attract more applicants. Deadline to submit resumes is Friday, Jan. 31.

Responsibilities include design, operation and maintenance of city traffic signals, signs, pavement markings, parking meters and city parking garage. Candidates must have a B.S. in civil, electrical or traffic engineering along with a minimum of four years of relevant traffic engineering experience, including at least two years in management or supervisory experience.

Sheets and Yaeger hope a new traffic engineer is hired as soon as possible, perhaps by March 1. Yaeger said the hiring time depends in part on the number of applications the city receives.

After Jan. 31, applicants will be interviewed. Yaeger will forward the names of two or three applicants with her recommendations to the mayor for consideration. Sheets will then make the decision.

Sheets, who will freeze or eliminate funding for 30 municipal positions in an effort to save approximately $1 million during FY 93, said eliminating the traffic engineer is not feasible.

"We have to have a traffic engineer. Eliminating the traffic engineer would be like taking the navigator out of an airplane. David Kinnecom saved us a lot of money and solved us a lot of problems."

The city does not have an assistant traffic engineer. Prior to Kinnecom's appointment, the city's planning department or a private contractor performed the traffic engineer's responsibilities.

Two Memorial Masses, Prayer Service Planned

A Year Later Pain Remains For Families Of 3 Fire Victims

By MICHAEL WHALEN

They say that time heals all wounds, but in some cases, wounds can take a long, long time to heal.

Such is the case of the Cortez family of 85 Mears Ave. in Houghs Neck and the Wall family of 18 Empire St. in Germantown, who lost three members on Jan. 24, 1991 in a fire at the Cortez home caused by a space heater that was pushed up against a bed.

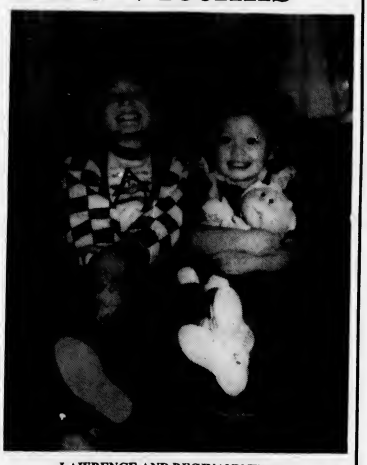
Victims of the blaze were 25-year-old Margarita Cortez, her four-year-old nephew, Lawrence "Buddy" Wall, and his two-year-old sister, Reginann. The children died the evening of the fire--Buddy from smoke inhalation and Reginann from burns--and their aunt died two days later of both smoke inhalation and burns she suffered in the blaze.

It is for these reasons that two memorial Masses will be celebrated in memory of the victims. The first will be Friday at 9 a.m. and the second will be Sunday at 10:30 a.m., both at Most Blessed Sacrament Church in Houghs Neck.

In addition, a prayer service will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. at the Cortez home.

The house, which has been completely rebuilt--an estimated $120,000 damage was caused by the fire--stands tall and proud and strong, perhaps in tribute to the numerous friends, relatives and neighbors who donated their time, money and building materials to see that the repairs were made as quickly as possible. Yet inside the house live the family members whose memories still linger and whose hearts still ache a year after the loss of their loved ones.

Twenty-one-year-old Herminigilda Cortez (known to friends as "Hilda") is the youngest of the Cortez children and the only one who still lives with her parents, Herminio and Lovinda, in their Mears Avenue home. She said she feels that under the circumstances, her family has been quite strong in dealing with the tragedy.



LAWRENCE AND REGINANN WALL

MARGARITA CORTEZ

"I think we've coped very well," she said. "We lived through Thanksgiving, we lived through Christmas, and we lived through New Year's. But the hardest one of all will be the anniversary date (of the fire)."

Cortez said everyone in her house has dealt with their loss in an individual way.

"My mother almost never goes out," she said. "Day in, day out she's here, except when she occasionally goes shopping. And my father doesn't talk about it (the deaths) at all. He works many hours, from early in the day to late at night. He still feels guilty about what happened."

(Herminio Cortez, who was the only other family member at home on the night of the fire, tried in vain to help rescue the others. He spent several days in intensive care at Quincy Hospital because of this courageous act. Both he and his wife refused to be interviewed for this story).

As for herself, Hilda Cortez said there were a number of people who helped her cope with her own sorrow.

"I consulted a priest because I was having trouble believing in God," she said. "He told me I would have to try to find it in my heart why He did what He did, and that this would make me closer to God. I also saw a psychiatrist for two months. I felt really guilty and was blaming myself, saying 'If only I had been home.' He (the psychiatrist) basically made me understand it wasn't my fault.

"But it was mainly my friends, like Laurie Vanelli, who gave me the most support. I can talk to Laurie. She told me, 'I'm going to be your big sister now. I'm going to be Magga for you.'"

Vanelli, a close friend of the entire family, said she tried to help them as much as possible after Hilda's sister "Magga" and the two children were killed.

"I feel like I'm taking over Magga's place, because Magga was always telling Hilda how to do the right things, and 5,000 More Residents Than U.S. Counted?

Door-To-Door City Census Starts Monday

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The city will be conducting a door-to-door census starting Monday in North Quincy and Squantum.

City Clerk John Gillis said he thinks there are about 5,000 more people living in Quincy than was reported by the 1990 federal census.

The U.S. Bureau of Census reported last March that Quincy had 84,985 residents--up 242 from the 1984 census. The 1985 Massachusetts State Census counted 88,122 Quincy residents.

Gillis said he believes the federal census was incorrect and may have missed members of Quincy's Asian population.

The city will hire census workers, including residents of Asian descent, to go door-to-door. Gillis said the cost of the census would be about $25,000.

The census will take six weeks (one week per ward). After completing Ward 6 workers will canvass Ward 5 beginning Feb. 3; Ward 4, Feb. 10; Ward 3, Feb. 17; Ward 2, Feb. 24; and Ward 1, March 2. Census workers will wear identification badges with the city seal, Gillis said.

"We hope the people will open their doors to the census takers so we can get an accurate count," Gillis said.

The census workers will work Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Sundays from 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Robert Brennan, head of Quincy's Data Processing Department, said forms will be printed this week for census takers to use. Census workers will verify current residents and add new residents and delete any who have moved.

Gillis said the city does its own census on a regular basis but normally by mail.

"We usually do a mailing but recently it has not been that successful," he said.

The 1990 U.S. Bureau of Census counted 77,915 white residents, 928 black, 5,577 Asian or Pacific Islander. The census listed 358 people of "other race."

Quincy ranked ninth in Massachusetts in population just behind Fall River and ahead of Newton.

Census figures are used by some federal agencies in determining grants and aid. The numbers are also used to determine state and federal legislative districts and the number of electoral votes a state has.

Gillis said if the Quincy census shows a higher population it will not change the official federal figure but it could help the city at the time of the next federal census.

"We'll be able to show them that they were wrong next time," Gillis said.

Firefighters Help Mother Save Infant Son

Two Quincy firefighters helped a young mother save the life of her infant son after the baby stopped breathing Tuesday evening.

Donna Correia of Federal Ave., South Quincy, was feeding her one-month-old son Justin Garofalo Tuesday evening when the baby stopped breathing after choking on some formula, said Deputy Fire Chief Joseph Walsh.

After a brief yet futile attempt to clear the infant's windpipe and restore the baby's breathing, Correia called the fire department at 10:11 p.m. "She was very panicky," Walsh said.

Firefighter Robert Shea received the 911 emergency call and fellow Firefighter Peter Lindblom alertly picked up the same line. Shea and Lindblom are both emergency medical technicians and are trained to respond to medical emergencies.

"When I got the call, the baby was choking and not breathing at all. I told her to do four back blows because you can't do the Heimlich Maneuver on a baby. She did the back blows and the baby threw up. The baby then began crying and started breathing again," Shea explained.

"She calmed down after that."

While Shea coached Correia, Lindblom dispatched Rescue One to the scene. He also asked the mother if there was someone in the house who could stand outside the house and "flag down" the emergency vehicle.

Within two minutes, Rescue One arrived. An ambulance also arrived. The baby, who was now breathing again, was taken to Quincy Hospital for observation.

The baby was brought to a physician for further observation Tuesday.

Lindblom, 35, of Weymouth, has been a Quincy firefighter for more than four years. Shea, 36 and a resident of Hull, has been on the department for three years.

Tuesday was the first time Shea had worked the night shift. It was also the first time he had received an emergency call.

"The guys did a great job coaching her and saving the baby's life. They did a great job," Walsh said.

MWRA Provides More Space At Staging Area For Quincy Fire Dept.

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority has provided the Quincy Fire Department additional space at the Fore River Staging Area to store and maintain their vehicles.

In April, 1989, the MWRA granted Quincy a five-year license allowing the city's fire department to use a single bay at the FRSA to service and repair fire trucks. The fire department, which lacks indoor maintenance facilities, will now be able to use more space within the same building at the FRSA at no cost to Quincy.

"The MWRA is more than happy to accommodate the needs of the Quincy Fire Department," said MWRA Director Paul Levy. "We strive to maintain an amiable and cooperative relationship with Quincy and hope it will continue that way."

Black's Creek Clean-Up Planned By Youth Council

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The Quincy Youth Council is planning a clean up of the Black's Creek area.

The council recently formed committees to work on projects such as the environment and planning teen social activities.

"We have called the MDC to see about cleaning up the Black's Creek area," said Michael D'Amico, Youth Council co-director.

"David Flaherty (Ward 3 Youth Councillor) has been recruiting Quincy High School students to help clean up debris," D'Amico said.

Members of the council's Environmental Awareness Committee include Flaherty, Angela Chabot and Kelli Langille. The committee is chaired by Francis Derwin, a resident of Tobin Towers, 80 Clay St., who is President of the Civilian Conservation Corps., Chapter 60.

Derwin has stated that he wants the schools to provide environmental awareness programs as an extra-curricular activity and as part of the school curriculum. Derwin and the Youth Council will work together to gather support for the idea.

The Function Planning and Social Committee will organize youth forums and activities such as dances. The council wants to provide Quincy youngsters with positive leisure alternatives.

Committee members are Jacob Drohan, Jill Fishman, Andrew Kramer and Erin Flaherty.

The Youth Council also has established a Fund Raising Committee whose purpose is to raise money for council projects.

Committee members are Jeffrey Earnest, Steve Parsley and Marcia Malone.

Montclair Men's Club Donates Over $54,000

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

When the Montclair Men's Club officially closed its doors in December, 1989, the civic-social institution left behind a legacy of community involvement, fellowship and service.

Now, more than two years later, members of that defunct group have added to that legacy by making a donation of more than $54,000 to the city of Quincy. In addition, the contribution was allocated into two trust funds so that North Quincy boys and girls will benefit from the fund for years to come.

The money, which members recently presented to Mayor James Sheets, will be divided for two purposes. One fund in the amount of $27,000 will be used to offset athletic fees at North Quincy High School. The second fund will be used for improvements and maintenance to Bishop Field, located at Holbrook Rd. and Small St. adjacent to the Montclair School.

According to James Kelley, an original member and past president of the club, $2,000 of the trust funds' principal plus interest accrued will be distributed from the two funds each year. The city's park department will determine how the Bishop Field fund is spent and the school committee will earmark the athletic fee revenue, he said.

Kelley noted the athletic fee trust fund will be beneficial in these trying economic times. Cutbacks in athletic budgets have forced fees for some sports to more than $60.

Kelley and Joseph Gildea, another original member and past president, said the members met and voted to set up the two trust funds. The athletic fees and Bishop Field improvements were targeted because members wanted to money to benefit Montclair youngsters and the community.

"We wanted to do something for Montclair. We wanted to help the kids and the community and combine those causes if we could," Kelley said.

"It will help the boys and girls of Montclair who play sports at North Quincy High School and keep up Bishop Field," Gildea added. Each trust fund has been set up to last as many as 15 to 17 years, Kelley said.

The funds are the result of the sale of the clubhouse and property in Montclair. Remaining revenue generated by the sale went to attorney's fees, sales taxes and other taxes and miscellaneous debts, Gildea said.

"We were left with a clean bill of health. We paid up everything," he said.

In addition to the two trust funds, the men's club has also donated $2,500 for a historical lamppost in Quincy Center.

The trust funds and lamppost expenditure are only the latest in the club's long list of community services, fellowship and achievements during its 40-plus years of existence.

When the Wollaston Golf Club moved, members led the fight to locate another golf course there (Presidents Golf Course) and keep the area surrounding the course open space.

Members were also responsible for brighter sodium vapor lights along West Squantum St.

Of course, the club was synonymous with sports. Gildea's "Sports Nights" and "Award Dinners" attracted some of the greatest names in sports, including Bobby Orr, John Havlicek, Gino Cappelletti and Bobby Doerr.

In fact, sports is the main root in the club's history.

The Montclair Men's Club began with men playing baseball at Bishop Field and as a baseball team in the Park League. Those associated with the team rented the Montclair Improvement Association building for meetings and decided to call their organization the Montclair Men's Club.

The organization started Sept. 12, 1946 and received its club charter almost a year later on Sept. 24, 1947.

In the early years, the club was very active. Weekly dances were held, and bowling leagues flourished; sell-out crowds attended the mammoth sports nights held at North Quincy High School and the clubhouse. In its hey days, the club boasted more than 300 members, all of whom lived or had a relative who lived in Montclair.

But in December, 1989, the club was forced to close its door because of low membership and rising taxes and costs to operate and maintain the building.

And although the members were taken out of the club, the club couldn't be taken out of the members. To this day, members still remain close, getting together for social functions and card games.

"There is still a tremendous friendship among the members today," Gildea said.

And with the club's two trust funds, that friendship will continue and a new generation of Montclair residents and youngsters will benefit from the club's legacy.

MONTCLAIR MEN'S CLUB officers present a check for more than $54,000 to Mayor James Sheets. The money will be used to offset athletic fees at North Quincy High School and improvements to Bishop Field in Montclair. Making the presentation are, from left, Edward Adams, past president; George Olson, past president; Richard Post, financial secretary; William Connelly, treasurer; Mayor Sheets; James Kelley, recording secretary; and Joseph Gildea, past president.

Two Traffic Changes In North Quincy Implemented

Two traffic changes, one involving a signal operation and the other a conversion from a one-way to a two-way street, have been implemented in North Quincy, announces the Quincy Traffic and Parking Department.

At the intersection of Hancock St., East Squantum and West Squantum Sts., the traffic signal operation has been changed to facilitate left turns by northbound drivers on Hancock St. Northbound traffic on Hancock St. now has an advanced green signal indicated by a green left arrow.

The change was made to reduce traffic accidents at the intersection.

Motorists in North Quincy are also advised that Fayette St. has been changed to a two-way street between West Squantum St. and Holbrook Rd. only. Fayette St. remains a one-way street south of Holbrook Rd.

No parking at any time is in effect on the east side of Fayette St. between Holbrook Rd. and West Squantum St.

Rabies May Enter State Early This Year

A mid-Atlantic strain of rabies carried by raccoons is expected to enter Massachusetts early this year, according to the state Department of Food and Agriculture's Division of Animal Health.

There were some 200 cases of raccoon rabies in western Connecticut last year.

In an advisory issued recently, Mabel Owen, state director of Animal Health, notified cities and towns that all dogs must be licensed and strongly recommended that house cats also be vaccinated.

According to state law, all dogs, six months or older, must be licensed in Massachusetts. Proof of rabies vaccination must be provided before a license will be issued.

"Every traditional method of rabies protection must be complied with fully. A thoroughly vaccinated dog population will provide a butter between infected wildlife and people. Rabies in human is a fatal disease," Owen said.

Officials also advise against attempting to feed or handle any wild animal, such as raccoons, especially those behaving abnormally. Anyone observing abnormal behavior in a wild animal should contact their city or town animal officer.

Some cities and towns will be conducting vaccination clinics offering low-cost inoculations. For more information, contact the Division of Animal Health at 617-727-3018, ext. 165 or 162.

VISUAL DEFECT MAY CAUSE DYSLEXIA

A team of Harvard scientists has found new evidence to support the theory that dyslexia is not just a behavioral or emotional problem, but may be caused by brain defects. As many as four or five percent of Americans struggle with dyslexia, a common learning disability that affects language usage and reading. The disability often results in severe learning difficulties. The Harvard researchers concluded that several different brain defects impair vision and hearing in dyslexics. This would mean that dyslexic children start having problems processing what they see and hear in a normal, organized way even before they start to speak. The new findings could lead to earlier diagnosis of dyslexia.

P.S. President Woodrow Wilson, Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and General George Patton were all dyslexic.

Guns And Tutors

Should two Quincy High School students expelled for carrying guns be provided tutoring as their right to an education?

The state Department of Education says "Yes."

The Quincy School Committee — a majority four members — says "No."

The question appears to be headed to court for a final answer.

Meanwhile, I don't know about you but I find myself leaning toward the four School Committee members who voted against providing tutoring for the two 15-year-olds.

The estimated cost of tutoring them for the remainder of this school year is $6,000.

Now, $6,000 really isn't a lot of money.

But why should taxpayers have to come up with even $6 for private tutors for any students who indicate they apparently aren't interested in education or living by the rules.

It's not just the money. It's also the principle of the thing.

But Sandra Moody, acting general counsel for the state Department of Education says Massachusetts communities are obliged to provide an education for every child under 16.

And, says she, kids who cause trouble and don't belong in school buildings, must be provided tutoring.

But this apparently is a board policy — not a law and has not been tested in court.

Moody wants to take Quincy to court over this. And Quincy apparently is ready to go. It would be a precedent-setting case that other communities would be closely watching.

There's got to be an argument with the thinking that every troublemaker expelled from school is then automatically entitled to private tutoring.

Why should taxpayers have to pick up that tab? And what makes anyone think that troublemakers who don't pay attention to their teachers will pay any attention to tutors? Providing tutors won't automatically give them an education because they won't automatically be tuned in.

School officials don't cherish coming down hard on young people who make mistakes. But young people have got to learn that there are do's and don'ts out there and if they choose to go with don'ts, there's a penalty that goes with it.

People are getting a little tired of the misfits in life — young and adult — who thumb their nose at society, get caught and then expect society to bail them out.

As far as schools are concerned, aren't the other students entitled to rights and consideration? Shouldn't they have the right to feel safe in a classroom without fear someone in the next seat or behind them has a loaded gun in his pocket?

Mayor James Sheets, who is chairman of the School Committee and one of the four who voted against providing tutoring in the gun case, said it for a lot of parents when he observed:

SHEETS

"I would have difficulty if I send my son to high school and I don't know if the kid next to him has a gun or not. I think it's deplorable."

Most kids today want an education and are working at it. But it isn't easy.

Sometimes they have to put up with classroom clowns, jokers and malcontents who are just occupying space and grudgingly putting in their time waiting to get to 16 so they can quit school.

But the kids who want to learn shouldn't have to put up with guns, knives or any kind of weapon. Or with kids who carry these weapons.

RAYMONDI

MARIANO

School Committee members Frank Santoro, Daniel Raymondi — an attorney — and Ronald Mariano joined Sheets in voting against the tutoring.

COLLINS

DURKIN

STICE

Vice Chairwoman Mary Collins, Steve Durkin — an attorney — and Linda Stice voted to abide by the state Department of Education's policy that expelled students under 16 should be provided with tutors.

"These are Quincy children," said Stice, a newcomer to the committee, "and like it or not ... they are our responsibility and that's not a responsibility we should wash our hands of."

True. But we also have a responsibility to the kids who don't get in trouble.

Collins notes a court case could be costly to the city.

Maybe. Maybe not.

But it might be worth it.

Right now, according to the state Department of Education, every expelled student under 16 is entitled to private tutoring. If they are too troublesome to be in school, give them a tutor.

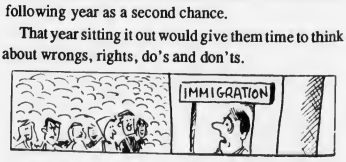
That's almost like giving them a reward for fouling up.

Out of the litigation might come a community's declared right to handle each case individually instead of the state imposing a blanket "must" ruling on them.

Kids who get in trouble could still get a break by just indicating they deserve one.

If they are expelled for the school year, let them sit it out without tutors. Let them return to school the following year as a second chance.

That year sitting it out would give them time to think about wrongs, rights, do's and don'ts.



The U.S. receives more legal immigrants than any other country. Between 1820 and 1984, about 52 million people officially arrived on our shores.

Dedication Of Those In Public Safety Profession

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

In recent years, the public safety profession has suffered severe cuts in personnel, funds, and in many other ways due to the financial plight of this state and our cities and towns around the Commonwealth. With police departments merging, votes of no confidence to chiefs of different departments from their members, layoffs, loss of fire apparatus, closing of fire stations, acceptance of no-raise contracts, I am sure the morale in these fire and police departments is at an all-time low.

In view of this, I would like to tell the public of the dedication of the people who work in the public safety profession in spite of these obstacles.

On Thursday evening, Jan. 9, 1992 at approximately 11:15 p.m., an accident occurred on Quincy Shore Drive involving a pickup truck which struck a large tree.

As a member of the Quincy Fire Department, the ladder company to which I am assigned got a special call for the second set of "Jaws of Life" to respond to this accident.

Upon arrival, I saw a victim trapped in the vehicle. This entrapment was one of the worst with which I have ever been involved. Due to using only first names for over an hour, I was not aware that the victim was a fellow firefighter. Thanks and praise to the following public safety professionals who demonstrated a two-plus hours team effort to free this man from the wreckage and save his life:

To Norfolk Bristol Ambulance personnel, one of whom held the victim's head in traction for a long period of time and to his partner who made sure the IV fluid was flowing properly and checked vital signs in spite of the precarious conditions of gasoline leakage all around him.

To the MDC police officer (or whatever they are called now) who stood on the hood of the truck holding a heavy portable quartz light and after a very long time asked for one glove because his hand was burning, but never gave up his position.

To the police officers of both Quincy and MDC who kept spectators at a safe distance so we could do our job and also for the concern they showed when they found out it was one of our men involved.

To Fire Chief Thomas Gorman who had the foresight to have a second set of "Jaws of Life" rebuilt for just this kind of emergency.

Last but not least to all my fellow firefighters who I know and work with and all others at the accident, you gave me a renewed outlook as to why I chose this profession and I am truly proud to be associated with you.

The citizens of the Commonwealth should be aware that their members of the public safety field are true professionals at their jobs and have deepest concern for the general public.

Quincy Says 'No' To Rapid Transit

Jan. 22-28 1959 33 Years Ago

A proposed South Shore rapid transit system that would tie in with Boston's Metropolitan Transit Authority at Savin Hill drew the opposition of public officials in Quincy.

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa noted that the South Shore Transit District would be capitalized for $20 million, an expense that could fall on Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and Hingham if the plan failed.

"It doesn't have a chance of passing in the Legislature," said Della Chiesa, "unless those communities assume part of the current MTA deficit which is running in the vicinity of $17 million a year."

McCORMICK APPOINTED

James F. McCormick Jr. was appointed to the School Committee, succeeding Paul K. Duffey, who resigned to become general manager of the East Coast offices of the Federal Sign and Signal Corp. in Philadelphia.

City Solicitor Douglas Randall handed down the opinion that Duffey's successor had to be selected by the remaining members of the School Committee, choosing the highest of the defeated candidates in 1956.

Former School Committeeman Carter Lee said he thought that under the new Plan A charter the choice of "any suitable person" had to be made by a joint session of the City Council and the School Committee.

Randall's opinion prevailed.

Marie's Kitchen

By MARIE J. D'OLIMPIO

Luscious And Delicious

It was the first time we had ever attended someone's 90th birthday celebration especially for someone who looked and acted 20 years younger. My sister-in-law Teresa's beautiful mother Gina Vella was an inspiration to us all. And the food was something else. I naturally managed to snag a couple of great recipes; one by her granddaughter Jean, a luscious dessert and the other by another granddaughter, Ann, a delicious baked vegetable-meat bake.

JEAN'S 7 LAYERED BARS

1 packet of graham crackers
1 stick of melted margerine
1 bag chocolate chips
1 bag butterscotch chips
1/2 bag shredded coconut
1 cup any kind of nuts
1 can condensed sweetened milk

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In a slightly greased [an, layer the crushed grahams over the margerine. Then place the chocolate chips, the butterscotch chips, the coconut and the nuts layer by layer. Add the condensed milk. Bake for about 30 minutes or until top is slightly golden. Cool and cut into small squares. The squares are thick and scrumptious.

ANN'S VEGETABLE-MEAT SUPREME

1 10 oz package cauliflower (or fresh equivalent)
1 10 oz package frozen broccoli
1 cup Bisquick
1 cup milk
4 slices cheese (any kind)
2 eggs
salt and pepper to taste
1 Lb ground meat (any kind)

Steam together the broccoli and cauliflower and set aside. Saute the meat and set aside. Combine the Bisquick, milk, grated cheese and eggs and mix thoroughly. Add the vegetables and the meat and mix again. Top with cheese slices and bake in a greased 9 x 9 square or round pan in a 400 degree oven for about 30 to 35 minutes. Cut in squares when cooled. Ann says you can substitute any favorite vegetable such as asparagus, zucchini, etc.

Three Squantum School Teachers Nominated For Education Awards

Three Squantum School teachers have been nominated for the Reader's Digest 1992 American Heroes in Education Awards, a national program honoring educators who are making a difference in U.S. schools.

Diane Willard, Kimberly Gardner and Lois Brandes were selected for nomination by fellow teachers, principals and administrators at Squantum School.

Individual teachers and principals, or teams of up to six educators will receive $5,000, with an additional $10,000 going to their schools to support the activities that earned them national honors. In addition, up to five runner-up schools will be awarded $2,000, with $500 going to the individual or team.

Because of budget restraints, a city-wide three-year enrichment program for academically talented third and four graders was eliminated. The principal and third grade staff worked on developing a building approach to meet the need of challenging or providing for enrichment activities, but only for the academically talented third and fourth graders, but all students in grades three and four.

Dr. Willard, a member of the team, developed a series of contracts in language arts and social studies to be used in the regular classrooms by all students. Each contract included content area, topic, focus questions and activities: easy, more difficult and difficult.

All third graders participate in the academic enrichment program within the regular education classroom. Students identified by classroom teachers as above average in ability, highly task-committed and creative, participate weekly in specific, in-depth problem-solving and research experience under the direction of a classroom teacher and a resource teacher. Field trips and speakers are provided for all students as these become appropriate to particular aspects of the enrichment program.

The awards program is jointly sponsored by The Reader's Digest Association Inc., the National Association of Secondary School Principals, National Education Association, National Association of Elementary School Principals and American Federation of Teachers.

George Grune, Reader's Digest chairman and chief executive officer, said, "Extraordinary contributions are made each day by ordinary teachers and principals. We want to find these unsung heroes, honor them and showcase their achievements to encourage educators everywhere to strive for their best."

Nominations will be reviewed by a panel of distinguished educators. Winners will be announced in April.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Have you ever noticed those persons who think twice before making a promise can usually be counted on to keep the promise?

Careless promises should never be given - or counted on. A promise is a pledge; an obligation to be kept. A promise that can cause discomfort, harm or injustice to yourself - or to others - should never be made, no matter how much prodding or persuasion is involved.

It is usually very easy to make a promise ... Expediency or change of mind is seldom a justified excuse for breaking a promise. A promise involves honor, duty and ethics ... The best promise you can make - is a promise to yourself ... Promise yourself you will never make a promise to anyone, unless you are fully prepared and able to keep your promise ... In addition to spiritual benefits, it is a good way to gain honor, stature, praise and prestige among men ...

St. Joseph's Parish Planning 75th Anniversary Celebration

St. Joseph's Church, 550 Washington St., Quincy Point, is making plans to celebrate its 75th anniversary as a parish.

The 75th anniversary committee, chaired by John (Jake) Comer, has been meeting periodically since last fall to plan a year-long series of events to commemorate this "jubilee" year.

Fr. Daniel Graham, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, says the parish has been seeing many physical signs of renewal taking place at the St. Joseph's, namely in the church's restoration. The exterior has been painted, a new illuminated signed erected in front of the church and new plexiglass windows installed for the church interior.

"These are important, major reconstructive efforts to prepare our physical plant for our 75th anniversary," Fr. Graham said.

"An anniversary jubilee year is a time of joy to celebrate what God has done in our midst for the past 75 years. Begun in 1917, St. Joseph's Parish has been a dynamic herald of faith in the Quincy Point area for three quarters of a century.

"Many of you (Quincy residents) and your families entered this faith community through baptism, journeyed in your faith formation with us in our 65-year-old parochial school and have achieved academic excellence in your adult life. Others have joined us at varying stages of life," Fr. Graham said.

"The jubilee year is a special time for each and every one of youth because you are a part of the great history that makes up St. Joseph's parish family.

"We will be remembering the past and the faith-filled people who sacrificed to build St. Joseph's. Some of our relatives and ancestors were among those parishioners. We are planning some all inclusive events to celebrate the 75th anniversary so you might want to set your calenders ahead now," he added.

The first major anniversary event will be an alumni Communion Mass and breakfast Sunday, April 26 at 8:30 a.m. The celebrant of the Mass will be former curate, Fr. Bob Tyrrell, now at Archbishop Williams High School. Homolist will be Fr. Jim McCarthy, another former curate for many years who is presently director for the priests personnel office.

All former sisters and teachers as well as former St. Joseph's students and their families will be invited to attend. Following the Mass, a catered breakfast will be held in the new parish hall.

Tickets are $3.50. For tickets, contact the Alumni Communion Breakfast Chairperson, Mary-Jo Glavin Brogna at 472-0394. Anyone knowing addresses of former alumni who have moved out of the area is asked to inform Mary-Jo.

The next event marking the 75th anniversary will be a Communal Mass of Anointing of the Sick and Elderly of the Parish Saturday, June 20 at noon. in the new parish hall. The event will be chaired by Eleanor McBride and assisted by Judy Kahler. All parishioners who are need of the sacrament of the sick will be invited and transportation will be provided. There is a handicap access ramp.

The celebrant of the Mass will be the beloved former pastor, Fr. Joseph Downey, who served the church for 20 years. He will be assisted by Fr. Joe Raeke, former curate, who will give the homily. Fr. Raeke is presently assigned to Holy Family, Duxbury.

The major 75th anniversary event will be held Sunday, Sept. 27 at the 11:30 a.m. Mass. Bishop Alfred Hughes, vicar for administration for the Archdiocese, will be the principal celebrant and homolist.

Bishop Hughes was a visiting clergyman at St. Joseph's Church for many years while on the faculty of St. John's Seminary. He will be joined by all past and present priests and deacons who have served at St. Joseph's.

Following the Mass, the parish will host a special 75th anniversary banquet at Lantana in Randolph. Tickets are $30 per person for this five-course dinner. Banquet chairperson is Joe Kahler, 773-6089. Tables of 10 can be reserved.

Other jubilee activities planned this year include a collection of old memorabilia of St. Joseph's which will be on display at each major event. Memorabilia chairperson is Eleanor McBride, 472-6628. Anyone with items for the display should contact Eleanor.

St. Joseph's Anniversary is planning an ad book chaired by Eunice Ford, 773-9263 and Mal Creaven, 773-7557. They will be seeking patrons and sponsors for their commemorative ad book.

A parish anniversary cook book is being coordinated by Donna Bertrand, 479-5346. Parishioners and friends of St. Joseph's can submit their favorite recipes.

The final event marking the 75th anniversary of St. Joseph's will be a parish float in the annual Quincy Christmas Parade Sunday, Nov. 29. The float project is being chaired by Bob Allison and assisted by Fr. Dan Riley and the C.Y.O. of St. Joseph's.

The next 75th anniversary planning committee meeting will be held Sunday, Feb. 16 at 6 p.m. in the school cafeteria. Anyone wishing to serve on the committee can contact Chairperson John (Jake) Comer at 471-3534.

Several other Quincy players also ran into foul trouble as the Lakers paraded to the free throw line.

Mike Bartlett had his best game with 14 points and two steals, Kane had 11 points and Matt Dwyer had a fine game and scored 11 points.

Hockey

Quincy, North Stay In Title Contention

By TOM SULLIVAN

Last week's Quincy-North Quincy hockey game lived up to expectations as the rivals battled each other to a 1-1 tie and stayed in contention for the Old Colony League crown.

Later in the week North tied Plymouth, 1-1, while Quincy was shut out for the first time, bowing to defending state Div. 1 champion Barnstable, 4-0.

North went into last night's game with Silver Lake with a 5-3-2 overall record (3-2-2 in the league), while Quincy went into the Plymouth game with a 4-3-4 overall mark (3-2-3 in the league).

Quincy will host Falmouth Saturday at 6:40 at the Quincy Youth Arena and will be at Silver Lake Saturday, Feb. 1 at 6:45.

North will be at Barnstable Saturday at 7:45 and will be home to Falmouth Wednesday night at 8 at the Youth Arena.

Quincy and North engaged in an outstanding game with few penalties, fine skating, some outstanding defensive play and brilliant performances by the rival goalies, Steve MacPherson of Quincy and Dennis Ruggere of North.

"This was just an outstanding hockey game," said Quincy coach Bob Sylvia. "It really was a big game for both teams, certainly one of the most meaningful in some time. Both teams have a legitimate chance to win the league title and that hasn't happened for many years.

"It's amazing how the pendulum has swung in this rivalry. I've been here since the 1965-66 season and for the first 12 years we never lost to North. But right now we haven't beaten them in seven years."

"It was a great game to be involved with," said North's second-year coach Tom Benson. "It was nice in that it was such a meaningful game in the standings."

Any one of six teams could win the league title with only Bridgewater-Raynham and Silver Lake apparently out of the running.

The Presidents dominated the first period but scored only once on Scott MacPherson's 14th goal of the year. Dan Morrell assisted. MacPherson is the number three scorer in the league.

North rebounded in the second period and tied the score on Aiden O'Donoghue's goal. Mike Christopherson and Matt Riley assisted.

"We had our chances, but give credit to their goalie," said Sylvia. "Our big gun, Scott MacPherson, had five or six shots from point-blank range, but the kid came up with the big saves."

Saturday night North's junior goalie, Sean Connelly, had an outstanding game with 30 saves in North's 1-1 tie with Plymouth, the league leader.

North's defense was excellent and Riley gave North the tie with his goal with newcomer Bob Fitzgerald assisting.

Fitzgerald, a transfer from Catholic Memorial, was just declared eligible by the MIAA and his assist was his first point for the Raiders.

"Bob comes with the reputation of being a big scorer and he should help make up for the loss of our top scorer, Mike DesRoche," said Benson.

"He is a fine skater and shooter and I expect him to pick up our offense. It's great to have him with us."

The Quincy-Barnstable game was one of the roughest of the year with numerous penalties. The Presidents had their chances but were frustrated by the many penalties against them.

Morrisette To Host Regional Tourney In August

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The baseball season may seem far away right now but don't tell that to Henry "Hank" Bradley.

Bradley has been busy planning the 1992 American Legion Northeast Regional Baseball Tournament which will be held at Adams Field in August.

Morrisette Legion Post is the host for the tourney and Bradley, a Post member and Quincy's Veterans Services Director, is the tournament committee chairman.

The double-elimination tournament will feature the American Legion State Champions from Massachusetts, Maine, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island and New Jersey. In the event Morrisette wins the state championship the state runner up will qualify.

The winner of the Northeast Regional will advance to the American Legion World Series in Fargo, North Dakota, with the winners of the seven other regional tournaments.

American Legion National Commander Dominic DeFrancesco is expected to be in Quincy, Monday, Jan. 27. Bradley said he hopes DeFrancesco can attend a contract signing at Mayor James Sheets office.

Morrisette bid $8,000 to host the tournament and the Morrisette Alumni Association has raised about half of that. Bradley said another fund raising golf tournament will likely be held.

The money goes to the national organization to help defray expenses for transporting and housing teams and umpires.

Concession and souvenir stands will be available and Bradley said he hopes to have commemorative t-shirts and souvenirs designed for the tournament.

"Hopefully we'll be erecting some smaller flag poles in the vicinity of the scoreboard to raise the state flags of the teams that are playing," Bradley said.

Wrestling

Souza, Sleiman Quincy Standouts

The Quincy wrestling team is off to a slow start with only a 39-29 victory over Waltham in its first month of competition.

However, two wrestlers have been outstanding. Senior captain Greg Souza (140, 145) is 7-0 in dual meets and won the Westside Invitational for the third year in a row and placed second in the Lowell Holiday Tournament.

Senior Ally Sleiman (152) is 8-0 in dual meets and won both the Westside Invitational for the second year in a row and the Sanford (Me.) Tournament and took second in the Lowell Tournament.

Fifth-year head coach Lou Venturelli is joined by two first-year assistants, former Quincy wrestlers Chris Mackey and John Heath.

"We are not discouraged by the 1-8 dual meet record," said Venturelli. "When you look at the quality of our schedule and what we've had to work with in terms of numbers, we are actually quite pleased with the progress of the team. Once again, our biggest problem is having the kids to work with. We are down to 16 boys after only a month into the season."

Sophomore Shane O'Connor (103) has shown promise, pinning two of his last four opponents after a slow start.

Freshman Matt Miller (112) has done the same with his first two wins coming by pins in the last three starts.

"These two are a dynamic opening act," said Venturelli. "If I can just get them both to win in the same meet, we'll be fine."

Wrestling junior varsity behind Miller is first-year senior Lisa Ross, the first girl to wrestle for Quincy.

"Lisa has had to overcome obvious barriers and I give her a lot of credit," said the Quincy coach. "She has more courage than 95 percent of the boys in the school who could be helping this team."

Forfeits at 119 and 130 pounds are a source of frustration for the Presidents. Promising sophomore Peter Penwarden (125) is 3-4 and showing a lot of promise.

Sophomore Ashley Davis (140, 145) is 4-5, senior Clint Currie (160, 171) is 5-3, junior Mark Nutley (160, 171) is 2-4 and junior Guy Schipellite (heavyweight) is still looking for his first win.

New to the team and in the starting lineup are freshman Bryan Gallahue (135), senior Mike Anderson (171, 189), sophomore Mike Elder (189) and freshman Mike Feeley (heavyweight).

Wrestling well for the jayvees are freshman Jason Bennett (145) and junior Damian Carini (145).

"Our goals now are to strengthen the chances of having a few sectional or state champions and, of course, to beat North Quincy," said Venturelli.

The Presidents will face Xaverian, Lowell and Norwood in a quad meet Saturday at 1 p.m. at Xaverian and will host Bridgewater-Raynham next Wednesday at 7 p.m. The meet at North Quincy will be Feb. 5 at 7 p.m.

"The girls have done really well in dual meets and our second season now begins," said coach Geoff Hennessy. "Our younger girls have improved in every meet and I feel we can make a good showing in the big meets."

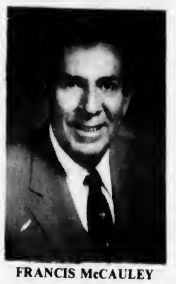
McCauley Candidate For GOP State Committeeman

Former Mayor Francis McCauley announces he is a candidate for Republican State Committeeman for the Norfolk senatorial district.

The Norfolk district encompasses the city of Quincy and the towns of Avon, Braintree and Holbrook. The present incumbent, Andrew Card of Holbrook, special assistant to President Bush, is not seeking re-election.



FRANCIS McCAULEY

The Republican State Committee is comprised of 40 men and women elected from each of the state's senatorial districts. The role of the state committee is to choose a party chairman, and to promote the aims and goals of the Republican Party.

McCauley has been active in Republican Party politics for more than 30 years. He has been a member of the Republican City Committee for 32 years, serving as committee treasurer five years. He has also been a delegate to six Republican state conventions.

A graduate of Boston College High School, McCauley attended Boston College and graduated with honors from Bentley College. He retired from a Quincy bank upon his election as mayor of Quincy in 1981.

Besides serving eight years as mayor, McCauley served on the City Council eight years and six years of the School Committee. In March, 1968 he was appointed to the Selective Service Board no. 27 by President Lyndon Johnson on recommendation of Gov. John Volpe. In March, 1969, Gov. Francis Sargent appointed him to the Quincy Housing Authority, where he served five years including a year as chairman.

During the 1990 state election, McCauley was active in the campaigns of Gov. William Weld, Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci and State Treasurer Joseph Malone. Last March, Malone appointed McCauley executive director of the state Board of Retirement.

McCauley is married to the former Sandra MacKinnon of Quincy. They are the parents of five children and grandparents of four.

A Year Later Pain Remains For Families Of 3 Fire Victims

that's what I try to do," Vanelli said.

She was also one of the many people who helped the family rebuild the house.

"I wanted to be a part of it. I wanted to do something for them, to let them know I cared even though Magga wasn't around," she said, adding that she initially met the Cortez family through her friendship with Magga.

Like Herminio and Hilda Cortez, Vanelli also had her own reasons for feeling guilty about the death of Magga and the two children.

"I felt bad because I'd broken plans with Magga for that night," she said. "I felt bad because if we had actually gone out, it may not have happened. But eventually I just figured there was nothing I could have done. It might have happened another day, or it might have happened when we came back.

"I think about Magga a lot. I miss her kindness and her willingness to be a friend and always be around. She always thought about other people before herself. Magga always thought about other people's feelings."

Perhaps no one was hurt more deeply by the three deaths than Gloria Wall of Germantown. In addition to the loss of her beloved sister, she also had to cope with the fact that her only two children were dead.

"I'm really still in shock," she said. "It's not one of those things you recover from; I don't think it'll ever be like it used to be. I think we're basically getting by.

"But my house is not really a home anymore. It's just a place to sleep, now that the kids aren't here. Sometimes I don't even want to come home. I also miss Magga very much. She was like a little second Mom to my kids."

Unlike her sister Hilda, however, Wall said she never experienced a loss of faith in God. Rather, it was this faith that gave her the strength to go on.

"I'm very religious," she said. "If it wasn't for my faith in God, it would be a lot harder. But I believe in Him, and know that He's taking care of my kids. I think He's the One that's helping me out right now. If you believe that, you can deal with something like this."

Wall is also continuing to see a psychiatrist to help her with her pain.

"When it (the deaths) first happened, I was basically in a daze, in total shock. I didn't cry at all. The doctor helped me cry it out and showed me the anger I was feeling. All the emotion came out, and that's why I'm in a steady mind, because of him."

She also gave her husband, Lawrence, credit for giving her support throughout the ordeal. Wall noted that the couple flew to Nevada in both July and December to visit his parents and to find a temporary change of scene for therapeutic reasons.

Wall also took heart when she saw all the people helping to rebuild her parents' home.

"That was wonderful," she said. "All of a sudden, we gained friends we never knew. And we're still very good friends with every one of them. We appreciate everything they've done.

"All of Quincy is responsible for helping us. (Councillor-at-Large) Michael Cheney, (Ward 1 Councillor) Peter Kolson and all the city officials helped us. It's a very good town, Quincy. If it happened in another city, the response probably wouldn't have been as good."

Hilda Cortez agreed, singling out her next-door neighbor, Renee Stone, as the "key factor" who spearheaded the movement to rebuild the Cortez home.

"She organized everyone to get together and got everything going," said Cortez. "Renee has been a really good friend to us. She's a real humanitarian."

Asked to respond to such praise, Stone refused to be labeled as such.

"I think of lot of people would have done it," said Stone. "And I didn't do it alone; it was everybody that did it. It was a group effort.

"To think that something like that even happened in our own backyard is still such a shock. I never want to see something like that ever happen again. I am glad, though, for the friendships that came out of it. We'll always be friends, forever."

Despite the fact that Stone and so many others have become such good friends, however, the family members must still deal, in their own separate ways, with the loss of their loved ones. No one is quite certain what to expect in the days to come.

"The future's too twisted, it's so uncertain right now," said Cortez. "You can only hope for the best."

"I don't know what's going to happen down the road," said Wall. "We have no plans for the future. You live for today, and you let tomorrow be there.

"But I'm really hoping for another baby someday," she added with a smile.

For now, the bright hopes for the future must contrast with the dark memories of the past. Memories such as that of the two children being taken to see a production of Peter Pan in Boston, where the family bought Buddy a T-shirt that said, ironically, "Never Gonna Grow Up." Another painful memory, said Hilda Cortez, is one from New Year's Day, 1991, when she and other family members kidded her sister about her 26th birthday, which would have been this past September.

"No, that's never going to happen," Magga Cortez told her family. "I'm going to be 25 forever."

The Con Artist

Part II

The following is a list of schemes or 'con games' that the con man is likely to try on you.

Home Improvement:

Home repair/improvement; City Inspector; Termite or pest control inspector.

Bank Related:

Bank examiner; Pigeon drop

Investment:

Franchise/vending; land frauds; inventions; Security investments; Work-at-home.

Postal Frauds:

Chain letters; magazine subscriptions; unordered merchandise; correspondence courses.

Others:

Bait and Switch	Charity Rackets
Computer Dating	Debt Consolidation
Contracts	Dance Lessons
Freezer Plans	Psychic/fortune tellers
Health clubs	Job placement
Lonely hearts	Medical quackery
Missing heirs	Referral sales
Talent Scouts	Pyramid schemes

Fake officials

Some rules:

- Always investigate before investing money or signing a contract.
- Be suspicious about extraordinary promises of high or unusual monetary returns, or a 'bargain' no one else can match.
- Don't discuss your personal finances or give cash to strangers.
- Don't be too embarrassed to report that you've been victimized or swindled
- Testify in court, if asked, to help stop this kind of crime.

The Con Game:

Most successful con games are old schemes for today's circumstances. The old "salting the gold mine' scheme is still being practiced, for example, but today's 'salting' occurs in living rooms, not abandoned mines. In the old ruse, you may remember, unscrupulous mine owners would place a few gold nuggets in exhausted miens so they could sell them for inflated profits. In one recent scheme a con artist bought six color television sets, at the regular price from a retail store, then sold them, still in their cartons, to six prominent persons for one fifth of their original price. Later, he hired several high school students as telephone solicitors to sell 'carloads' of TV sets purchased new from a bankrupt retail chain. When potential customers balked, the con artist used as references the original six customers who had been 'salted.' Before the police were alerted, he collected almost $60,000.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT
Holy Spirit, you who gives meaning to and shines light on my path so that I may reach my goals, you who gives me the divine grace to forgive and forget the evil done unto me and which is with me at every moment of my life. I want in this short dialogue to reassure you one more time that I do not ever want to be separated from you, no matter how grand the worldly possessions may be, my desire to be with you and my brothers in perpetual glory will not be lessened. (One should say this prayer 3 days in a row without mentioning the request, within 3 days the divine favor shall be granted, no matter how unobtainable it seemed) Publish this prayer as soon as your request is granted.

Mariano Blasts Hazardous Waste Exemption Bill

Testifying recently before the Joint Committee on Natural Resources, State Rep. Ronald Mariano (D-Quincy) blasted House Bill 390 which proposes that certain hazardous waste facilities be exempt from Chapter 21D which requires these facilities to go through the regulatory siting process in a community.

If enacted, the exemption bill would apply to Clean Harbors in Braintree.

"Attempts by facilities such as Clean Harbors to avoid the regulatory process is wrong and if successful it could compromise the health and safety of my constituents," Mariano said. "Grandfathering these facilities just because they were in operation prior to March of 1980 is a sham and a blatant attempt to subvert the intent of the legislature."

While the bill addresses other facilities, Clean Harbors would have the most to gain since it is one of the largest facilities of its kind in the state. It is also located in densely populated area near the Quincy-East Braintree line.

Mariano urged the committee to defeat the bill and vowed to fight the bill on the House floor if it leaves the committee with a favorable report.

Serious Crimes Drop One Percent In 1991

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The number of serious crimes reported in Quincy during 1991 decreased by one percent compared to 1990, the fifth lowest incidence of such crimes in the last 10 years, according to statistics compiled by the Quincy Police Department.

According to the statistics requested by The Quincy Sun, there were 3699 serious crimes reported in 1991 compared to 3735 in 1990. Serious crimes include eight crime categories: murder, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny over $50, larceny under $50 and auto theft.

The crime category experiencing the biggest decrease was aggravated assaults which declined by 30 percent, from 388 in 1990 to 271 in 1991.

Larceny under $50 and robbery increased the most. The former rose 28 percent, from 235 in 1990 to 326 in 1991, while the latter increased 23 percent from 93 to 128.

The number of burglaries increased 10 percent, from 892 to 988.

The remaining four categories showed little change compared to 1990. There were two murders in 1991 compared to one in 1990 and 24 rapes in 1991 compared to 25 in 1990.

Larceny over $50 decreased 7.6 percent from 1359 to 1257 while auto thefts dropped 4 percent from 742 to 710.

Overall, four crime categories experienced increases (murder, robberies, burglary and larceny under $50) and four categories decreased (rapes, aggravated assaults, larceny over $50 and auto thefts).

Chief Francis E. Mullen, a 35-year veteran of the department who became the city's top law enforcement officer in September, 1990, said he is not surprised by the statistics.

"I'm a realist. Our figures are comparable to other places. It (crime) has its ups and downs but I don't think it's out of control or anything."

Compared to other years over the last decade, 1991 was the fifth lowest in terms of serious crimes reported.

Beginning with 1982, the figures are:

•1982, 4,743 reports of serious crimes, up 22.1 percent compared to 1991.

•1983: 4,013 reports, up 7.9 percent.

•1984: 3,610 reports, down 2.5 percent.

•1985: 3,998 reports,

Disappointed Sheets:

Lexington Loss Setback For Hotel

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The Navy's decision to award the U.S.S. Lexington to Corpus Christi, Texas, last week not only sunk the city's primary plan for a maritime museum, but also delivered a setback for a possible major hotel in Quincy, Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday.

"If we had received the Lexington, I would have moved immediately to start talking to major hotel chains. Absolutely," the mayor said.

The mayor and other officials in his administration had hoped to berth the Lexington in the Town River and convert the storied aircraft carrier into a maritime museum The Lexington was considered a catalyst to the downtown revitalization effort with up to 200,000 or more tourists visiting the ship every year.

Sheets and other administration officials believed those tourists would have frequented restaurants and shops in the downtown area and other business districts, giving the local economy a much needed boost. That kind of climate, Sheets said, would have attracted a major hotel chain to construct a hotel in the city.

However, those dreams were dashed after Navy Secretary H. Garrett Lawrence III awarded the ship to Corpus Christi. Without the Lex, Sheets said his administration will refocus on the Quincy Plan to revitalize the city's business districts and accentuate the city's history to boost tourism.

"Not getting the Lexington may have been a setback to a hotel project but it was not a setback to revitalization," he said, adding a hotel could still be in the city's foreseeable future.

"I think we'll look seriously at a hotel in a year and a half. A natural expansion of tourism has to happen and how long that will take nobody knows."

In awarding the ship to Corpus Christi, Garrett followed a profile by the Naval Sea Systems Command, which ranked Quincy as the least qualified among the three cities competing to win custody of the ship.

Corpus Christi was ranked first, scoring 5.65 on a scale of 8. Mobile, Ala., was second with 4.55 and Quincy third with 3.8.

Observers, including the mayor, offered a number of theories as to why Corpus Christi was awarded the ship.

Sheets said politics, namely Sen. Phil Gramm, a powerful Texas senator, helped sink Quincy's bid for the ship which was built at the Fore River shipyard in 1943. "The involvement of Sen. Phil Graham (was a key factor). We knew at the outset if Graham put his credibility on the line for the Lex, it would be extremely difficult for us and from what I'm told, that's what happened in the last five weeks."

A second factor which may have come into play is a promise the Navy made and then broke to Corpus Christi. As home of the Navy's air training command center, the Navy promised the Texas city 24 years ago a portion of the Navy's fleet. The city didn't get a ship.

The Lexington may have been pay back time.

The mayor also said the Navy high-balled the cost of the city's proposed dam and cradle for the ship at the Town River. "They said it would cost $5.27 million. In our application, we said $2.5 million and we could have built one for less than that," according to the advice of Bruce Tobiasson, a well-known Naval architect and engineer.

The Navy, although invited, never visually inspected the Town River site, leaving the mayor and others connected with the effort to believe politics was the biggest factor.

Looking back at the city's campaign for the carrier, the mayor said he appreciates all who rallied around the Lexington effort. "It was a tremendous effort because we were all believers. They are all good, strong people so we just go on."

Although the Lexington dream is over, thoughts for a maritime museum will continue, Sheets said. "We have to look at where to locate a maritime museum. We have over 200 years of shipbuilding heritage that must be preserved."

North Quincy Bar License Suspended 30 Days

By STEVE KAVANAGH

A 30-day liquor license suspension has been levied on the Quincy Bay Inn by the License Board for serving intoxicated persons on Sept. 24, 1989 at the Aquarius Lounge.

The suspension of the motel's All-Alcoholic license for 30 days was described by License Board chairman John Gillis as "very harsh."

"It is harsh. But under the circumstances it's not harsh," said Police Chief Francis Mullen.

The motel bar, now named The Outer Limits, will remain open pending an appeal to the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission. The motel's attorney said an appeal will be made.

The board voted unanimously to penalize the North Quincy motel for serving alcohol to two 19-year-old Quincy men who later died in an automobile accident that evening. The vote was taken during the conclusion of the the hearing which had been continued from Jan. 7.

The License Board unanimously cleared Quincy Bay Inn of a charge of serving underage persons.

Lawyers for the motel and for the families of Daniel Ward and Shawn Clancy, the two men who died, were not satisfied with the decision by the board.

Attorney Michael Traft, representing the families of Ward and Clancy, said the families wanted a

Stooges Tavern Withdraws Relocation Application

A request by Stooge's tavern to move to a new location at the rear of 1546 Hancock St. was withdrawn without prejudice at Tuesday's License Board meeting.

Stooge's is presently located in small quarters with no parking at 3 School St. Co-owner Cynthia Conley told the board the poor economy is forcing Stooges to move.

During the first part of the hearing, on Jan. 14, License Board members told Conley they might be in favor of the move if Stooge's would do more to feature food at the proposed location.

However, since the initial hearing, the board has received letters of opposition to the move from Mayor James Sheets, the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and the Quincy Citizens Association.

Police Chief Francis Mullen also said he had done some investigating concerning the new location which fronts the Hancock Parking Lot.

"We (Police Department) received over 100 calls last year--mostly on weekends--to the Hancock Parking area," said Mullen. "I can't see putting another liquor establishment in there. For public safety reasons I'm against it."

"I think the area is saturated with liquor establishments already," said Fire Chief Thomas Gorman.

Mullen Taking Steps To Make Quincy Police Department More Efficient

Since becoming Quincy's police chief 16 months ago, Chief Francis Mullen has implemented a number of policies which have saved the department time and money.

In terms of reorganization and consolidation, Mullen has introduced a number of changes since he was appointed chief by Mayor James Sheets in September, 1990.

In November, 1990, the computer aid dispatch went on line, allowing police to render the best emergency response and service possible. To implement the new system, police and civilian personnel were trained. The computer system will expand with the department and modified to meet the needs of the city.

A lieutenant was assigned in charge of communications under the Operations Division for more efficiency and prepare Quincy for Emergency 911 dispatching with the Quincy Fire Department.

Mullen relocated the drug unit to police headquarters, creating a centralized operation in the Bureau of Criminal Investigations.

FRANCES MULLEN

The chief also relocate the traffic bureau from the third floor to the first floor to better accommodate the public and to consolidate the work functions of the department.

He successfully applied for several grants resulting in the receipt of thousands of dollars to aid police in their efforts to control illegal drug use.

To date, Mullen's tenure as chief can also be marked by a number of fiscal highlights.

He reformed the accounting procedures in the record room, thereby keeping strict account of all receipts, and installed cash registers to provide receipts to customers for more accountability.

The chief eliminated the call-box system and replaced it with an 800-number for police personnel to call the station, saving $18,000 a year.

With the advice of City Solicitor Stephen McGrath, the department became a self insurer of an accidental death policy (which has not had a covered occurrence since the 1920s). That move saves $9,500.

Mullen deployed additional personnel to night patrol so that a lieutenant would be in command of each night shift.

He reallocated funds to provide 'gang patrol details' on weekends during summer months and reallocated funds for increased coverage in the Quincy Square area nights.

Additional educational materials for the training of officers has been provided and an inventory system has been established to account for all equipment, furniture and fixtures owned by the department.

Funding for improved police equipment, including automatic weapons, cruisers, radar and various other equipment, as well as mobile data terminals for use in uniform patrol has been obtained.

The chief instituted stricter control over funding received by the department from outside sources, such as grants and/or gifts.

Beepers have been assigned to key personnel to improve intra-departmental communications system, a move which as been most effective, Mullen said.

New policies and procedures designed to streamline the restitution process have been issued.

The accreditation of the Quincy Police Department is moving forward and Mullen anticipates a review during FY 92.

Evaluation Seminar Held At North Quincy H.S.

North Quincy High School officials recently attended an Evaluation Seminar at the school to prepare for an evaluation this spring.

Principal Peter Chrisom, assistant principal Eileen Feeney, science teacher Thomas Donnelly, and Special Education Department head William Mulcahy attended the seminar sponsored by the Commission on Public Secondary Schools of the New England Association of Schools and Colleges.

The seminar provided an opportunity for principals and steering committee members of schools scheduled for evaluation to finalize plans for the evaluation visit. Participants shared their reactions to the self-study process with Commission members.

The New England Association of Schools and Colleges, founded in 1885, is the oldest accrediting agency in the country and is recognized by the U.S. Department of Education.

Phelan Forms Council Consolidation Committee

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Council President Charles Phelan Jr. has formed a sub-committee which will examine budget areas for possible consolidation and make recommendations for combining city departmental functions.

Councillors appointed by Phelan to serve on the sub-committee are Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien, Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson and Councillor Patricia Toland.

Chretien will serve as sub-committee chairman. He is chairman of the council's Ordinance Committee. Toland chairs the Finance Committee, Fabrizio chairs the Education Committee and Kolson chairs the Public Works Committee.

Chretien said the sub-committee will essentially brainstorm for suggestions and make recommendations to Mayor James Sheets and Phelan. He said committee members will be constructive and consider all parts of city government.

"I want to work with people. I'll explore things that other people suggest. We want to reorganize every part of city government."

Chretien said the committee's goal is to forge a new city government structure by streamlining city services, not creating layoffs. "I want to bring everyone who has a similar job function under one umbrella. It's not my intention to eliminate jobs.

"Our goal is to try to come to a conclusion on a new structure of city government before coming up with a budget. If we can all agree on a structure, then the mayor and city council will be able to determine who much money we have."

In announcing the new subcommittee last week, Phelan said, "Inasmuch as many city councillors have already made suggestions for consolidation in some areas, I will ask the committee to combine all recommendations and report back to the City Council before the end of February.

"At that point, the recommendations will be forwarded to the mayor for his review."

Phelan said the subcommittee is a proactive approach toward the FY 93 budget. Instead of waiting for the mayor's spending plan and recommendations, Phelan said the sub-committee will begin its own analysis and thus be better informed on city finances and department functions during budget deliberations this spring.

The mayor is expected to submit his FY 93 budget in March or early April. The council, which has the power to cut but not add revenue to the spending package, would have 45 days to adopt it.

Essentially, Phelan said the sub-committee has been set up to complement the mayor's own consolidation task force.

"I'll be requesting that the committee work with the mayor and his task force. As chairman of the subcommittee, Larry (Chretien) will be sitting on the mayor's consolidation committee.

"I want (the committee members) to come up with a report on areas that could be consolidated. We're going to be looking at everything.

"I want us to work with the mayor and find things that we can accomplish."

Since it is a sub-committee, the new group does not have to meet publicly. Chretien said the sub-committee may decide to hold a public meeting or hearing in the near future.

CENSUS WORKER Fran Fareri of Quincy verifies residency information with Laura Flannery of Winslow Rd., Squantum. Census workers began counting the number of Quincy residents Monday by going door-to-door in Ward 6. The census will continue over the next five weeks as census workers canvass the city's other five wards. The schedule is: Ward 5, beginning Feb. 3; Ward 4 Feb. 10; Ward 3 Feb. 17; Ward 2, Feb. 24; and Ward 1 March 2. Census workers, who wear identification badges with the city seal, ask residents to verify residency information such as household number, date of birth and occupation.

2 Apartment Buildings To Be Built For Retarded

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Quincy Housing Authority Executive Director John "Jake" Comer announces plans for a new facility to be run by the Department of Mental Retardation on the grounds of Pagnano Towers at 109 Curtis Ave.

The building, which is to be owned and maintained by the QHA, will consist of two four-person staffed apartments for mentally retarded adults. It will be funded by the Executive Office of Communities and Development, with an estimated construction cost of $450,000.

Comer said he is "very excited" about the new building, noting that this would be the fourth such facility to exist in the City of Quincy.

"Some communities, some major cities, have one or two (of these facilities), but four is out of sight," said Comer. The other three buildings are located on Safford Street, Water Street, and South Street.

The local architectural firm John M. Shesky and Associates, Inc., which was chosen from a field of over 60 companies that bid on the project, will handle construction of the facility. Comer said he is "hoping" for the building to be completed later in the year, although he added that early 1993 is probably a more realistic expectation.

Unclaimed 1990 Tax Refunds For 15 Quincy Residents

The Boston Internal Revenue Service office has unclaimed refund for 15 Quincy residents.

Quincy residents listed include Ruth Bailey, Meredith Baker, Assumpta Maguire, Dick Ng, Robert Thomas, Donald and Mary Codner, Arthur and Froso Xefteraki, Phoung Doan Huynh, Robert McGourty, James DeSilva, Edward Gore, Vera Browne, Grace Domke, Phoc Chieng and Brian Lomasney.

According to the IRS, these refund checks were returned by the Postal Service because they could not be delivered. Each year thousands of checks are returned because the address on the tax return was not legible or the taxpayer moved and did not leave a forwarding address.

If you were due a refund and have not received it call the IRS at 1-800-829-1040.

Agrees With Editorial On 'Guns And Tutors'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am writing to say "Good for you" for the editorial "Guns and Tutors." I am in complete agreement with you!

As a parent of a Quincy High School student who is there to learn and be in a safe environment, I am in agreement with the administration and School Committee.

It galls me to think that Quincy Public Schools provide a home tutor at the cost of $3,000 per student involved. One of these families apparently tried to claim they lived in a neighboring community, come now, cheating parents as well as gun-toting offspring! This is like rewarding the troublemakers.

We have a criminal justice system in this state. School rules are plainly spelled out in print and signed by every student and his or her parent or guardian. If they break the law it is now up to the State to provide a correctional facility that will attempt to educate these people, not the city.

This is a matter of principle and I deeply feel we're in trouble when one of our elected School Committee members is too worried about legal expenses.

As a taxpayer, I'd rather pay the legal costs than the $3,000 of school funds to tutor these able-bodied troublemakers at home. Maybe they should worry about the tutors' safety.

GET HELP FOR DEPRESSION

We all feel depressed from time to time. How can you tell when what you've got is a case of the mental illness known as depression rather than a simple bout of the blues? In true depression, physical changes usually occur along with the feelings of overpowering sadness. These symptoms can include headaches, indigestion, and constipation. A depressed person may also have trouble sleeping and lose interest in eating and sex. Psychological symptoms can include losing touch with reality, feelings of guilt or worthlessness, extreme anxiety, and even hallucinations. Depression occurs in every age group. The good news is that almost all people who have depressive illness can be helped through treatment.

P.S. Some 15 percent of the population will have at least one bout of depression serious enough to call for medical help.

If you are experiencing the symptoms of depression, it is important that you seek help as soon as possible. If you would care to discuss anything in this column, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. We focus on treating the patient, rather than the disease. When treating patients, I always try to consider how I would like myself, my wife and children or my parents to be treated by a doctor. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24 in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

We Deserved To Get Her Back

We deserved to get one of them back.

All those great ships that steamed through the Fore River bridge and out to the Atlantic and the Pacific: the carriers, battleships, cruisers, destroyers, etc.

Those mighty vessels that were built here with pride and talent and made Quincy known as "the muscle" in Uncle Sam's Navy arm.

We wanted to bring one of them home to stay as a shipbuilding museum and a fitting memorial to the thousands of Fore River shipyard workers who made "built in Quincy" a world-wide guarantee that it was built right.

The USS Lexington, the famed "Gray Ghost" of the South Pacific fighting was the one we wanted.

And the one we should have gotten.

The ship was commissioned here in 1943. Shipyard workers had petitioned the Navy to name the carrier they were working on after the first Lexington which was sunk in the war.

The name honors the Battle of Lexington as well as the town of Lexington just up the road from Quincy.

Good sentimental reasons for the Lexington to come home to Massachusetts and Quincy.

But the hard-nosed Navy — or Texan politicians who know how to roll a pork barrel when they see one — had it wrapped up in yellow roses and delivered to Corpus Christi.

Quincy finished third — behind Mobile, Ala. — in the three-way race for the Lexington prize.

The way Navy Secretary H. Lawrence Garrett, who tapped Corpus Christi as the winner, tells it, he was just following a profile by the Naval Sea Systems Command which ranked Quincy financially and otherwise, the least qualified of the three contenders.

No sentiment there. But maybe a lot of behind the scene maneuvering.

The Ingleside Naval Base about 20 miles from Corpus Christi was built with the intent that it would be home-port to part of the fleet but that plan got torpedoed by military budget cuts.

So, can you imagine the likes of Senators Lloyd Bentsen and Phil Gramm just sitting there twiddling their thumbs and doing nothing while the battle for the Lexington was being waged.

And, what about former Navy Secretary John Lehman who was a staunch supporter of Corpus Christi? He certainly still has some influence.

And, perish the thought, what about our Commander in Chief George Bush? He's really more a Texan than a Bay Stater even if he was born in Milton, next door to Quincy.

What might have really tipped the ranking and decision in favor of Corpus Christi is the fact that Texas has a lot more political clout these days than Massachusetts has.

The Lexington will be moored close to the Texas Aquarium which opened in 1990 and drew a reported 730,000 tourists in its first year.

Officials there see at least 300,000 visitors touring the Lexington annually at about $5 a head. That adds up to $1,500,000 — not to mention what all those people will spend while visiting.

The rush is already on to get the Lexington ready for business by July 4th.

Jubilation in Corpus Christi. Gloom in Mobile — more so in Quincy.

Mayor James Sheets and all the others who worked so hard together in hopes of landing the Lexington are understandably disappointed. But there should be no shame to losing a good fight.

Sheets had seen the Lexington a catalyst for downtown development and a booming tourism business.

The Lexington would have drawn an estimated 200,000 to 300,000 visitors a year who would have left millions of dollars in the business community and historic sites.

There are some, though, who think that the loss of the Lexington might in the long run, be a blessing in disguise.

They feared the cost of getting it into the Town River and then maintaining it could have been too much to make it a profitable venture.

Once the novelty of an 896-foot aircraft carrier sitting along Southern Artery wore off, the number of visitors would decline, they felt.

Now, we'll never know for sure what it would have meant in Quincy.

But it was worth going after, most people believe. Trying to do things to make things better is better than not trying to do anything.

Sheets and all who worked with him in trying to make the Lexington a reality deserve a "well done" for effort.

We'll get over losing Lady Lex. And we should — and will — keep on trying to make things better for Quincy.

Serious Crimes Drop One Percent

up 7.5 percent.

•1986: 3,586 reports, down 3.1 percent.

•1987: 3,285 reports, down 11.2 percent.

•1988: 3,368 reports, down 9 percent.

•1989: 3,285 reports, down 11.2 percent.

•1990: 3,735 reports, up one percent.

Over the last decade, the years 1987 and 1989 each reported the lowest number of serious crimes, a total of 3285 while 1982 had the highest number of reported crimes, 4743.

Among the factors contributing to the city's serious crimes are early release prison orders, public transportation, the economy and Quincy's close proximity to Boston, Mullen said.

Regarding the early release of prisoners, the chief said, "A lot of these guys are repeat offenders." With four MBTA Red Line stations in Quincy, Mullen noted said public transportation can make some criminals more "transient" and bring in more undesirables.

"Public transportation can have a positive and a negative effect. There are some people who use the transit system for work but on the other hand, some people use it to enter the city (to commit crimes)," he said.

Moreover, Mullen said preventing and solving robberies is made more difficult by "transient people" who use public transportation and the Southeast expressway to enter and exit the city. He said stores which are open all night also give criminals more opportunity to rob.

"Criminals, like police, are in the business 24 hours a day. We alert our people. We make frequent safety checks to all-night stores and we try to prevent it.

"Quincy is also close to Boston. We think some suspects enter by the expressway and exit quickly. It's not only Quincy. Many of these crimes are relative from one community to the other."

As for burglaries, Mullen said he believes the influx of two-income families over the last decade contributes to the number of burglaries in Quincy. As the number of husbands and wives both earning a living increases, so do the number of homes left empty during the day. More empty homes give would-be burglaries more targets.

To combat burglaries, the department runs crime prevention information in the local media, including a Crime Prevention column by Officer Bob Hanna.

Mullen said the arrest of one burglar can also lead to other burglaries being solved.

"Physical evidence is not always left behind but when you do have that evidence, that could lead to an arrest. When you have an arrest, you usually solve others."

One recent case in point involved a burglar who robbed a Quincy Center store. Fingerprints were found which later led to an arrest. After the arrest, the suspect was linked to about 10 other burglaries.

While the incidence of serious crime has fluctuated over the last 10 years, the number of police personnel has dropped by approximately 50 officers due to budget cutbacks.

In 1981, Quincy had 236 patrolmen and superior officers. Eleven years ago, the department had one chief, five captains, 16 lieutenants, 27 sergeants and 188 patrolmen.

Today, Quincy has a force of 182 comprised of one chief, three captains, 12 lieutenants, 26 sergeants and 152 patrolmen.

With fewer officers and less revenue, Mullen said the department is trying to it's best with less.

"With the reduced amount of personnel, we have to spread our patrols out as best we can with the limited resources we have," he said, noting the department handled 70,000 service calls and made 4,000 arrests last year.

Mullen classifies some crimes, such as murder and rape, as spontaneous and thus are very difficult to prevent. However, when these types of crimes surface, the department responds in an attempt to solve the problem, the chief pointed out.

After a number of sexual assaults were reported in the North Quincy area last year, Mullen arranged several personal safety programs for women. Besides teaching women some basic safety techniques, the programs increased public awareness to assaults.

"In the case of a rape, we try to monitor whatever we can. We investigate and we run personal safety programs for women to let people be aware of things that would affect them in the street.

"It's helpful and people have taken advantage of (the programs)."

Mullen said he is pleased by police personnel working together as a team. A "collective effort," the chief added, is essential for a productive police force.

Every morning, the chief meets with his staff, investigators and administrators to keep up to date on the city's crime scene. "We exchange information regarding crime over the previous 24 hours. It's not put on the shelf."

Detectives also meet frequently with law enforcement officials from other cities and towns regarding breaks and similar incidents. In addition, Quincy drug detectives meet with the South Shore Drug Task Force once a month to discuss certain strategies and suspects.

"We try to keep abreast of what's going on and determine our strategy on what the problem is. We cross information from one another."

One crime solved by several community police departments joining forces involved a stalker several years ago. Quincy police worked with Milton police and arrested a suspect in connection with the stalkings.

The suspect, who was from New Bedford, had been living in Quincy at the time. The stalker turned out to be the same man who committed a murder in Roslindale. The man was charged and convicted of murder.

It's that kind of cooperative effort, among Quincy police personnel and area departments, which fosters positive law enforcement efforts at a time when resources are limited.

"I'm happy with these guys. The department collectively is doing a good job," Mullen said. "I know things are difficult but we try to do the best while we're here. They are people working under tough conditions.

"I like to think of the department as a family. We're all together. If you work together you can accomplish a lot."

Trade School Equipment Called 'Outmoded Junk'

Jan. 29-Feb. 4
45 Years Ago

The Trade School Advisory Committee warned that almost all the equipment at the Quincy Trade School is "outmoded junk," inadequate, and in some cases downright dangerous to students.

It urged that hazardous machinery be replaced "before there is a serious accident."

Committee Secretary Frank C. Webster said the old school building was so crowded that 14-year-old boys were sharing the same classrooms with 29-year-old veterans of World War II.

"We must have adequate classrooms immediately to divide up the classes as they are required to be," he said.

CITY PARKING SCORED

City Councillor Russell T. Bates criticized the city for going into the parking business for the benefit, he said, of a few property owners, a few merchants and a few out of town people.

"Why should Quincy provide parking for a few merchants when Foy's and Quincy Market provide parking spaces for their customers on their own property that they are paying taxes on?" he asked.

AGAINST HOUSING

The Mayor's Emergency Committee on Housing voted 8-5 to table a resolution by Russell W. Frey, secretary of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, against government subsidized housing.

It was interpreted as an indication of the group's opposition to a state law that would enable cities to borrow money for permanent housing in multiple family units.

$36 TAX RATE FORECAST

City officials estimated that the Quincy tax rate for 1947 will be $36 after they got a look at the budget drawn up by Mayor Charles A. Ross before he left for three weeks in Florida.

Breaded Chicken And Broccoli
In Cream Sauce

Did you ever defrost something unmarked from the refrigerator only to find out it was something different? Well that happened to me this past week.

I was defrosting what I thought was a package of chicken cutlets through plastic wrap.

They, however, turned out to be chicken stir-fry small pieces. Since I was planning to have a few people over for dinner I decided to bread the pieces as a cutlet and prepare them differently with broccoli and a cream sauce. They were a first for me and will definitely be part of future entrees, for our family at least.

BREADED CHICKEN AND BROCCOLI IN CREAM SAUCE
1 Lb or so of chicken pieces corn flake crumbs for coating
1 egg mixed with a little milk for coating
salt and pepper to taste
vegetable or olive oil for frying
2 Tbsps butter or margerine
2 Tbsps flour
1 1/2 cups milk
4 or 5 slices of cheese (any favorite)
about 2 or 3 cups broccoli (I used florets)

Bread and chicken pieces by placing them first in the egg and milk mixture and then in the corn flake crumbs. Set aside. Cook the broccoli and set aside. (I steamed it in the microwave). Make the cream sauce starting with the butter or margerine, add the flour and then the milk and stir until blended and thickened. Add the broccoli and heat. Just before serving, place the chicken pieces in the pan and beat until bubbly, turning carefully. It's best to use a large skillet. Add the slices of cheese on top just before serving. The recipe fed six with a little left over.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL Health Educator Georgina Valante recently brought a panel of peer educators and professionals to the Woodward School. The panel consisted of Scott MacPherson, a plumbing student; Alana Cushing, a nursing student; Renee LeTourneau, a childcare student, all seniors from The Center for Technical Education; Chris Walker, a Quincy High School senior; Pam Campanale, R.N., and Emily Lebo, R.N., both health occupations instructors at the Tech Center. The latest information on HIV and AIDS was presented to the students who then had an opportunity to question the panel. Discussion was lively and much information was shared.

Miss Morrell is a member of the Mainstreaming of America Club and has helped with the Special Olympics. She has earned athletic and academic honors such as being a Scholar Athlete and being named to the President's List for outstanding academic achievement along with many basketball honors.

Chinese Cultural Institute Sponsors Quincy High Concert

The Chinese Culture Institute recently sponsored a concert at Quincy High School. The Youth Music Program of the C.C.I. was instituted by renown cellist Yo Yo Ma who is also a trustee of the Institute.

Doris Chu, president of the C.C.I., introduced the artists, Rong Wang, violinist, and Tian Ying, pianist. Each performer gave the audience of students a brief autobiography. The audience was then treated to a variety of classical selections performed by Wang and Ying. Following the musical performance there was a question and answer period that enabled the Quincy High students to discuss the program with the musicians.

Wang studied at the Beijing Central Conservatory of Music in China. She won the Chinese National Violin Competition and graduated summa cum laude from Boston University's School of Music. Her engagements this season will include recitals for WGBH and the Gardner Museum as well as concerts with the Boston Philharmonic Orchestra.

Ying is a graduate student at the New England Conservatory of Music. He was a prizewinner at the eighth Van Cliburn International Piano Competition and has won the grand prize at the 1986 and 1987 Young Keyboard Artists Association Piano Competition.

His past engagements have included the Chicago Sinfoniette, Hong Kong Philharmonic, Shanghai Symphony and the Fort Worth Symphony. Born in Shanghai, he made his first appearance at age 10 with the Shanghai Symphony.

Both artists stressed pride in one's cultural and ethnic background when discussing their work and achievements with the Quincy High students.

'Voice Of The Turtle' To Open MultiCultural Festival At Beechwood Center Feb. 23

Beechwood Community Life Center, 225 Fenno St., Wollaston, has been identified as recipient for a Foundation for the Arts grant award.

The award was given for the upcoming Quincy MultiCultural Festival and will partially fund the festival's opening night Sunday, Feb. 23.

The opening program, "Voice of the Turtle," to be held at North Quincy High School Sunday, Feb. 23 at 3 p.m., will feature Jewish musical traditions.

"Voice of the Turtle" is a Cambridge based, four person ensemble that specializes in Sephardic music. The Sephardim, Jews who had lived in Spain for 1,500 years, were expelled from that country in 1492. Travelling to safer harbors in the Ottoman Empire, North Africa and Eastern Europe, the Sephardim incorporated the sounds of their adopted homes into their music. The ensemble performs on ancient and modern instruments.

The 1992 MultiCultural Festival extends through March 14.

For more information call 471-5712 or 328-9200.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Parent Alert!

Sometimes a child who hasn't arrived at school isn't homesick or playing hooky. If something happens to a child on the way to school, parents often don't know until later in the day, and precious hours are lost to law enforcement investigators when crimes are reported to them several hours after they occur.

All parents want to know that their children are where they're supposed to be, but it may be especially important for parents working outside the home, who may leave the house before the children do.

Many schools and parent groups have organized Parent Alerts -- volunteer parents and senior citizens call the parents of absent students to check that the children are someplace safe, It is also a good idea to try to establish a school policy that will not allow telephone calls to substitute for notes stating a reason that a child -- elementary school to senior high -- will not be or was not in school.

Concerned parents and groups can also establish block homes or "Safe Houses" along routes children usually take to and from school, in order to give them assistance if they should get sick or have an emergency along the way.

A party to honor the Most Rev. Daniel A. Hart, Auxiliary Bishop of Boston and regional bishop of the South Region, will be held Friday, Feb. 7 at Lombardo's in Randolph.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

It has been said that friendships are fragile things, and require as much care in handling as any other fragile and precious thing.

In our youth we call most of our acquaintances ... 'our friends.' But as we grow older we begin to better understand the true meaning of friendship. The man or woman who has reached the middle of life and has half a dozen real friends who will bear the tests of friendship is indeed fortunate.

A partial quote from St. John Ervine expresses this thought quite beautifully. "To be everybody's friend is to be nobody's friend. For friendship is the feeling you possess for a particular person as distinct from all other persons. It is a very beautiful and intimate and close relationship which is destroyed if it is bestowed casually. To be able to say that you have a friend is to know that there is one person to whom your affairs are as important as his own, on whose aid and counsel and affection you can count in all times of trouble and distress, to whose aid you will fly the moment you hear he needs your help.

It is impossible for any man or woman to feel like that for more than a few persons."

SUN SPORTS

Basketball

North Edged By B.C. High, 50-48

By TOM SULLIVAN

Last Friday's North Quincy-Boston College High basketball game at North Quincy lived up to all expectations as the Eagles, coached by Quincy's Brian Buckley, squeezed by the Raiders, 50-48.

B.C. High, a Catholic Conference power, improved its record to 10-2, while North, having one of its best seasons in some time, fell to 8-4. Ted Stevenson's club is 6-2 in the Old Colony League.

North Quincy played at Plymouth Tuesday night, will host Quincy Friday at 7 p.m. and will be at Taunton Monday at 7 p.m.

There was plenty of Quincy interest in the North Quincy-B.C. High game. Quincy's Mike Chiccino, Matt Fennessy and Jay Schnabel play for the Eagles and assisting Buckley are Quincy natives Paul Donoghue, Bob Evans, Fred Murray and Norm Walsh.

Angelo Catenza scored 12 points, including a free throw with seven seconds remaining to clinch the win. Cornell Mills led the Eagles with 13 points and Dave McLaughlin scored 10.

Desmond Bellot and Sean Donovan continued their outstanding play with Bellot scoring 15 points and Donovan, the league's number four scorer, 13.

North led at halftime, 37-35, and cut B.C. High's lead to one point with 30 seconds left.

Earlier in the week North Quincy turned in one of its best efforts to soundly defeat Weymouth, 60-42.

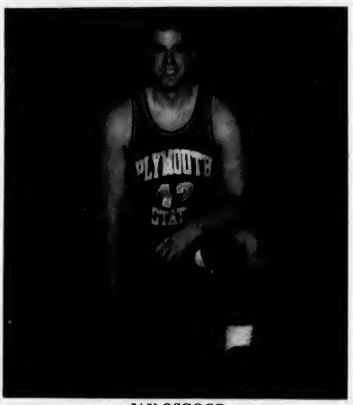
Donovan scored 14 points, Bellot added 10 with seven rebounds and Chris Olsen had 10 points and six rebounds.

Osgood Plymouth State Standout

Quincy's Jay Osgood, a senior co-captain at Plymouth State College in Plymouth, New Hampshire, is a major contributor to the PSC men's basketball team.

Osgood, a 6'4", 235 pound center, leads the team in rebounds with an average of 10.0 per game. He is third on the team in scoring averaging 12.0 per game.

The former Ledger All-Scholastic graduated from Archbishop Williams High School. The son of Dawn and John Osgood, he works summers for the Quincy Recreation Department as a counselor at the Happy Acres Day Camp for special needs youngsters.



JAY OSGOOD

Jolley Hot But Quincy Cool

Quincy tri-captain Dave Jolley, the number two scorer in the Old Colony League, had his second outstanding game of the week last Friday, but the Presidents lost to Bridgewater-Raynham's undefeated league leader (12-0), 87-68, dropping their record to 5-7.

Quincy met Weymouth Tuesday, will play at North Quincy Friday night and will host Plymouth Monday.

Jolley had 25 points and 13 rebounds in the loss to B-R, while tri-captain Joe Crespi added 17 points.

B-R's Jim Bolan had 24 points and Rich Rumbill 16 as the Trojans led at the half, 47-29.

Earlier in the week the Presidents rolled over Falmouth, 71-50, as Jolley scored a career-high 31 points and took down 14 rebounds.

Crespi contributed 12 points and sophomores Harold Mortel, Mike Bartlett and Joe Kelley all played outstanding defense for the Presidents.

Steve Watson led Falmouth with 14 points.

Girls Basketball

Quincy, North Girls Bow

It was a losing week for the Quincy and North Quincy girls' basketball teams.

North Quincy, in its only game of the week, lost to Weymouth, 47-40, dropping its record to 8-4 (6-2 in the Old Colony League).

Tricia Hughes led the North girls with 14 points.

The Quincy girls, following their second win of the year, turned in an excellent effort against Falmouth but dropped a 51-49 squeaker.

Friday night Quincy proved no match for Bridgewater-Raynham's Old Colony League leaders (10-1) and lost, 73-25, dropping its record to 2-8.

Despite its record, Quincy has one of the league's top players in Kim Marsden, the number four scorer in the league with an average of nearly 16 points a game.

The North girls played Plymouth Tuesday, will play at Quincy Friday night and will be home to Taunton Monday.

North Keeps Title Hopes Alive By Tying Barnstable

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy hockey team kept its Old Colony League title and state tournament hopes alive by tying defending Div. 1 champion Barnstable, 3-3, last Saturday at Barnstable.

The Raiders improved to 6-3-3 (4-2-3 in the league).

North Quincy hosted Falmouth last night (Wednesday, will be home to Weymouth Saturday night at 7:50 at the Youth Arena and will play at Bridgewater-Raynham next Wednesday at 6 p.m.

Tom Benson's Raiders trailed, 3-1, going into the last period at Barnstable but sophomore Jim Sapienza scored with an assist for Sean Vernette and John Gladu scored the tying goal with Sean Vernette and Bob Fitzpatrick assisting.

Andrew Vermette had scored for North in the opening period with Sapienza and Fitzpatrick assisting.

Junior Sean Connelly had another outstanding game in goal for the Raiders, making 36 saves. Barnstable's goalie had 29 saves.

Earlier in the week North Quincy blanked Silver Lake, 2-0, as goalie Dennis Ruggere had one of his best nights with 35 saves in recording his second shutout.

Steve O'Brien assisted on McCallum's goal and Fitzpatrick and Andrew Vermette assisted on the final goal.

"These were two good games for us and the boys played well in both," Benson said. "It is awfully tough playing in Barnstable, which has an open rink with no roof. Ruggere and Connelly are playing very well in goal and the defense continues to play well. I think we have a good chance at the state tournament and possibly winning the league title."

stiffer penalty.

"From the families' point of view the evidence was substantial enough for a revocation of the license," Traft said.

Attorney for Quincy Motel Corp. (Quincy Bay Inn), Brian Gilligan, said the fact that the two men were killed influenced the board's decision more than the conduct of the nightclub.

"I feel the decision was based on the accident--not what happened at the lounge that night," he said.

Clancy's father, Donald Clancy, Sr., addressed the board before they made the decision.

"The place was bad 20 years ago, 10 years ago, two years ago... It's still bad," he said. "I just hope you people (the License Board) do the right thing."

In voting down the charge of serving underage persons the board cited the fact that Ward had a false ID and circumstantial evidence showed that Clancy may have used a fake ID to gain entrance to Aquarius. No proof was shown that Clancy had used his own driver's license, showing him to be 19, to get in as Traft contended.

"It's a sorry time for the City of Quincy. We lost two decent young men. But, I think the Quincy Bay Inn did the job to the best of their ability to prevent admission to underage people," Gillis said.

"Regardless of what we decide here today, these families will live the rest of their lives with grief," assistant city solicitor James Timmins, told the board during his summary.

Concerning the charge of serving intoxicated persons, Timmins said the fact that Quincy Bay Inn admitted to "sufficient facts" to warrant a guilty finding is "compelling evidence" that the nightclub was negligent. Quincy Bay Inn made that plea during the criminal trial at Norfolk County Superior Court in Dedham last year.

Admitting sufficient facts is a legal procedure which allows a judge to continue a case without a finding for a certain time period. If no further charges are filed during that time the original charges are usually dismissed.

On the charge of serving underage individuals, Timmins cited the results of Det. Sgt. Richard Laracy's investigation in his summary. Laracy, the city's liquor inspector, told the board he did not have enough evidence to pursue the charge in court.

"Sgt. Laracy's conclusion had been validated by the testimony here," Timmins said.

Acting Superintendent Outlines Goals

Creedon Proposes Creation Of 13 Task Committees

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Acting School Superintendent Eugene Creedon delivered his "vision statement" to the Quincy School Committee Wednesday, outlining his goals for a "community of learners" and asking members to establish 13 task-oriented educational committees.

Creedon's appearance before the School Committee at its meeting Wednesday evening was his first since he was appointed acting superintendent in November. He replaced former Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci, who stepped down last Friday after four and a half years as head of the city's public school system.

Creedon, a 26-year veteran of the Quincy public school system, began his tenure as acting superintendent on Monday. He is considered to be the number one candidate for the permanent superintendent's position since the School Committee named his acting superintendent unanimously.

Creedon will serve as acting superintendent of the city's 16 schools and 8,000 students until a permanent superintendent is selected. Mayor James Sheets, who is vice chairman of the school committee, and other school committee members, will assess Creedon's abilities as acting superintendent and then determine whether to make his appointment permanent.

Addressing the School Committee at its meeting Wednesday evening, Creedon told members "It may be somewhat presumptuous of me to place before you a vision statement but I believe that this is a necessity in order for us to establish a clear direction and to set goals and priorities.

Acting School Supt. EUGENE CREEDON

"As a I reflect upon the past 26 years as as a Quincy teacher, principal and central office administrator, I firmly believe that if we are to plan for the future, then we must not only appreciate and respect the past, but we must build upon that solid foundation."

Essentially, Creedon said his vision for the Quincy public school system stems from the same directive give to Francis Parker, the city's first school superintendent, by the Quincy School Committee in 1875: "Make the people understand what you are doing."

To increase awareness, Creedon told the committee he intends "to make meetings with teachers, principals and parents the central means of moving this school system from the excellence its has known in the past to an even greater excellence in the future. I know of genius among our teachers and administrators.

"The authority that I have as acting superintendent I intend to give to them and in return I will demand creative thinking, observation, restructuring, independence, research and careful planning."

6-Month Moratorium On Downtown Restaurants

By STEVE KAVANAGH

There will be no new restaurants in Quincy Square... at least for the next six months.

The City License Board voted, 5-0, to establish a moratorium on Common Victualer licenses in downtown Quincy until the board's first meeting in September.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman proposed the moratorium "until this city gives us some guidelines on the direction we want to take."

Last week the board denied a request for a change of location in the Square for a Quincy Center tavern after Mayor James Sheets sent a letter of opposition to the board.

The board will not hold any hearings on CV applications for Quincy Square at least until September.

"The mayor should have some plans on the cross-town connector by then," said Board Chairman John Gillis.

"We are not doing anyone any favors if this big plan (Quincy Plan) is in the works and we grant a license. Then a few months later they (new business) are out in the street," said Building Inspector Matt Mulvey.

Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue said it was important to specifically "define the Square."

The board agreed the area in question would be Hancock Street from Dimmock to School Streets, the Ross Parkingway, Granite Street from the Star Market area back to Hancock Street.

"We are saturated (with restaurants)," Gillis said.

"We have to be fair to the businesses that are there now," Gorman said.

19 Applicants For Traffic Engineer Post

A field of 19 candidates, including three Quincy residents, have applied for the vacant City Traffic Engineer position.

Quincy Personnel Director Kathy Yaeger said she will begin reviewing resumes this week and start interviewing applicants next week. Yaeger said a replacement should be named by early March for David Kinnecom who resigned last week to take a job as an engineering supervisor with the State of Utah's Department of Transportation.

Quincy's traffic engineer is responsible for the design, operation and maintenance of city traffic signals, signs, pavement markings, parking meters, and the city parking garage.

The new traffic engineer will have plenty to do including work on the proposed cross-town connector from Burgin Parkway to Route 3A and the reconstruction of the intersection at East Squantum Street and Quincy Shore Drive this year.

Charles Debreczeni Candidate For Republican State Committee

Charles Debreczeni of Quincy announces his candidacy for Andrew Card's open Republican State Committee seat in the March 10 Presidential primary.

Debreczeni lives with his wife Flory on Adams St. He is the president of a local manufacturing company and also operates as a business consultant from his office on Willard St. in West Quincy.

Debreczeni says he is currently forging new economic business ties between Massachusetts and eastern Europe. He is also president of a charitable organization that aids Romanian children orphaned by the fallout communist regime.

Debreczeni says he has staunchly supported all Republican candidates, from the president to local candidates. He is an active member of a number of Republican organizations.

"The major role and obligation of the State Committeeman is to help and support Republican candidates during their campaign for political office," Debreczeni said. "Of the three candidates for State Committeeman, I alone have a track record showing help and support for all Republican candidates!

"During 1990's most critical election in decades, my opponent did not help nor support our brave Republican legislative candidates! In fact, he was helping and supporting Democrats! Now, this same man seeks election to the State Committee, offering excuses and questionable promises. I strongly believe that actions speak louder than words and my actions speak louder than his words!"

Thomas Bolinder Promoted To Quincy Police Sergeant

Thomas Bolinder, an 11-year veteran of the Quincy Police Department, has been promoted to sergeant, replacing Sgt. Dennis Cronin who recently retired.

Bolinder, 43, and a resident of Hanson, was sworn in as the city's newest police sergeant by City Clerk John Gillis at a ceremony Thursday morning in the office of Mayor James Sheets. Among those attending the ceremony were Police Chief Francis Mullen, Captain Robert Salvaggio, Executive Secretary Thomas Koch, Asst. City Clerk Joseph Shea and Bolinder's wife, Susan.

Mullen praised Bolinder, a detective in the departments' criminal investigation bureau, for his dedication to the police department and community. "Tom Bolinder has been a very good police officer in many ways: public relations, community service and investigations. He gets along well with his peers and shares the department's common goals to go ahead.

"I think he's a credit to his family, a credit to the Quincy police department and a credit to the citizens of Quincy," Mullen said.

The chief also spoke kindly of the man Bolinda is replacing, retired Sgt. Denis Cronin. Mullen noted that he and Sgt. Cronin came on the force at virtually the same time 35 years ago.

"I'll miss him because he's a good guy. If we had to swap officers, this is a good swap."

Koch, speaking on behalf of Sheets who was in Washington, D.C. attending a labor conference, congratulated Bolinder.

"I've never heard anything bad about Tom Bolinder. He's a professional and well respected by his peers.

Quincy Officials, New MWRA Director Meet, Tour Sludge Facility

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Several city officials, including Mayor James Sheets, met with new MWRA Executive Director Douglas MacDonald Tuesday morning in the mayor's office, and later toured the authority's sludge treatment facility in Quincy Point.

Sheets said the meeting, which he described as a "private discussion," did not focus on any specific issues such as sewer rates. Instead, the mayor said the meeting centered on getting acquainted.

"It was an effort to meet with one another and evaluate each others style. I think it was very successful," he said.

Although Sheets and MacDonald did not discuss specific issues involving the city and the MWRA, the mayor said the new director impressed him as someone who will be more accessible than former director Paul Levy.

At times, Levy's rapport with Quincy officials was more contentious than harmonious, as the MWRA and city often found themselves at opposite sides on authority issues, most notably the MWRA's refusal to locate its headquarters to the Fore River staging area.

Sheets welcomed MacDonald's difference in style.

"His (MacDonald's) whole behavior indicated that he would be more accessible. He intends to work very, very closely with mayors and selectmen in the MWRA's district.

"He has a more honest, warmer style than Paul Levy and that's not a knock against Paul. He just approaches problems differently," Sheets said.

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro and Asst. City Solicitor Joseph "Jay" MacRitchie also attended the meeting. DeCristofaro's ward includes the Fore River staging area and MacRitchie is the city's representative on the MWRA Board of Directors.

Quincy officials and MacDonald also toured the interim sludge facility at the Fore River staging area. For MacDonald, an environmental attorney who wrote the legislation creating the MWRA, it was his first trip to the facility.

The group also visited residents neighboring the sludge facility. Among the concerns residents raised were odor and noise from the plant.

For MacDonald, his trip to Quincy was sort of a homecoming. He was born here on Greenview St.. His great-grandfather also worked for the city's sewer division and was responsible for laying sewer pipes in the Greenview St. area where he lived during the 1940s and 1950s.

MacDonald, who was appointed executive director by the MWRA Board of Directors last week, is expected to take the reigns of the authority March 1.

As executive director, MacDonald will oversee 1764 employees responsible for operating and maintaining the region's waterworks and sewerage systems; manage a current expense budget of $273 million in 1992 and capital budget of $578 million; and direct the $6.1 billion Boston Harbor project, the largest public works project in New England history.

Fire Dept Fees May Be Increased

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The City Council Monday night discussed the possibility of increasing the amounts of fire department fees charged for permits and inspections.

Asked by Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien how large the increases would be, Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said they would be minimal.

"They (the increases) would only be about $25 in some instances, a bit more in other instances," said Gorman.

However, the council decided to study the matter further to see how the increases compared to those in neighboring towns and communities.

The matter was put into committee.

BEWARE OF BRONCHITIS

Colds are everywhere. When the cough of a cold turns into bronchitis, special care is in order. Bronchitis is an inflammation of the mucus membrane that lines the main airways of the lungs, called the bronchi. Deep coughing, which can be painful, brings up yellowish or grayish phlegm. Breathlessness and fever may also occur. Nearly everyone gets acute bronchitis occasionally, and it usually clears up on its own. Treatment includes fever and cough medication, plus rest in a warm room with a vaporizer or humidifier. Repeated attacks, however, can damage the lining of the bronchi and lead to chronic bronchitis and serious consequences for the entire respiratory system.

P.S. Call your doctor if you cough up blood, become breathless, have a temperature over 101 degrees, or suffer repeated attacks of bronchitis.

If you are experiencing the symptoms of acute bronchitis, it is important that you contact a doctor as soon as possible. If you would like to learn about this topic, or about how you can modify your lifestyle to help ward off heart disease, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. 'We Need A Full-Time Uncle Sam'

You might say he's now Quincy's best known resident.

And, the most popular.

Everybody certainly knows his name. He's greeted warmly whether he's walking Hancock St., Quincy, Beacon Hill, Boston, Fifth Ave., New York or Pennsylvania Ave., Washington.

Everyone smiles and says hello when they see him. They like to have their picture taken with him. They never forget his name.

ROUNSEVILLE

Who?

Uncle Sam Rounseville.

Since making Uncle Sam his official name with court approval last June on Flag Day, the former Quincy businessman and former LeRoy Rounseville has received hundreds of letters from around the country most of them addressed simply to "Uncle Sam, Quincy, MA."

His fame is spreading. He recently received a letter from the Aleutian Islands. And one from Russia.

From Gorby?

"No," says Rounseville. "I think it is from a runner from the Ukraine who was in the Boston Marathon last April."

Rounseville is still trying to find an interpreter to help him decipher the letter's contents.

He has had his photo taken with President George Bush in Boston. And with the First Lady who was visiting in Springfield.

Rounseville was in his full Uncle Sam regalia but carrying his hat in his hand when he met the Bushes.

"You look lovely, but why don't you put your hat on," Barbara Bush asked him.

"The White House staff doesn't want me to in the presence of the President or First Lady," Rounseville replied.

She took the hat from him and placed it over her heart.

"She's a real nice person," Rounseville says.

Also with Gov. William Weld who sent him a personal invitation to attend his State of the State address ceremonies.

He attended last year's Baseball Hall of Fame induction ceremonies at Cooperstown, N.Y. hobnobbing with the inductees. He made a big hit — and a big photo splash — in a number of newspapers holding a sign proclaiming: "America's Favorite Uncle Loves America's Favorite Pasttime."

He was on the ice and in the national TV spotlight during the singing of the American and Canadian national anthems before the Team USA and Team Canada Olympics game at Albany, N.Y.

He led an Olympic Parade fundraiser parade at the Sheraton, Boston, sponsored by Blue Cross to aid Massachusetts' Olympians.

He made another hit during the Boston First Night festivities New Year's Eve with a sign urging: "Buy American, 1992."

Rounseville got the idea to become Uncle Sam as a member of the group that formed the Heroes' Welcome Fund for returning veterans from the Persian Gulf.

"It was easy," he said, "to open corporate doors, "for contributions."

When someone asked "Who's calling?", Rounseville would reply: "Uncle Sam." He had no trouble getting in. The group raised something like $750,000.

Rounseville then decided he would really like to be Uncle Sam.

He went into Norfolk County Probate Court and got his name changed. The judge said he could but told him, "I don't want to see you doing any beer commercials."

Rounseville opened headquarters in downtown Quincy and launched a campaign to become the official Uncle Sam.

The campaign is still on.

Just before the Christmas holiday he sent out 3,000 greeting cards including ones to every member of the U.S. House of Representatives and Senate.

"And I hand signed every one of them," he says.

Rounseville has also had his driver's license changed to read: "Uncle Sam Rounseville." He is now working on a license plate, something like "USA SAM."

He lives at 77 Adams Place, just down the street from the Adams Mansion.

"John and John Quincy are my neighbors," he muses.

And he is actually listed in the telephone directory as Uncle Sam.

He hopes someday to be recognized as the nation's official Uncle Sam.

Why does he want to be Uncle Sam?

"Somebody has to do it," he says. "We need a full-time Uncle Sam — not just a Fourth of July Sam.

"There are too many problems out there that need Uncle Sam's attention. I'm working on plans now to help solve those problems — including health care."

He says when he has the plans finalized he is going calling on Congress.

LaRAIA

JOSEPH LaRAIA finished out of the money as a City Council at-large candidate last fall in a futile comeback bid.

So that's the end — as many believe — of LaRaia on the campaign trail?

"Wrong," says a close friend of his. "He'll be back again when he picks the right spot."

McMAHON

Fr. JOHN McMAHON, retired pastor of St. Mary's Church, West Quincy, likes to look and plan ahead.

He will celebrate the 50th anniversary of his ordination at St. Mary's Sunday, May 16, 1993 at a 2 p.m. Mass. And simultaneously celebrate his 80th birthday at Morrisette Legion Post following the Mass.

Fr. McMahon served 24 1/2 years at St. Mary's — 23 as pastor. He is now at Regina Cleri in Boston but frequents Quincy.

TOBIN

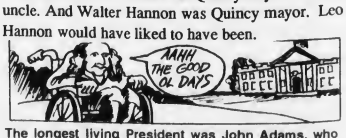
SMILE DEPT: Quincy District Court Clerk Magistrate Arthur Tobin was called to the Quincy police station Sunday to post bail for a resident charged with drunken driving.

A police officer told the man "Now, listen to Mr. Tobin."

And the guy apparently wanting to impress them with his political knowledge and connections said: "I know your uncle, the mayor."

"And I know that other mayor — Leo Hannon."

Arthur Tobin of course was Quincy mayor -- not his uncle. And Walter Hannon was Quincy mayor. Leo Hannon would have liked to have been.



The longest living President was John Adams, who died at the age of 90 years and eight months in 1826.

Not Dashed By Loss Of Lexington

Editor, The Quincy Sun;

The decision by the U.S. Navy to award the U.S.S. Lexington to the City of Corpus Christ, Texas, has dashed no dreams of this Quincy resident who chose to live in the City of Presidents in 1984.

I was not born and raised here and, perhaps, that is why I never fully understood the campaign to bring the Lady Lex to the Town River site along Southern Artery. Once the shipyard site was ruled out due to reconstruction work on the U.S.S. Lexington, Quincy was doomed.

While I commend all those Quincy residents who worked endless hours to bring the aircraft carrier back home, I always believed that bringing the "Gray Ghost" home would not be the tourist attraction many hoped it would be.

Some supporters have suggested that Quincy was done in by the Navy, by the City of Corpus Christi and by US Senators Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas and Phil Gramm, R-Texas. But were we done in and out-done by what that Texas city had to offer?

The Lexington isn't going to some Mexican Mayberry, it's going to a city with a population approximately 325,000. It is nearly twice as large as Worcester, New England's second largest city. The ship, we are told, will now be moored on the downtown waterfront next to a new golf course and the Texas Aquarium which drew over 700,000 tourists in its first year (1990). The Navy looked at hard facts and not simply pork barrel.

Many outside Quincy questioned whether a Town River site could draw the estimated 200,000 to 300,000 tourists to earn its keep.

The only way Massachusetts could have won the USS Lexington is if the City of Boston had entered the bidding war for it. And, then, only if the sites offered included Long Wharf next to the New England Aquarium or over in Charlestown at the Navy Yard moored next to the destroyer U.S.S. Cassin Young and Old Ironsides.

Quincy put up a good fight. The city never gave up until the effort was ended by Navy officials.

I congratulate the City of Corpus Christi for its good fortune and wish it well. The City of Quincy still has its proud history intact. We were here at the birth of this Nation. Two U.S. Presidents came from here and no other community across the country can make the same claim. We have history wherever we turn. The Navy can't take this away when the Lexington heads south. One ship's loss won't sink this community's pride.

I know that Mayor Jim Sheets is disappointed but as Henry Bosworth in his Sunbeams column said, "...there should be no shame to losing a good fight... We'll get over losing Lady Lex. And we should--and will--keep on trying--to make things better for Quincy."

Remember, the Lexington is only a ship--a visible symbol of Quincy-built pride--but that brand of community pride can be found within each of us as we try and build up our community. We are many people with many cultures but our common bond is making Quincy a better place for the future and our children. We never needed the Lexington to do that for us. From the jaws of defeat, we can still find a victory in all this, right?

The Winter Of Our Discontent

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Now is the winter of our discontent
Made even worse by Presidential politics.

We face a dearth of competent candidates
Equalling the erosion of our economy.
We must conclude we have only one choice
Which is to continue existing mediocrity.

Assessing the incumbency of Bush and Quayle
We find the announced alternatives cannot compete:

A caterwauling columnist committing political Fratricide;
A Californian caparisioned in catastrophe;
A Governor involved in media-implied adultery;
A pedant long removed from Massachusetts stature;
A dreamer who proposes economically disastrous health protection;
A Legislator whose record rings of failure.

Well, the giants of our land live only in the past,
And even they are tainted by History's microscope.
Perhaps like the final fall of Rome
We are destined to repeat the tragedy of time
That does not permit the renaissance of hope
That our Phoenix can arrive from Democracy's cold ashes.

But still there stands our incandescent dreams
Of government by someone touched by greatness;
And we can hope that there will surface soon
Some faintly flawed but capable individual
Who, next November, will provide a catalyst
To return our Nation to remembered glory
And as an optimist I'll wait with patient faith
That from our unique and varied populace
There will appear a logical leader for our land.

Bethany Church Starts $182,000 Building Drive

Feb. 5-11
65 Years Ago

Members of Bethany Congregational Church pledged more than $56,000 at the kickoff dinner of a fundraising campaign to build a new church at the corner of Coddington and Spear Sts.

The goal of the drive was $182,000.

It was planned to build the church in Gothic-style with granite blocks of various colors to be mined from a Quincy quarry opened especially for that purpose.

The Bethany congregation was being aided in its efforts to build a new church by the Granite Trust Co. which planned to build a tower on the site of the old church, Hancock and Chestnut Sts.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE J. D'OLIMPIO

Hot Chicken Salad

When two friends tell you about a recipe in the same week, you know it has to be great! This past week, my friend Alpha visited me and told me about a great chicken dish she had at a church luncheon. Then a couple of days later, Alicia came to the house and raved about the same thing. So here it is.

HOT CHICKEN SALAD

2 cups cooked chicken
2 cups diced celery
1/2 cup toasted almonds
salt and pepper to taste
2 tsps grated onion
2 Tbsps lemon juice
1 cup mayonnaise
1/2 cup shredded cheese
1 cup potato chips, crushed

Mix the first six ingredients. Add the mayonnaise and mix until blended. Pile lightly into a slightly greased casserole dish and sprinkle the top with the shredded cheese and potato chips. Bake in a 450 degree oven for 15 minutes. You'll have to go off the diet for this one!

Marie D'Olimpio is the author of "Simply Italian-And then Some," a collection of her own recipes. Copies of the book are available at Previte's Market, Sumner St., Quincy Point, Samoset Pharmacy, Samoset Ave., Merrymount and Winfield Gift Emporium, Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Andrea Scott Works With Orphans In Romania

Andrea Scott of Quincy was one of seven students from Eastern Nazarene College (ENC) to travel to Romania for the month of January.

The students and other adults and health professionals from the U.S. and Ireland, in association with the Free Romania Foundation, helped care for some of the 140,000 institutionalized children in Romanian state-run orphanages.

Miss Scott was stationed in the village of Nicoresti, where she played with sick and malnutritioned children daily. For the least developed children, she also helped feed, bathe, and change their clothing. The students saw the experience as an opportunity to share compassion and love through Christian outreach.

The daughter of Jon and Margaret Scott of Quincy who are also foreign missionaries, she is a 1990 graduate of Lajes High School in Azores, Portugal. While in high school, she was president of the Foreign Language Club, yearbook editor, and worked on the school newspaper. Miss Scott was also a member of the Drama Club and National Honor Society.

Officers re-elected are Don McCarthy, vice president; Peter Griswold, corresponding secretary and Sheila Petrucelli, treasurer.

The council has refined its goals for the year. Goals approved at the meeting were:

•More community involvement in Quincy public schools.

•Reinstate middle school foreign language.

•Maintain class size within present school committee guidelines.

•Change screening process to insure parental and staff involvement. A sub-committee was set up to review policy.

•Support site-based decision making and management.

•Support seeking world class standards with local (school-based) decision making as to how to implement those standards.

•Support more positive public relations for city schools.

The council also discussed expanding recycling in schools and to suggest other schools consider running back-to-back enrichment programs-sharing cost of program with other school; more than one school participate together.

The Merrymount and Atherton Hough Elementary Schools were successful in this endeavor. All elementary principals receive copies of what other schools are doing.

The Citywide Parents' Council has also requested information regarding the availability of a handicapped accessible building to move its meetings to. The council's next meeting will be held Monday, Feb. 10 at 7:30 p.m. in the Quincy High School Pride Room.

Financial Planning Program Introduced To QHS Students

Quincy High School announces it will incorporate the high school financial planning program into its curriculum. The program is a nationwide effort to teach young people essential concepts of personal finance and sound money management.

Quincy High School will offer the program in its Automobile Insurance Class (InVEST), taught by Harry Carter.

The Financial Planning Program materials are geared to the 16 to 18 year-old group, and emphasize such concepts of understanding the financial planning process, earning income to meet goals, protecting assets, savings, and planning to meet financial goals.

The program was developed by the Denver, Colorado-based College for Financial Planning and is provided without charge as a public service. The college is an independent, nonprofit, educational institution that offers educational curricula to professionals in financial services.

The teacher designated to implement the program at Quincy High will work in conjunction with Philip Boncaldo, Associates, Inc., who will assist in the presentation of materials and be available to answer questions from students.

The High School Financial Planning Program is evaluated by those participating in the program and the feedback is used to refine course content.

For more information about the program, call Harry Carter at 984-8836, or the director at the College of Financial Planning, (303) 220-1200.

Child Passenger Safety Awareness Week

As part of "Child Passenger Safety Awareness Week" Feb. 9-15, Police Chief Francis Mullen has directed newly appointed Safety Officer Dave Doherty to visit Quincy schools and remind children that the proper use of seat belts can save lives and prevent injuries.

Massachusetts law requires all children 12 and under to be fastened in a safety belt or child car seat when driving in a motor vehicle. There is a fine of $25 for every child 12 years and under not fastened in a safety belt or child car seat.

Parents should secure their children properly to help save their lives and reduce injuries in the event of a motor vehicle accident. Proper use of seat belts and child car seats can reduce death and injuries by more than 50 percent.

Mullen will institute selective enforcement throughout the city to ensure voluntary compliance with the Massachusetts Child Passenger Safety Law and reminds all parents and guardians that the leading cause of child death can be eliminated in a snap.

"Buckle up our most valuable resource, our children," Mullen said.

$6,400 For City Data Processing Supplies

The City Council Monday night unanimously approved the appropriation of $6,400 to the Data Processing Department for various supplies.

"These expenses were completely unanticipated," said Data Processing Department Director Robert Brennan. "Our budget has no way of handling them at this time."

Among the expenses were electrical work in the department's computer room, repairs to the printer in the Collector's office, a UPS battery replacement, software fix Keystone, and a perforator for tax bills.

No Regrets As School Superintendent

Ricci: 'I Tried My Very Best'

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Dr. Robert Ricci cleaned out his desk in the Superintendent of Schools office last week. But he left behind a legacy of integrity, hard work, vision and accomplishment.

Ricci and his wife Josephine were honored Friday afternoon at a farewell reception at the Neighborhood Club attended by more than 200 people including parents, teachers, students, administrators, city officials, and business and civic leaders.

His sometimes stormy 4 1/2-year tenure was highlighted by the revitalization of the vocational-technical high school, the merging of Quincy Point and Sterling Middle Schools, national recognition for Snug Harbor Community School and Broad Meadows Middle School, an outstanding business-school partnership, a reduced drop-out rate, controversy over prayer at graduation and North Quincy High's "Yakoo" mascot, and most recently concerns over students bringing weapons to school.

Ricci told his friends and well-wishers he had no regrets about his time with the Quincy Public Schools.

"I tried my very best," he said. He compared himself to former Mayor Francis McCauley (who attended with his wife Sandra) whom he praised as "a man who tells it like it is. I believe that's the way I am. You may not agree with me but I tell it like it is."

"One of the things Dr. Ricci did very, very well is the relationships he established with the community. He got a lot of community agencies, the Rotary Club, Boy Scouts, etc., to work in concert with the school system," said Dr. Carol Lee Griffith, assistant superintendent for pupil personnel services.

"The educational system, police and fire departments have worked closely with local businesses and city hall. And the schools are better off for it," Ricci said.

"I think he's been great. I wish he were here for another 10 years," Mary Collins, School Committee vice chairman, said. "In a short time he has done a great deal including the infusion of technology into the curriculum, the drop-out rate, and his general innovativeness in tough financial times. I'll miss him a lot."

"I think he deserves a lot of credit for the successes in the past five years," School Committeeman Steve Durkin said.

Durkin, Collins and Peggy Nigro were the three Committee members who initially supported Ricci's appointment in 1987. Ricci was hired after Dr. Richard Chrystal withdrew his name from consideration for the job.

"I thought at the time that the city and school department could benefit from bringing someone in with an outside perspective. I think that assessment was validated by his performance," Durkin said. "I admire him for his integrity and his unwillingness to bend to political pressure. I regret he's leaving."

Ricci himself said he has "mixed feelings about leaving" Quincy.

"I arrived here to a similar reception. Quincy is full of very warm people. It doesn't matter what strata they are from. They turn out in numbers and they are there when you need them."

Ricci, who sometimes skirmished with school committee members and Quincy College president O. Clayton Johnson, said he will always have good memories of the city.

"Despite the acrimony I experienced sometimes with the school committee--which was not great--my feelings have grown stronger for Quincy. If all communities could be as close as Quincy the country would be a lot better off," Ricci said. "I have very positive emotions for the city."

Johnson and Ricci traded compliments during the reception

"Somethings Dr. Ricci and I were able to work on together, that escaped publication in the newspapers, were the Heritage (drop-out prevention) Program, technology program and the Project 2000 program," Johnson said.

The latter program is an innovative incentive program for fifth graders at Snug Harbor. Quincy College has invested money to pay tuition for the students beginning in the year 2000. The college will also provide tutoring and support services to the students as they progress through middle and high school.

"Our school has benefited tremendously from Dr. Ricci being here. He was the first who noticed Snug Harbor needed programs that other schools didn't," Deanna White-Hebert, a teacher at Snug Harbor, said.

White-Hebert said Ricci was instrumental in making Snug Harbor eligible for Chapter 1 federal funding which helped provide Snug Harbor with a computer lab and a pre-school program.

Ricci said he feels comfortable turning the job over to Assistant Superintendent Eugene Creedon and that Quincy schools are heading in the right direction.

"I came to do a job and make some changes in five to seven years," Ricci said. "I didn't plan on coming to Quincy and retiring."

"I would have liked to do more at the high schools by implementing the team teaching concept... but that's coming," he said.

Ricci gave credit to Quincy teachers and administrators for the positive changes of his tenure.

"I think as our ideas reach fruition Quincy will be out front," he said.

"Quincy is going in the direction the state should go."

The former Providence, R.I., Superintendent of Schools said being an outsider helped him in his Quincy job.

"Seeing things from an outside perspective--not that I see things better than anyone else--but sometimes things can be done differently," he said.

Many perceived Ricci as a problem solver who was adept at recognizing problems and addressing them.

"He saw the problem with space at our school," said Bernazzani School principal Morrie Hibbard. "And this year he provided us with extra personnel that we needed at our crowded upper grades."

Incidents of students bringing guns and knives to school this year prompted Ricci to draft a school security plan.

Last spring Ricci faced two difficult issues which captured the public's attention--prayer at graduation and the Yakoo. Ironically, neither was an educational issue.

Ed Grogan, the Atlantic Middle School teacher who spearheaded the drive to change the Yakoo symbol, praised Ricci.

"I think he's been a good superintendent. He's gone out on a limb on Yakoo--a very sensitive issue. We're trying to educate the city about how it offends native Americans.

"I thought it was a courageous position Dr. Ricci took. He helped move the issue forward," Grogan said.

Ricci was presented a number of plaques and gifts including a photo scrap book from Quincy High students Jody Ravida, Maria Marineau and Mary Quilty representing the Heritage Program.

City Councillor Pat Toland, representing Mayor James Sheets, presented a proclamation from the mayor.

"I hope the Quincy school system will nurture those outstanding programs Dr. Ricci leaves behind," Toland said.

The Supt.'s secretary, Tefta Burrelli, made a warm and humorous tribute to Ricci. She joked about his swift speaking style and Rhode Island accent.

"It's too bad he's leaving. We were just starting to understand him."

John "Butch" Mahoney, Social Health Coordinator, presented a plaque to the former police officer.

"Thanks for your commitment to kids, particularly the safety of kids," Mahoney said.

Collins presented Ricci with the Distinguished Educator Award on behalf of the School Committee.

Carmen Mariano, former Deputy Superintendent, who worked closely with Ricci, praised Ricci for his character and dedication.

Sen. Paul Harold presented Ricci with a citation from the State Senate.

Officials from the Boys Scouts of America and the Rotary Club also commended Ricci for developing relationships between the schools and the community.

Creedon concluded the tribute by telling Ricci he is always welcome to visit at Quincy schools.

SOMETHING IN COMMON--Police Chief Francis Mullen (left) and Safety Officer Robert Hanna extend thier best wishes to outgoing Superintendent of Schools Robert Ricci and his wife Josephine. Ricci, a former police officer, was instrumental in developing a partnership between the police and school departments.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

On the occasion of Abraham Lincoln's birthday we hope the men who hold positions of leadership in this country pay heed to some of his advice.

Some of Mr. Lincoln's axioms bear repeating because they were basic then and are basic still. Here are some of them:

1. You cannot bring about prosperity by discouraging thrift.

2. You cannot strengthen the weak by weakening the strong.

3. You cannot help the small man by tearing down the big men.

4. You cannot help the poor by destroying the rich.

5. You cannot lift the wage earner by pulling down the wage payer.

6. You cannot keep out of trouble by spending more of your income.

7. You cannot further the brotherhood of men by inciting class hatred.

8. You cannot establish sound security on borrowed money.

9. You cannot build character and courage by taking away a man's initiative and independence.

10. You cannot help man permanently by doing for them what they could and should do for themselves.

On Lincoln's birthday let us all, leaders and citizens alike, think upon these thoughts

Basketball

North Roars Back To Edge Quincy, 69-68

It wasn't an easy week for the North Quincy boys' basketball team, but the Raiders managed to eke out two close decisions, including the comeback of the year against Quincy, to improve its record to 10-4 (8-2) in the Old Colony League). Quincy fell to 6-8.

Ted Stevenson's Red Raiders overcame a 17-point deficit (49-32) in the last 12 minutes to squeeze by the Presidents, 69-68, defeating Quincy for the second time and claiming the city championship.

North Quincy, still very much in the running for the league title, hosted Silver Lake last night (Wednesday), will be home to league-leading Bridgewater-Raynham Friday night at 7 and will be at Barnstable next Tuesday night at 7.

John Franceschini's Quincy team will play at Taunton Friday night and will host Silver Lake next Tuesday night.

Calling a timeout with North trailing by 17 points, Stevenson told his players to go out and show Quincy what North basketball is all about.

The Raiders came back strong with a 29-12 run and eventually tied the game at 61.

After Brian McPartlin put Quincy ahead, 68-67, Sean Donovan, the number four scorer in the league, just beat the buzzer, converting a Desmond Bellot miss, to give North its big victory.

"When we were down by 17, I told our guys to keep up the defensive pressure, to force some turnovers and to start playing like we're capable of," Stevenson said. "They came out of that timeout and showed just what they were made of."

Paced by Steve Jolley, the number two scorer in the league, and the backcourt duo of Joey Crespi and Robbie Kane, Quincy led, 38-30, at halftime.

When Steve Loud followed Jolley's basket with one of his own, the Presidents appeared to be home free, but, ignited by seven points from Luke Sheets and successive three-pointers from Bo Smith and Donovan, North got back into the game.

Jolley had another big night with 29 points for Quincy, while Donovan had 15 and Bellot 14, including four straight down the stretch, for North.

"Our guys worked hard all game long, but we had a three-minute stretch where we started to come undone," said Franceschini. "I feel badly for the boys because the game came down to the simple task of boxing their guys out on that last shot. If we box Donovan out, we win the game. Still, it was just another great Quincy-North Quincy game."

Earlier in the week North was expected to have a breather at Plymouth as it faced the Blue Eagles, who were only 1-12. But, it proved otherwise as North was forced into overtime before taking a 67-65 decision.

Donovan, who led the way with 23 points, sank a jumper with just three seconds left in regulation to send the game into OT.

Smith tapped in a shot with 21 seconds left in overtime to give North the win. Bellot scored 14 points and Chris Olsen chipped in with 10.

Quincy turned in a fine all-around performance to defeat Weymouth, 58-43, led by Jolley's 17 points, 13 rebounds and four blocked shots.

Kane had 11 points and five steals and Crespi scored 10 points.

North Girls Breeze By Quincy

The North Quincy girls' basketball team displayed a strong defense which led to two easy victories last week, improving its record to 10-4 (8-2 in the Old Colony League).

Last Thursday night the North girls breezed past Quincy, 47-23, as the Quincy girls fell to 3-10.

North Quincy played at Silver Lake last night (Wednesday), will host Bridgewater-Raynham Friday and will be home to Barnstable next Tuesday.

The Quincy girls are at Arlington today (Thursday) at 5:30, will host Taunton Friday night and will play at Silver Lake next Tuesday.

In defeating Quincy for the second time to claim the city championship, North raced out to a 23-9 advantage in the first half.

North thwarted the Quincy attack while seniors Tricia Hughes, Cindy White and Jen White scored eight points each, leading a balanced attack.

Senior Cindy Mitton scored seven points for North while Holly McDonough paced the Quincy girls with 10 points.

Earlier in the week North Quincy held Plymouth to 10 points in the first half to jump out to a 28-10 lead and defeated the Blue Eagles, 40-26, despite being held to 12 second half points themselves.

North's strong defense held Heather Morin, the third leading scorer in the league with a 26.6 point per game average, to 14 points.

"Our plan was to stop Morin," said North coach Ken Panaro. "We held her to six points in the first half and the game was over at the half. We felt we could let their guard (Kara Porter) shoot from the outside and she wasn't hitting early on, so our strategy worked."

Noreen McDonagh and Nicole Sapienza were responsible for keeping Morin from her favorite shooting spot. McDonagh had nine points and three rebounds.

Cindy White had eight points and seven rebounds and Jen Santry 11 points and six rebounds.

Hughes and Regina Murphy also turned in excellent all-around games for North Quincy.

Jeff Craig scored the lone Quincy goal with Jimmy Smith and Scott MacPherson assisting.

Earlier in the week Quincy played one of its poorest games of the year in losing to Bridgewater-Raynham, 7-4.

Keeping Safe And Warm

We all try to heat our homes as economically as possible, however some ways are safer than others. Here are some safety tips to keep warm and safe in the winter.

Always maintain a safe water level in the boiler of your furnace. Today, most boilers come with automatic water feeds, but if your furnace is older, you may have to do this manually. Although most furnaces have a low water shut off, this is only a safety device to make sure the burner cannot run without water. If the shut off malfunctions there is a chance the furnace may overheat and cause a fire. It is important to keep the water at the level recommended by the manufacturer or heating technician. Every spring have your furnace cleaned by a certified technician.

If you have a forced hot air furnace, make sure your filters are clean. Filters should be changed on a regular basis in the winter time, this is not only safe, it will insure the maximum efficiency of the furnace.

Electric base board heaters should be dusted and vacuumed out regularly. Dust, dirt and pet hair have a tendency to collect under the baseboard and may compromise the electrical connections. Remember also to never run wires from other electrical devices on top of, or across an electric or any other base board heater.

Space heaters may sometimes be economical, but are often dangerous. Numerous fires and fire related deaths are caused by space heaters. If you feel compelled to use a space heater there are some safety tips to abide by:

- Never leave a space heater unattended.
- Never sleep whole a space heater is on in the room./
- Never use a space heater around children.
- Never use a space heater on or near any combustibles.
- Never use a space heater near a bed.
- Never put a space heater where it may tip.
- Never use a damaged space heater.

If you use electric blankets, be careful not to put other blankets on top of them when in use. Piling other blankets on top of an energized electric blanket may cause the electric blanket to overheat and cause a fire. Try not to get the blanket wet in any way, this may cause a shock hazard. When the blanket gets dirty, have it dry cleaned unless specified by the manufacturer.

Lydon-Russell Renews Lofty Oaks Membership

Lydon-Russell Funeral Home of Quincy has renewed its affiliation with Lofty Oaks Association, a New Hampshire organization dedicated to reforestation and conservation efforts in Massachusetts.

The firms arranges to have a tree planted for each service that they perform to provide a living memorial in honor of the deceased and to renew the forest life of Massachusetts.

The memorial trees are planted in the spring and fall. This program is part of a large endeavor, to restore the landscape and our environment with the eternal beauty of living trees.

After each service, close family members and friends are informed that the memorial tree has been arranged for by John j. Lydon Jr. of the Lydon-Russell Funeral Home. When a certified nurseryman has planted the tree, the designated people will receive a certificate of planting suitable for framing and keeping in the family's history.

Feeling "Funny" About Being Touched?

You kids know all the safety rules for home and school and outdoors, but I want to be sure you know these special rules. Take some tips from me, McGruff, the Crime Dog:

- Remember that you're allowed to say NO, loud and clear, if any adult -- even if it's someone you know -- wants to touch a part of your body and you don't want them to.
- If you feel "funny" about what somebody older than you says or does to you, BE SURE to tell an adult you trust about it. Tell them exactly what makes you feel "funny."
- Remember that you can trust most adults. They want you to be safe, and they want to know about things that happen to you that you don't like. They have to know, too, because if adults do things to children that they shouldn't do, it takes another adult to get them to stop.
- Strangers don't usually ask kids to let them take their pictures, and you shouldn't let anyone take pictures of you -- even if someone says they'll give you something "nice". You remember that you're not supposed to take any gifts from strangers, right? And you remember that a stranger is anyone you and your parents don't know well.
- If anybody asks you to walk with them to "show" them something, or how to get somewhere, you don't go. Tell them you don't know how to get to the place. Remember: You don't take walks with strangers, either.

If you remember these special rules, and especially remember that your body belongs to you and no one should touch it if you don't want them to, then you'll really be helping to keep yourself safe!

Oh most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, Assist me in my necessity. $25,000 For DPW Environmental Consulting

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The City Council Monday night unanimously approved the appropriation of $25,000 to the Department of Public Works for additional environmental consulting services to be performed by David Standley.

Standley has been involved as a consultant regarding the noise issue at the interim sludge processing plant in the Fore River area, as well as other matters relating to the plant, Nut Island, and the contamination of the city's storm drain system.

The council had already approved a previous allocation for Standley's services.

Public Works Commissioner David Colton noted that 88% of Standley's bills for fiscal year 1992 have been reimbursed by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority. The other 12% was not reimbursable because it was work related to other non-MWRA matters such as the Town Brook Flood Control Project and the landfill site.

Speaking in favor, Councillor Michael Cheney said "David offers the expertise to find pitfalls we might not otherwise find."

Council President Charles Phelan agreed, saying he was "impressed" by Standley during an earlier meeting between the two.

"His expertise and knowledge are of value," said Phelan. "This is money well spent."

Financial Assistance For Montclair Home Owners

Financial assistance for moderate and low income Montclair home owners will be discussed tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepard, West Squantum and Harvard Streets.

The meeting of the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association will feature guest speakers Norman Grenier of Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services and Angelito Santos of The Office of Housing Rehabilitation.

Grenier will discuss loans and grants for home repairs and rehabilitation projects in the area of Arlington, Fayette, Farrington and Safford streets.

Creedon Proposes Creation Of 13 Task Committees

Quoting Roland Barth, director of Harvard University's Principal Center, Creedon said wants to make the Quincy school system a community of learners.

"A good school system is one where everyone is teaching and everyone is learning. A major responsibility of adults in a community of learners is to engage in their own learning, to make their learning visible to others in the community to enjoy and celebrate their learning and to sustain it over time even when swamped by the demands of their work."

To support his vision statement, Creedon said he has three common goals: to help students become competent as self-fulling individuals, citizens and workers.

He also said he shares the same goals outlined by President Bush and the nation's governors which were recently accepted by the Quincy School Committee. The goals include preparing all children for the start of school, increasing the high school graduation rate to at least 90 percent and making students competent in such subjects as English, mathematics, science, history and geography.

Other goals call for making U.S. students first in the world in science and mathematics, making every American adult literate and every school free of drugs and violence.

With his vision and goals, Creedon asked the School Committee to establish 13 new educational committee, each with a specific "mission."

If established, Creedon would place before the School Committee the names of teachers, administrators and parents who have agreed to serve on the committees at a subsequent meeting.

The new committees are:

•Strategic Planning which would continue the work begun by Ricci in formalizing the Strategic Planning Report to the School Committee and community.

•Space and Enrollment, which would study space concerns and present a series of short and long range options to resolve space problems.

•School Governance which would concentrate on bringing participatory decision making and site-based management to Quincy.

•Elementary School Evaluation, which would plan a program for involving the city's 10 elementary schools in a self-study initiative similar to the programs completed by Snug Harbor School Principal Dr. Richard DeCristofaro and Merrymount School Principal Kathleen Morris.

•Alternative Education, which would focus on establishing the Bethany Program, a state model for alternative education programs.

•Middle School APC Evaluation, which would use the Middle School Evaluation Criteria in assessing the QPS APC program at Central Middle School.

•Early Childhood and After School Day Care, which would continue the work of Supt. Paul Gossard in Early Childhood Education.

•High School Restructuring, which would focus on seven areas: student discipline and attendance, including low levels of achievement and suspension rate; academics and curriculum; physical plant; equipment and supplies; teaching personnel; administrative personnel; and student activities including athletics.

•Health Education, which would study and evaluate the school's health education program, especially in light of recent recommendations of the EDC.

•Technology and Occupational Education, which would continue the work begun by Maurice Daly, retired assistant superintendent of Vocational-Technical Education. Under his leadership, the Vo-Tech was recognized by the Ford Foundation as one of four exemplary programs in the United States.

Creedon said his vision statement is "primarily an agenda that deals with organization and administration.

"At a later date, I will be discussing with you a much more important issue, namely, curriculum, and more specifically how children and young people come to know," he said.

"I am confident that we can count on the competence of our teachers and administrators to address these issues for competence is the capacity to do what needs to be done and we have that capacity in the Quincy public schools," Creedon said, adding, "I ask for your support as well as frank and wise criticism, advice and suggestions."

Mayor Will Also Seek Sound Barriers For Red Line Noise

Transportation Head, Sheets To Meet On RR Station, Connector

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

State Transportation Secretary Richard Taylor was scheduled to meet with Mayor James Sheets and Planning Director Richard Meade Friday afternoon to discuss the main components of the mayor's downtown revitalization plan: the crossway connector and a commuter rail station in Quincy Center.

The trio will also get a birds-eye view of the proposed sites for the projects from the top story of the either the Campanelli building or South Shore Bank tower in Quincy Square. Sheets said the high perspective will give Taylor a good vantage point to view the Parkingway area. The mayor wants the MBTA to locate an Old Colony Railroad station in the Parkingway between Granite St. and School St.

The view will also help show Taylor where the crossway connector would go "in general" and how the two projects "interrelate," the mayor said.

As proposed, the connector would link the Burgin Parkway with Route 3A.

As the secretary of transportation, Taylor is overseeing the MBTA's restoration of the Old Colony railroad. The mayor, who met with Taylor in December, called Friday's meeting a major step in getting state and federal support for the two projects.

"I see this as a major step in the integration of the three levels of government, federal, state and city, in developing the connector and station as well as mitigation for noise," Sheets said.

The mayor said he would discuss existing noise along the Red Line in Quincy as well as mitigation to curb that noise, such as sound barriers.

To prevent future noise caused by the Old Colony line, the mayor said he wanted to talk to Taylor about "the technology of trains and cars and the track to make sure the quietest equipment is used.

"Noise mitigation is an important part of it," he said, adding he hopes sound barriers could be erected within a year to absorb Red Line noise.

Sheets said Taylor's visit to Quincy is unique and gives credibility to the Mayor Hopes To Balance Budget With No Layoffs

City officials have begun formulating the FY 93 budget and Mayor James Sheets expressed optimism Tuesday that for the first time in a number of years, there may be no layoffs.

"It's my sense that if we could coordinate some functions and consolidate some functions, we could get away with no layoffs. That's always the bottom line goal," he said.

Consolidation and restructuring of city services and departments were major themes of the mayor's second inaugural address in January.

Sheets said he and Auditor Bob Foy have started their revenue projections for the new fiscal year which will begin July 1. "We'll determine what the revenue flow will be and then back a budget into it.

"We should have a handle on it in two weeks," the mayor said, adding "Very soon we'll be instructing departments at what they should bring their budgets in at."

Much of the spending package puzzle depends on local aid. In recent years, the state has reduced the amount of local aid to Quincy as well as other cities and towns, leading to budget cuts and layoffs.

If the stream of local aid and revenue is lower than anticipated, cuts will be made. If the stream is higher, money will be added to department budgets, Sheets said.

After the budget is completed, the package will be sent to the City Council for passage.

Cheney Asks Restaurant Moratorium Be Reconsidered

City Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney has asked the License Board to reconsider its six-month moratorium on restaurants in Quincy Square.

"After speaking with individuals who are in the restaurant business, I have concluded that additional food outlets in the Downtown area will actually draw people to the Square, creating additional foot traffic for the merchants," Cheney said in a letter to the board.

"With regard to the Mayor's Downtown Plan, one would not expect to see any meaningful construction for at least one year even if a plan were decided on today. At this point we are not even sure as to whether or not someone might be displaced under the new plan.

"I would also like to point out that new business results in employing more people and with the high unemployment of today, I am sure that many individuals who are looking for work need all the opportunities possible," Cheney continued.

Cheney's letter commended the board for its concern about the downtown area. He suggested that the issue be turned over to the Planning Department in lieu of a moratorium.

Last week, the License Board imposed the moratorium. Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said there is a glut of restaurants downtown and that the board should wait for guidance from the Mayor's office in regard to Mayor James Sheets plans for downtown revitalization.

March 26 Deadline To File FY 92 Real Estate Exemptions

Thursday, March 26 is the last day veterans, elderly, the blind, widows and widowers can file for real estate bill exemptions for FY 92.

Those eligible to receive their exemption should file their forms as soon as possible.

The assessors office will have representatives available Wednesday, Feb. 19 from 9 to 11:30 a.m. to explain the filing procedures and answer questions regarding the eligibility requirements. They will meet in the second floor conference room in City Hall annex.

Mayor James Sheets said he is pleased to offer the program for the public, with the cooperation of the assessor's office. He is asking those with questions to attend in order to learn if they are eligible for an exemption.

Electorate Now Over 45,000

Registration Surge For Presidential Primaries

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A steady stream of Quincy residents filed into City Hall Tuesday to register to vote in the March 10th presidential primaries, increasing the city's electorate by approximately 600 new voters, registrars said.

With the surge of new voters, the total number of registered voters in Quincy was certain to climb above 45,000. Before the latest registration period, there were 44,746 registered voters in Quincy. Of that total, 26,264 were registered Democrats, 11,846 unenrolled and 6,636 Republicans. One resident is enrolled with the new Independent High Tech Party.

City registrars attributed the surge of new voters to the Presidential Primaries which will be held in Massachusetts Tuesday, March 10. Political advertisements, especially from the Democratic hopefuls which have been airing in New Hampshire, are also being seen locally increasing election awareness.

City Clerk John Gillis, who is chairman of the Quincy Board of Registrars, said registration for this year's presidential primaries was heavier than four years ago when former Gov. Michael Dukakis was on the Democratic ballot.

Of the newly registered voters, many are new Quincy residents, registrars said. Other new voters include those who have turned 18 years old or older since the last presidential election four years ago.

Registrars said most of the new voters enrolled in the Democratic party or opted for the unenrolled ranks.

"Quincy College is proud to have such a distinguished son of our city speak at our commencement ceremony," said Johnson. "His example to our students reminds us that concern and service are the true steps to the top of one's profession. License Board Rejects Pizza, Sub Shop

By STEVE KAVANAGH

A proposed pizza and sub shop on Adams Street has been rejected despite claims that the building will be boarded up otherwise.

The License Board voted 5-0 to deny a request for a Common Victualer license to John Tassiopoulos for T.J.'s Pizza & Sub Shop, 646 Adams St., across from the Dairy Freeze.

City Councillors Tom Fabrizio of Ward 4 and Larry Chretien of Ward 3 spoke against the sub shop citing opposition by neighbors, traffic in the area and other concerns.

The owner of the property, Antonio Parlavecchio, told the license board he has been working for three years to find a suitable tenant for the building. He said the empty storefront is putting a financial burden on him.

"Do you want the bank to take it over and board it up?" he asked the License Board. "No one wants to open a business in 1992 with the economy the way it is," Parlavecchio said. He added he was "lucky" to find a businessman like Tassiopoulos, who runs the Canton House of Pizza in Canton and has over 20 years experience.

"Let it happen. If there are complaints--shut him down," Parlavecchio said.

Board members and Chretien argued that there are already many food establishments in the area which cause litter and traffic problems.

Attorney for the applicants Frank Marinelli argued that the sub shop would have minimal traffic impact, drawing customers from the neighborhood and existing traffic.

Chretien told the board that Parlavecchio had been before the board in the past and had been told that a fast-food restaurant was against the wishes of the neighborhood.

"Adams Street is choked with traffic. There are already a number of establishments of that type there. When Mayor Sheets was Ward 4 Councillor we held neighborhood meetings and it was made clear that this type of proposal was not acceptable," Chretien said.

"There is already a litter problem in the neighborhood," Fabrizio said. "I have received some calls in favor of it (sub shop) but the majority have been against it."

"It would be nice to fill the building but it's not the place to have a takeout," said nearby resident Norma Rodberg of 32 Campbell St. She said the area is already saturated with places which contribute to congestion and other problems including 7-11, Burger King, Dairy Freeze, Villa Rosa, Atlas Liquors, Curtis Farms, The Hollow, The Common Market, Darcy's Pub and others.

Rodberg also said she feared that this type of establishment would attract gangs of youths. "I'm afraid to go out at night," she said.

Marinelli told the board that Parlavecchio has looked for other types of tenants. In the past three years a florist and an insurance agency have gone out of business at the sight.

"The only calls I get now are for Chinese restaurants and sandwich shops," Parlavecchio said.

Ward 6 Democrats To Caucus Feb. 29

Registered Democrats in Ward 6 will hold a caucus Saturday, Feb. 29 at 2 p.m. at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, Hunt St., North Quincy, to elect delegates to the 1992 Massachusetts Democratic Convention.

Ward 6 will elect 11 delegates and four alternates, equally divided between men and women, to send to the convention. The apportioned number of delegates has been allocated on the basis of a formula giving equal weight to the Democratic Party registration and the average vote for Democratic candidates in the last general elections for governor and president for which figures were available at the time delegate tabulations were prepared.

Marcia McCarthy, chairperson of the Ward 6 Quincy Committee, will call the caucus. The caucus is open to all registered Democrats, persons ineligible to register and media representatives. The only persons eligible to participate in any portion of the caucus are those who are registered Democrats in Ward 6 as of Dec. 31, 1991. There will be no absentee or proxy voting.

Candidates for delegates and alternates must also be present, voting and give his or her written consent to be nominated and that nomination must be seconded by two persons present at the local caucus.

All ballots will be written and secret. Those candidates receiving the greatest number of votes on the first ballot will be elected.

Each candidate will be allowed to make a two-minute speech and to distribute on his/her behalf one sheet of paper listing qualifications and ideas.

Slate making is allowed, but no special preference shall be given to slates. There is no quorum requirement for the caucus.

There will be no admission or expense charge at the caucus, although donations may be solicited.

Discrimination on the basis of race, sex, age, color, creed, national origin, religion, ethnic identity, philosophical persuasion or economic status in the conduct of the caucus is strictly prohibited.

Challenges to the delegate selection process can be filed in writing with the Compliance Review Commission, c/o The Massachusetts Democratic Party, 45 Bromfield St., Boston, MA 02108 no later than March 2.

Mayor's Planning Partnership Order Before Council Feb.18

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday he will ask City Solicitor Stephen McGrath to send an order calling for the creation of a public-private planning partnership to the City Council for its next meeting, Tuesday, Feb. 18.

The mayor considers the planning partnership as the driving force of his downtown revitalization project. He expects the council will address the order, hold a hearing on it and then pass it within a month.

The order would then need approval by the state legislature before it could be enacted.. Sheets hopes the partnership is in place by May. At that time, the partnership would meet and establish by-laws.

According to the mayor, the partnership would consist of a development corporation of 30 to 35 members, of which 10 would form a board of directors. The board, Sheets says, would "meet on a needs basis and make sure projects move forward."

The partnership would also include a full-time executive director of planning and an administrative assistant who would work on Quincy Center, Wollaston and North Quincy revitalization projects.

Besides the mayor, other public officials who would serve on the partnership are the planning director and president of the city council. Sheets said the chairman of the council's Downtown Economic and Development Committee may also sit on the partnership. The current chairman is Councillor Tim Cahill.

In addition, there would be a financial advisory council comprised of seven elected partnership members. "They would have a basic financial interest, like bankers and trade unions and other groups with lending capabilities," Sheets said.

Through membership fees and community development block grant money, the partnership would fund programs for improving store facades, make no-interest loans available to small business and market vacant retail spaces.

Sheets hopes the partnership could start with a budget of approximately $450,000 its first year. Of that amount, $150,000 would be paid by membership fees and another $300,000 by CDBG, a federal grant which requires City Council approval for appropriation.

"It would be up to the partnership to determine how to invest that money," the mayor said.

Together, the partnership would work on creating a comprehensive development plan for the downtown, Sheets added.

The mayor said he is anxious to get the partnership in place.

"I'm very anxious to get an executive director of planning on board to market the retail area.

I'm hopeful by May we'll be on our way."

In Third Norfolk District

Miller Takes Out Papers For State Representative

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

George Miller, who made an impressive yet unsuccessful political debut in the city election last fall, is eyeing a run for state representative in the Third Norfolk District.

Miller, who came in fifth in last fall's city council at-large race, took out nominating papers for the state rep seat Tuesday afternoon, the first day papers became available for this fall's state election.

GEORGE MILLER

An attorney who lives at 120 Sumner St., Quincy Point, Miller said he will challenge State Rep. Ronald Mariano in the fall.

He said he took out papers early to get a quick start on his campaigning.

"This time, I'll have plenty of time to work. I don't want to waste time," Miller said in a brief interview at City Hall Tuesday afternoon shortly after taking papers out. After campaigning for councillor-at-large for only three months and coming up short, he said he realizes more time is needed for a run at state rep, especially since the

Braintree Cabs At S. Quincy T Station Raises Complaints

License Board Chairman John Gillis said he will send a letter to MBTA Police concerning Braintree taxi cabs at the Quincy Adams MBTA Station.

Gillis is responding to a complaint that cabs licensed in Braintree are waiting for fares at the station, taking business away from Quincy cabs. Cabs are allowed to pick up customers in other towns if they are called but may not solicit walk-up business.

Quincy Police Chief Francis Mullen said his department does not have jurisdiction at the MBTA stations and recommended that Gillis contact MBTA Police.

It Might Have Been Hancock

Quincy this year is marking — rather quietly — its 200th anniversary as a separate community.

Or, if you wish, the 200th anniversary of its independence from Braintree.

And, did you know that if some folks had had their way back then, you'd be living today in the city of Hancock instead of Quincy?

Quincy, like George Washington, was born on Feb. 22. But not the same year.

On Feb. 22, 1792 the General Court of Massachusetts passed an act incorporating the North Precinct of Old Braintree as the separate town of Quincy.

The act also separated an area known as Squantum and the Farms from Dorchester and made them part of the new town of Quincy.

Residents in the North Precinct wanted to break away from Old Braintree because the Middle and South Precincts outnumbered them and outvoted them. North Precinct residents believed that the Middle and South Precincts were ganging up on them so they wanted to break away and do their own thing as a separate town.

There were some people in the new town who wanted it named after native son John Hancock instead of Boston born Col. John Quincy.

HANCOCK

Colonel Quincy, the maternal grandfather of Abigail Smith who became the wife of President John Adams and the mother of President John Quincy Adams, had represented Old Braintree in the General Court.

John Hancock, who was born in the North Precinct of Old Braintree, was governor of Massachusetts when the General Court passed the act incorporating the new town of Quincy. He signed the act the following day — apparently feeling the name Quincy was more appropriate for the town than his own name.

But at the first town meeting of the new town in May, a petition was presented to change the name of Quincy to Hancock in honor of the patriot.

That move was finally defeated after a stormy verbal battle on the town meeting floor.

Opponents argued that Hancock was still alive and that the honor should go to a distinguished but deceased person.

Colonel Quincy met those requirements. He was both distinguished — and deceased.

He had represented Old Braintree in the General Court from 1717 to 1741 — 12 of those years as Speaker of the House. He died July 13, 1767 at age 77 — two days after John Quincy Adams was born.

But a lot of people today still think Quincy was named for the sixth president.

At the time of its incorporation, the town of Quincy had a population of 900 and less than 200 families.

Today the city of Quincy has a population of over 88,000; according to the latest state census.

Quincy was incorporated as a city June 11, 1888 and began functioning as a city in January, 1889.

Quincy celebrated its centennial as a city with numerous events in 1988 and 1989 but is observing its bicentennial as a community in a much lower key.

The latter may reflect today's hard economic times.

There are 18 other Quincy's in the United States. Most of them pronounce it Quin-cee.

We pronounce it Quin-zee.

Why?

Very simple.

William C. Edwards, late Quincy historian, spent a good part of his life-time explaining the pronunciation to tourists.

We pronounce it Quin-zee, he said, because that's the way the Quincy family pronounced it.

The 18 other Quincys who were named after John Quincy Adams apparently thought John Quincy pronounced it Quin-cee.

Ayers To Hold Community Meeting

A community meeting will be held Thursday, Feb. 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers at City Hall regarding the widening and improvement of the intersection at East Squantum St. and Quincy Shore Drive.

The traffic study observation was done in October, during the morning and evening peak hours. Three plans were submitted and reviewed by the Engineering, Planning and Traffic Departments in Quincy and the Metropolitan District Commission.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers and State Rep. Michael Morrissey, along with the traffic engineers, will make a presentation on the future plans of the intersection.

Ayers encourages all residents to attend the meeting and to voice their opinions and concerns.

"This is a highly traveled roadway and it is my hope to make it as safe as possible and to ease the traffic flow," said Ayers. "I encourage residents to attend the meeting and let their voices be heard."

PROMISING TREATMENT FOR SKIN CANCER

A new treatment involving ultraviolet light may offer victims of one type of skin cancer an alternative to the harrowing side effects of traditional chemotherapy. Blood samples taken from patients with cutaneous T-cell lymphoma, a sometimes fatal form of skin cancer, are exposed to ultraviolet light and then returned to the body. This apparently triggers an immune response that stops malignant cells from spreading to other parts of the body. The treatment may relieve the symptoms of the disease, which include, red, scaly rashes that often turn into mushroom-like lesions. Known as photopheresis, this new method may improve survival odds.

P.S. About 1,000 Americans annually are affected by the above-mentioned skin cancer.

Today doctors are developing many new treatments for cancer. If you would like to learn more, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. We are dedicated to the compassionate and caring practice of medicine. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24, in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

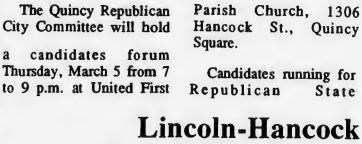
Lincoln-Hancock Third Graders Raise $376 For Third World Students

Third graders at Lincoln-Hancock Community School recently sponsored a bake sale, raising $376 to send to their pen pals in developing countries.

A new component in their social service curriculum is a teaching unit entitled "See Me Share My World," an interdisciplinary approach incorporating art, social science and language arts. The unit focuses on artwork and photographs of children from several developing countries, and provides activities to heighten global awareness and cultural understanding.

As members of the "World Citizen Program," the third graders became sponsors of and pen pals with children from Latin America, Africa and Asia. They met with Jaya Sarkar, Global Education coordinator for PLAN International in Rhode Island, to discuss various community projects which they can allocate their $375.

The children will vote on which projects they think will make life better for their new friends.



James Madison was the puniest of American Presidents: at five feet, four inches tall and weighing just 100 pounds, he was dwarfed even by his wife Dolly.

Mariano Urges Deletion Of MDC Debt Prepayment

In a letter to both the House and Senate Ways and Means Committees' chairmen, State Rep. Ronald Mariano (D-Quincy/Weymouth) urged the deletion of the prepayment of the MDC debt by the MWRA from their FY 93 budget.

Gov. William Weld had included the prepayment of $120 million of debt from the MDC in his FY 93 budget.

"The prepayment of this debt means that the MWRA will have to bond this money at a cost to ratepayers of about 200 million dollars. The MWRA ratepayers will receive absolutely no benefit for spending an additional $200 million," Mariano said.

"This is just another example of the governor trying to balance his budget on the backs of the MWRA ratepayers. The new MWRA budget calls for an average increase in rates of about 36 percent for FY 93. Residents of Quincy and Weymouth cannot afford to pay for the services they currently use, how can they be expected to fund the debt of the MDC," he said.

Mariano vowed to fight to keep this prepayment out of both the House and Senate budgets and to fight other attempts by the governor to pass costs on to the ratepayers of the MWRA.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Bill To Change City Council Gets House Approval

Feb. 12-18 1956 38 Years Ago

The State Legislature approved a bill filed by Rep. Clifton H. Baker (R-Quincy) that would change the makeup of the new Plan A City Council to six members from wards and three elected at-large.

The bill, which would place the matter before the city's voters on the November state ballot, was opposed by Rep. Carter Lee (R-Quincy), who objected to any major change in the charter.

"I opposed a bill that attempted to change the new charter by setting up an assistant mayor on exactly the same grounds," he said. "It might be a good thing but it was not what the people voted for."

COMPTROLLER BILL DIES

The State Senate killed a bill, which carried the unanimous endorsement of the City Council, to combine the posts of city auditor and director of finance into the single office of comptroller.

Opposition to the legislation was led by Sen. Charles W. Hedges (R-Quincy), who said he could find no support for it among the people of Quincy.

"It's too bad," said Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa. "Under the present setup, the city auditor and director of finance have to serve two masters, the City Council which appoints the auditor and the city manager who appoints the director of finance."

HOSPITAL LOSING MONEY

Director Dr. Joseph P. Leone told a Lions Club luncheon that City Hospital was losing $4 a day on each patient and experienced a deficit of $343,000 in 1955.

But, he added, as hospitals go, Quincy is not in bad shape at all.

GOD VS. COMMUNISM

"God's Underground" is at work in the Soviet Union to smash communism, the Rev. Oswald A. Blumit of Wollaston told the For America Forum, sponsored by the Friends of Sen. McCarthy, Inc.

We're Minding The Store, Too

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

This is an open letter to business owners on the South Shore:

We've all learned a big lesson these past couple of years. The store doesn't take care of itself.

Of course you have competent employees thoroughly dedicated to doing a good job. Yet, you know that your business may very well be headed for trouble if you dared assume that it could "run by itself." We all know better than to take such a chance.

This is why you're at your desk early in the morning, well into the evening and on weekends. If any of us want to be in business tomorrow, we'd better be on the job today!

This is why belonging to the South Shore Chamber of Commerce is so important to your and your business. That's right--Chamber membership is a key to your business success.

While you're doing your job--we're minding the store. While you're focusing your attention on doing business, we're hard at work making sure the state legislature doesn't make it more difficult for you to be in business.

While you're running your operation, we're busy getting a better transportation system so more customers can get to your door.

While you're out making sales, we're meeting with the mayor, the board of selectmen, and members of the City Council to protect your interests.

While you're busy in your shop, we're eliminating governmental red tape and fighting proposed laws that can hurt your profits.

Of course you're busy minding the store. That's your job. And that's why the South Shore Chamber is in business. We're minding the store, too--for you.

At the South Shore Chamber, we're working to make sure your store will still be open tomorrow.

Executive Vice President

'Winnie The Welder Day' Important Event In 1991

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Reading the story on the "1991 in Review," Dec. 31 issue, an important event was not mentioned, a salute to the female shipbuilders during World War II at the Fore River and Hingham Shipyards, "Winnie the Welder Day" held on March 12, 1991 in the Council Chambers in the Quincy City Hall. It was a history in memory of the shipbuilding in Quincy and Hingham Shipyards, attended by our Mayor, Mr. Sheets, city officials, school committee and other prominent people and former employees from Fore River and the Hingham Shipyards.

Certificates of recognition was awarded for their service to all that accounted in the research.

The success of the event has to be credited to teacher Ron Adams of Broad Meadows Middle School, who triggered the event and the seventh grade students for their extensive research.

Says Pat Buchanan Is More Than A Columnist

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Last week one of your readers sought fit to 'caterwaul' our political situation especially using the term to belittle Pat Buchanan. I presume it's Pat because he refers to the candidate as a columnist. Pat is more than that--a columnist.

Anyone who has read his book "Right from the Beginning" or watched or listened to him on "Crossfire" or the "McLaughlin Group" knows he is not a caterwauler--that he is right to the point and calls a spade a spade. There is no dilly dallying. This is it!! Cost what it may. As an example--two weeks ago the Boston Herald ran a luncheon at the Park Plaza honoring Pat. In a questionnaire Pat was asked about abortion. His answer was: "I'll be brief. I am a Roman Catholic. I am pro-life all the way." Period! No ducking the issue with, "Personally, I'm against abortion but . . ." It's issues like this that separates this man from the boys. And Pat is a man!

I assure our reader that his "prayer" will be answered as he says--"Still there stands our incandescent dreams of government by someone touched by greatness; and we can hope that there will surface soon some faintly flawed (my emphasis) but capable individual who, next November, will provide a catalyst to return our nation to remembered glory"--the answer is Pat Buchanan.

A 'Thank You' From The American Red Cross

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The American Red Cross-South Area would like to extend a loud and clear "Thank You" to all who gave in contributions, time and handiwork for the 1991 Holiday Assistance Program. Without people like you, we would never accomplish our goal in serving the community.

The holidays were brightened for over 620 youngsters in Head Start, homeless shelters, and crisis centers, as well as our American Red Cross food clients who received filled Christmas stockings, toys, or knitted goods. Recent disaster victims, already being aided by the American Red Cross, also received filled Christmas stockings.

Your heartwarming response and continued support of programs sponsored by the American Red Cross enables us to better serve your community--the South Shore area. This was an especially difficult year for many but because of the wonderful response from the public, we were able to accomplish our goal.

We wish you all a most Happy and Peaceful 1992.

A SIMPLE WILL

Don't leave without one!

If you do, the state will make one for you. If you have no relatives who qualify under the law to inherit your property, it will go to the State of Massachusetts.

Lurking beneath many people's failure to make a will is a superstitious fear that thinking about or doing something about a will will hasten death. This fear is plainly irrational, but is often the major cause of people's putting off writing their will.

If you are waiting or you are procrastinating about preparing a comprehensive estate plan, you should be sure to at least have a simple will.

Most people do not plan to fail; they just fail to plan...

Cancer Unit Daffodil Days To Be Held March 24-25

The South Shore Unit of the American Cancer Society will stage its annual Daffodil Days March 24 and 25 to benefit the research, education and service programs to cancer patients throughout the area.

In 1991 sales of the daffodils (more than 120,000) in nine South Shore communities generated $54,000, making the South Shore Unit tops in the state.

"For the past two years, the South Shore has set state records for support of Daffodil Days and we know the people will keep up the good work this year," Pauline Sweeney said.

Sweeney, of Quincy, and her husband Dennis, are heading this year's effort. "It is a wonderful way to greet Spring with a flower of hope and help fight cancer."

Advance orders will be taken until March 10 and volunteers will deliver and sell them beginning March 24. Orders may be placed by calling Sweeney at 773-8226 or the South Shore Unit office at 341-4210.

A bouquet of 10 cost $4 and an attractive vase may be ordered for $6. A box of 500 blooms, a favorite of many business and professional offices, is $200.

The South Shore Unit of the Society aids cancer patients in Quincy, Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Scituate and Weymouth.

'Voice Of The Turtle' To Open Multi-Cultural Festival

Beechwood Community Life Center, 225 Fenno St., Wollaston, has been identified as recipient for a Foundation for the Arts grant award.

The award was given for the upcoming Quincy MultiCultural Festival and will partially fund the festival's opening night Sunday, Feb. 23.

The opening program, "Voice of the Turtle," to be held at North Quincy High School Sunday, Feb. 23 at 3 p.m. will feature Jewish musical traditions.

"Voice of the Turtle" is a Cambridge-based, four person ensemble that specializes in Sephardic music. The Sephardim, Jews who had lived in Spain for 1,500 years, were expelled from that country in 1492. Travelling to safer harbors in the Ottoman Empire, North Africa and Eastern Europe, the Sephardim incorporated the sounds of their adopted homes into their music. The ensemble performs on ancient and modern instruments.

The 1992 MultiCultural Festival extends through March 14.

For more information call 471-5712 or 328-9200.

district covers parts of Quincy and Weymouth.

Miller also said he took papers out early to get a jump on fundraising. To have a shot at unseating Mariano, he said he would need to raise at least $25,000.

In his bid for councillor-at-large, Miller finished fifth behind eventual winners Tim Cahill, Michael Cheney and Patricia Toland and the nearest challenger, former Mayor and Councillor Joseph LaRaia. Miller polled 5,422 votes while LaRaia had 6,850.

Miller said his campaigning style is better suited for a state rep race because there is only one incumbent. The councillor-at-large race featured three incumbents. With one incumbent, he said he'll try to "extract the issues."

"I think I can run a much better (state rep) race," he added.

Other candidates who may enter the Third Norfolk District state rep race are John "Jack" McGlone and Jack Carey, both of Weymouth.

McGlone lost to Mariano by 223 votes in the Democratic primary last September. Carey is a Weymouth selectman.

To appear on the ballot for state senator or state representative, candidates must take out nominating papers and return them with the signatures of at least 150 registered voters in the district which the candidate hopes to represent.

Deadline to submit papers is April 29. The state primary is Tuesday, Sept. 15 and the final election is Tuesday, Nov. 3.

Health Care Proxy, Home Fire Safety On Senior Beat Tonight

This month's edition of Senior Beat, Quincy Community Television's monthly senior affairs program, will premiere today (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 3.

Senior Beat is hosted by John Noonan, Quincy Council on Aging chairperson.

The provision is a simple legal document that allows a person to name someone they know and trust to make health care decisions for that person if, for any reason and at any time, the person becomes unable to make or communicate those decisions.

In addition, Sharon Gamache, a representative from the National Fire Protection Agency, talks about fire protection in the home.

This month's program will be replayed Friday, Feb. 14 at 9:30 a.m. and Monday, Feb. 17 at 1:30 p.m. on QCTV Ch. 3.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Valentine's Day is for children, lovers and romantics. Well, essentially, yes, but when it comes to affairs of the heart, everyone is included.

Valentines need not be expensive. A happy note written in your own handwriting ... a telephone call to someone who might not otherwise receive a call.

Some people find it hard to say "I love you," but on valentine's Day they express that sentiment with special remembrances or gifts. It is also a day that "mushy" sentiments on brightly colored paper are not really taken seriously (i.e. Valentines exchanged by children at school). There, the important thing is the number of valentine's received, not the sentiment. As people mature, the sentiment becomes more important than the number.

It takes only a little time to send a valentine, or a note, or to make a telephone call to someone, especially someone who is a little "out of circulation" these days. A little surprise gift will make that someone feel special, and you'll feel good too!

For those times when the darkness lingers

With the loss of a loved one through death, it is helpful to be able to share the feelings and emotions which we all experience.

For most of us, there are family members, clergy, and friends who are ready to listen in a caring way.

Yet, there are those who find it helpful to share their grief with someone outside their immediate circle of support.

Because of our continuing commitment to the families we serve, Keohane Funeral Service is pleased to announce that Dr. Sherry Johnson has joined our staff as a Grief Counselor. Her educational background, professional experience and understanding manner can be particularly helpful.

We are the first funeral home in New England to offer the service of a Grief Counselor.

Basketball

North Shocks B-R

The North Quincy boys' basketball team turned in its finest performance of the season last Friday to shock Bridgewater-Raynham, 75-55, and knock the Trojans (14-2) out of sole possession of first place in the Old Colony League. The win improved North to 12-5 (10-3 in the league).

Ted Stevenson's Red Raiders played at Barnstable Tuesday, will host Falmouth Friday night at 7 and will complete the regular season next Monday at Weymouth at 7.

"Although the Eastern Mass. tournament is open to anyone this year, regardless of record, we wanted to win 12 games, the minimum needed to qualify in the past," Stevenson said. "Now we know we would have qualified if the tournament wasn't opened up to everyone."

Matt Flynn equaled his career high 23 points, scored earlier in the week, to spark the upset win over B-R. Five North players scored in double figures, Bo Smith having 14, Desmond Bellot 13, Tim Johnson 11 and Sean Donovan 10.

Justin Moscardelli led B-R with 16 points as the Trojans fell into a top tie with Silver Lake in the league.

Earlier in the week Mike Morris hit a jumper with two seconds remaining to five Silver Lake a 48-46 decision over North Quincy.

Flynn hit his career-high 23 points to pace the Raider offense.

In their previous game North defeated Taunton, 56-38, led by Donovan's 14 points. Chris Olsen had 10 and nine rebounds and Bellot and Luke Sheets added eight points apiece.

Bad Night For Quincy

The Quincy boys' basketball team had its worst shooting night of the season last Friday and the Presidents lost to Taunton, 57-50, dropping their record to 7-9 (7-7 in the Old Colony League).

Quincy faced Silver Lake Tuesday and will play at Barnstable Friday night.

Joey Crespi paced Quincy against Taunton with 14 points and Dave Jolley, who had moved into first place in league scoring, had 13.

The Presidents fell behind, 28-18, at halftime as Taunton captured only its fourth win of the season.

Earlier in the week Jolley had a big night with 19 points and 12 rebounds to lead Quincy over Plymouth, 79-67.

Crespi had 15 points, Robbie Kane added 14 and Steve Loud had a fine two-way game and contributed nine points.

North Girls Bow

The North Quincy girls' basketball team lost to Old Colony League-leading Bridgewater-Raynham, 49-45, last Friday, dropping its record to 12-5 (10-3 in the league).

The North girls hosted Barnstable Tuesday, will play at Falmouth Friday night and will be home to Weymouth next Monday.

North, which will be in the Eastern Mass. tournament for the eighth time in 12 years, was leading late in the game but B-R's Kerry Holmes hit a three-pointer and two free throws in the final minute for the victory.

Cindy White led North with 13 points, while Regina Murphy added 10.

Although the tournament this year is open to everyone, regardless of record, North would have qualified anyway as the 12 wins marked the minimum qualifying figure in the past.

Earlier in the week North Quincy defeated Silver Lake, 43-37, after trailing, 21-19, at the half.

Murphy led North with nine points, Tricia Hughes and White had eight points each and Maureen McCarthy came off the bench and had five key points.

In its previous game North defeated Taunton, 51-32, with Hughes and White having 10 points apiece.

Murphy scored six of her eight points and had all of her six steals early in the second half as North extended a 25-16 halftime lead. Nicole Sapienza contributed seven points off the bench.

Succeeds Finnegan March 1

Walker Hopes To Add More Sports As New Athletic Director

By TOM SULLIVAN

When Bill Walker takes over as Quincy's new athletic director March 1, he not only wants to retain all sports despite budget cuts, but he hopes to add new sports, including lacrosse.

"I know this is a tough time to be thinking of adding sports the way other schools are cutting theirs due to budget cuts, but I do hope to add a few new ones," said Walker, who was unanimously appointed by the school committee last week to succeed Martin Finnegan, who retires Feb. 28 after 41 years in the Quincy school system.

BILL WALKER

"I also plan to institute an extensive intramural program in the middle schools, which I feel is a necessity."

Walker, who has been in the Quincy system for more than 20 years, is working with Finnegan until he takes over on March 1.

He was appointed on an interim basis and the position will open up again after the school year ends in June.

I definitely will apply again for the permanent position," he said.

Walker has been swimming instructor, supervisor of the Djerf Pool at the Lincoln-Hancock School and coach of the North Quincy boys' and girls' swim teams for 17 years. He began his teaching career at the Squantum School before being named pool supervisor and swimming instructor.

There was no swimming in the high schools while Walker was a student at North Quincy High where he played football and baseball. He attended Wollaston School and Central Junior High. He began his swimming career at Huntington Prep and continued at Northeastern and Bridgewater State team and was recently inducted into the Bridgewater Athletic Hall of Fame.

He has been honored twice during the past year, first as Girls Coach of the Year by the Eastern Mass. Swim Coaches Association and more recently as Coach of the Year by the Boston Globe.

Walker has led both the girls' and boys' teams to several outstanding seasons and last fall the girls finished in second place in the Pilgrim Conference and 15th out of 56 teams in the MIAA State Swimming and Diving championships. Seven of his girls were named to the conference all-star team.

In the past two seasons his girls' teams posted an impressive 23-3 record, winning the conference title in 1990. In the past two years North swimmers have earned the MIAA's academic award for maintaining a cumulative grade point average of over 3.5. Walker has coached 14 Academic All-Americans the last four years.

His current boys' team has another excellent record as it prepares for the sectional and state championships.

Several coaches decided not to apply for the athletic director's post as it is a part-time position.

Some School Committee members tried to expand the job into a full-time position but were unsuccessful.

Walker will continue his teaching and his duties as supervisor of the pool. His director's job pays a $6,385 stipend in addition to his teaching salary. He will earn a total of $47,451, almost $7,000 more than Finnegan.

The school department will save money with Walker's appointment, however, because he will continue supervising the pool without extra pay.

50 Teams To Compete In Kiwanis Tourney

Fifty teams from four divisions will compete in the 19th annual International Youth Hockey Tournament sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Quincy.

Proceeds from the event will support the Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Center at the New England Medical Center in Boston. "In addition, proceeds will provide funding for scholarships, camperships and financial assistance to families in need who are recommended by Quincy school guidance personnel," said Ralph Yohe, president of the Quincy Kiwanis.

The week-long charity event will take place during the February school vacation week, Feb. 17-23, at the Quincy Youth Hockey Arena on Murphy Memorial Dr., Quincy.

"Teams will be coming from as far away as Newfoundland, California, Michigan and New York," Yohe noted. "Many families in the greater Quincy communities are voluntarily opening their homes to the young competitors and their traveling companions who have had to incur travel costs to come such a distance to compete in the tournament."

Greater Boston and South Shore teams scheduled to compete in the tournament represent Medford, Woburn, Milton, Quincy, South Boston, Arlington, Framingham, Walpole, Scituate, Hull, Cohasset and Weymouth. The Division 1 American Hockey Association-sanctioned event will feature competition is four divisions: bantams, pee wees, mites and squirts.

The girls placed sixth out of 32 schools with 21 1/2 points.

The boys also turned in a fine performance as John O'Donnell placed sixth in the high jump at 6-1 and the 4X800 relay team of Eric Torvi, Greg Buck, Jeremy Gott and Josh O'Donnell placed fifth.

Wrestling

North Edges Quincy

By TOM SULLIVAN

Records don't mean a thing when Quincy and North Quincy teams meet in any sport, and this was borne out last week when the North Quincy wrestling team (9-9) just managed to edge Quincy (1-16), 37-34, by virtue of North senior Brian Mannering's win by pin over Quincy senior Gary Collins at 189 pounds.

A large crowd was treated to an outstanding meet as North got off to a 28-4 lead as junior Matt Colantonio (103), James O'Connell (112) and Capt. Chris Nickerson (130) pinned their Quincy opponents. Billy Chu (119) won by forfeit and junior Jeff Pillard (135) took an 8-0 decision. Quincy's lone win was a 16-6 decision by Peter Penwarden (125).

The Presidents staged a comeback as Ashley Davis (140), Greg Souza (145), Ally Sleiman (152) and Clint Currie (160) pinned their opponents to tie the score at 28-28.

Mark Nutley of Quincy lost to Rik MacVarish, 10-3. After Mannering's win, Quincy senior heavyweight Keith Norris pinned Andy Schwendenmen in the meet's final bout.

Both squads head into another week of dual meets, pointing toward the sectional tournament which will be held Feb. 21 and 22 at Randolph High.

Quincy's team has had rough times and lost tough decisions in its last four meets.

The Presidents, in addition to their tough loss to North Quincy, dropped a heartbreaking 34-33 decision to Duxbury's powerhouse and lost to Whitman-Hanson, 37-29, and Cohasset, 39-27.

Quincy hosted its annual homecoming meet at the Vo-Tech gym and Greg Souza's name was added to the Quincy Sectional Championship banner is ceremonies preceding the quad meet.

Capt. Souza, despite nagging injuries, is having a sensational year with a 15-0 dual meet record and Sleiman is 2-0-0 in dual meets and 31-1 overall. Both must be considered strong favorites for South Sectional and state championships.

Other Quincy wrestlers having fine seasons are sophomore Davis, who has won four of his last five matches, sophomore Penwarden, with four wins in a row, and junior Nutley. The addition of football stars Collins and Norris has helped strengthen the team.

Johnson, Sun Tie; Burgin, Green Win

Johnson Motor Parts still holds a seven-point lead in the Squirt House League after tying the Quincy Sun, 4-4.

Billy Norris had two goals and Jeff Glynn and Kevin Cellucci one each for Johnson. Cellucci had two assists and Glynn, Norris, Scott Mattson and Jon Bertucci one each. Mike Carloni had two goals and Pat Grogan and Steve McGonagle one each for the Sun and Jamie Parisi, McGonagle, Carloni, Sean Garvey, Joey Ardagna, Tom Gaeta (two) and Joe Doyle had assists.

Child Sexual Assault Myths Or Facts?

More than 100,000 children are reported as sexually abused in the United States every year. Even so, experts estimate that most assaults go unreported, and so even more children are hurt.

Reports are sometimes not made because of what people believe they know about the sexual assault of children. Some of those beliefs are contained in the following statements. Are they true or false?

1. Children usually lie about being sexually assaulted
2. Children deserve to be molested if they continue contact with the molester.
3. The sexual abuse of children is not a crime in all 50 states.
4. Infants are never sexually assaulted.
5. Children always tell someone about their assault.
6. The majority of victims are abused by people they don't know.
7. Young children forget about their victimization.
8. Children always hate someone who assaults them sexually.
9. Children are better off if they don't talk about their assault.
10. Child molesters are not a danger to society.
11. Child molesters usually get caught the first time they commit an assault.
12. Once a molester is convicted, he or she will not commit a sexual offense again.

All of the above statements are FALSE.

Transportation Secretary, Sheets To Discuss Rail Station, Connector Friday

state's willingness to construct a commuter rail station in Quincy. As originally proposed, the restoration project did not call for a Quincy station.

However, the mayor's revitalization plan, which Sheets now refers to as Quincy 2000, calls for a station in Quincy Center as a means to boost development and revitalization.

"He (Taylor) wants to be able to talk intelligently about these (the connector and rail station). Not seeing the sites, he's not able to do that," Sheets said, explaining Taylor's visit.

"It's not a normal procedure for the secretary of transportation to get out to cities and towns and do this. He sees this as an important part of the Old Colony railroad restoration."

Sheets estimates the cost to construct the connector and station at $35 to $40 million. Of that figure, the federal government would pay 80 percent and the state 20 percent.

The only cost Sheets envisions for the city is for engineering work. But, he adds, that would be minimal and perhaps picked up by the federal government, too.

Although outside funding sources have been scarce in recent years, Sheets is confident the revenue will come through. He noted Congress last year passed the Surface Transportation Bill which makes $151 billion available to the states for transportation projects. Both the connector and station would be eligible for the funding, the mayor said, adding money from that bill has already been earmarked for the Old Colony project.

As far as the station is concerned, Sheets said he wants it located over the existing MBTA tracks and the Burgin Parkway. And instead of a concrete platform station, the mayor wants a station "historical" in character, made out of bricks and wood.

"Any development around the station would have the same decor," he said.

After Friday's meeting, Sheet said he hopes to hold a followup meeting in Washington in March with Taylor, Andy Card, Cong. Brian Donnelly, Sen. John Kerry and Sen. Ted Kennedy.

Card is expected to be confirmed as the secretary of transportation at the federal level soon.

"The meeting will put the projects in perspective and put everyone on the same page as far as Quincy is concerned," Sheets said.

If all goes according to plan, the mayor said the crossway connector and rail station could be up in four years. "That's reasonable. The track beds are already here so it's not as much of a project as if you didn't have that rail bed."

Hospital Library Receives $7,220 Grant

Quincy Hospital is one of 12 hospitals to be awarded a grant from the Massachusetts Medical Society Information Resources Improvement Grant Program.

The Quincy Hospital Medical Library received a grant of $7,220. Carolyn Rubenstein, MSLS, Medical Librarian at the hospital, said "The new system will enable physicians at the hospital to directly access the most up-to-date medical information. Physicians and nurses will have access to medical data, information on drug interactions and the latest developments in nursing information 24 hours a day."

Funds will be used to purchase a computer workstation with six CD-ROM drives and software for the Medical Library.

Massachusetts Medical Society President Philip E. McCarthy said "Whether it's the latest clinical trials, a newly developed practice parameter, or a study on the effect of managed care plans, changes are the information is in a computer someplace. Getting that information to physicians quickly and efficiently is critical to our ability to continue providing quality medical care to patients."

The Massachusetts Medical Society is the professional association of physicians in Massachusetts. The Society's Information Resources Improvement Grant Program distributed $50,000 among the 12 hospitals.

Surge Of New Voters

presidential primaries concluded at 10 p.m. Tuesday. Asst. City Clerk Joseph Shea projected approximately 600 new voters would register by the time the drive ended Tuesday evening. Of that amount, he figured 400 would register Tuesday alone since the drive was on a pace of 50 new voters an hour.

Residents who did not register before 10 p.m. Tuesday will not be able to vote in the March 10 presidential primaries. However, those residents who did not register before Tuesday's deadline have until Oct. 6 to register for the final presidential election which will be held Tuesday, Nov. 3.

Opposes Sheets' Plan

Cahill Has Own Plan For Center

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Calling Mayor James Sheets' downtown revitalization plan flawed and impractical, Councillor Timothy Cahill voiced his strong opposition to the plan at Tuesday's City Council meeting and offered his own alternative proposal to rejuvenate the city's central business district.

Cahill, chairman of the council's Downtown Economic and Development Committee, criticized all three major facets of the Quincy 2000 plan proposed by Sheets. He characterized the partnership, which the mayor considers the driving force of his revitalization effort, as ineffective, too political and too repetitive.

The home-rule petition to establish the partnership was on the council agenda Tuesday. Cahill made his remarks regarding his opposition to the entire plan after the petition was placed before the council.

To be established, the partnership needs the approval of the city council and state legislature.

As proposed, the partnership or corporation would be made up of approximately 35 members which Cahill said is too many with too little power to become an effective force for change.

The business and affairs of the partnership or corporation would be managed and conducted by an executive director chosen by an executive committee. The committee would consist of nine voting members: the mayor, city council president, planning director, four from the corporation, two at-large and one non-voting member from the planning department.

Cahill called this arrangement "too political" since a third of the executive committee members would be either elected or appointed public officials.

Lastly, Cahill said the partnership is "too repetitive," noting several well-organized business partnerships already exist in the city, including the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, the Quincy Business Council, Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, Wollaston Business Association and North Quincy Business Association.

Besides the partnership, Cahill also came out against the cross-town connector which the mayor wants constructed to link

Council To Hold Hearing On On Recycling Facility March 2

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The City Council will hold a public hearing Monday, March 2 at 7 p.m. in the council chambers to discuss the proposed operation of a small recycling center at 86-102 and 106 Penn St. near Burgin Parkway.

The center, which was proposed by Browning Ferris-Industries, Inc., will be limited to the processing of curbside materials such as newspapers, plastics and glass.

Recycling Director Michael Wheelwright of the Department of Public Works said the DPW is completely in favor of BFI's proposal.

"We're quite enthusiastic; we see it as a definite plus," said Wheelwright. "At full tilt, it's expected the center will process 250 tons per day."

It is planned that the center will operate five days a week from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., with half-days on Saturdays also being a possibility. Approximately 20-30 people are expected to be employed by the center.

Wheelwright said that since the concrete building which is to house the center (which takes up approximately 79,000 square feet) is completely encovered, no noise or odor problems are anticipated.

He also noted that all sides involved would end up benefitting from the new center.

"It will result in more profit for BFI, and it will boost participation for curbside recycling," said Wheelwright.

BFI currently runs two other such recycling facilities, one in central Connecticut and one in Hooksett, N.H. It is hoped that the new center will be in operation by early summer, Wheelwright said.

Lincoln School May Be Razed

The closed Lincoln School may have to be demolished after a 4 by 10 foot section of the exterior brick wall fell from the top of the building sometime Sunday or early Monday, Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday.

Sheets has instructed Building Inspector Matt Mulvey to seek an estimate to demolish the building if necessary.

No one was hurt, the mayor said. The school was cordoned off and the area was labeled as dangerous and hazardous. Debris from the wall which weighed about a half a ton was scattered over a 40-foot area.

Sheets said the incident was caused by a leaky slate roof. "The slate roof has leaked for years. The water worked its way down and every time it froze it pushed the mortar out further and further.

"The integrity of the walls are suspect because the bricks pull away from the mortar."

A committee will examine the situation and make a recommendation to the mayor. Sheets has asked that the matter be placed on the Feb. 26th school committee agenda.

If the committee deems the situation an emergency, the mayor can act unilaterally. If it is not an emergency, the school committee has the authority to rule on the building.

The committee could recommend one of several courses of action for the school. They include keeping the building, selling it or demolishing it.

Under state law, the school committee would have to transfer the property to the city council to sell the building.

As for demolishing the school, Sheets said, "I think we have to get some idea on what it would cost to demolish it. My gut reaction is it would cost at least $2 million to renovate but on the other hand, to build another school that size, it may cost eight to 10 million dollars."

Further complicating the issue is the overcrowding problem at the Lincoln-Hancock School.

"The overcrowding at Lincoln-Hancock is a real problem. It don't have the figures but I think its substantial," the mayor said.

The idea of re-opening the Lincoln School to help ease the Lincoln-Hancock School overcrowding "has been mentioned but not seriously discussed," Sheets said.

The Lincoln School, which the mayor estimated is 90 to 100 years old, closed in 1975. It was replaced by the Lincoln-Hancock School.

Sheets To Discuss Downtown Plan At QCA Meeting Feb. 26

Mayor James Sheets will discuss his Downtown Revitalization Plan at the Quincy Citizen's Association meeting, Wednesday, Feb. 26 at 8 p.m. at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center.

A question and answer period will follow the presentation. All members and interested Quincy residents are invited.

Sagamore Inn Appeals License Revocation

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Owners of the Sagamore Inn bar in North Quincy have appealed their license revocation to Suffolk County Superior Court, Boston. By agreement with the State Attorney General's office the bar will remain open in the interim.

The state Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission upheld the Sept. 24, 1991 decision of the Quincy License Board to revoke the bar's All-Alcoholic license because of alleged drug dealing on the premises.

Assistant City Solicitor James Timmins said attorney for the Sagamore Inn, Neal Brown, has filed the second appeal which questions whether the ABCC acted correctly in upholding the Quincy board's decision.

"It is my expectation that this will be disposed of by April or May," Timmins said.

COLOR GUARD of the Morrisette American Legion Post lead contingent of veterans honoring deceased war veterans past the post home on Miller St. in West Quincy. Other groups marching in Monday's parade included the Quincy High School marching band, veteran organizations and religious and civic leaders.

Cahill Proposes Initiatives To Revitalize Downtown

Besides offering his own alternative revitalization plan, Councillor Tim Cahill is proposing a series to initiatives to rejuvenate the downtown business area.

First, Cahill says a Quincy Square business district should be created to increase the potential for investment in the downtown. "Boundaries must be set and zoning that takes into account the unique qualities of Quincy Square must be put into effect.

"It is important that politics be removed as much as possible from the development process once the zoning and boundaries have been set," Cahill said. "Property owners must be given the right to control their own property without City Council oversight."

Cahill said a new downtown district with its own set of zoning ordinances would send a "free enterprise" message to property owners in Quincy Square.

"The landlord should be able to do what they want with their property within a given set of parameters. It's the only way to encourage investment," he said.

Cahill said a planning partnership proposed by Mayor James Sheets would add more red tape to the city's bureaucratic planning and permitting process, thereby discouraging property owners to invest in their property.

He noted the mayor's proposed partnership isn't bold enough because it is not set up like a redevelopment authority.

Second, Cahill advocates establishing a strong set of ordinances that give the Historic District Commission the power of oversight on any new development and any rehabilitation work that is attempted in the new district. "Such categories as signage, facades and building composition must be addressed for this commission to function properly," he said.

Third, the councillor says the city should begin the process, "once and for all," by which Quincy College becomes a private four-year college and encourage expansion into Quincy Square.

Finally, Cahill said a second process should begin to make the United First Parish Church of the Presidents a year-round historic site open to the public.

"That process should take place through a national park service or a private foundation for historic preservation," he said.

Cahill said his initiatives are aimed at increasing foot traffic, an important step in revitalizing the square. He said more foot traffic can be generated by bringing new businesses to Quincy, promoting tourism and expanding the college.

He noted the Wollaston business area does not have any vacant store fronts because it has the "right mix" of business owners, residents and students from Eastern Nazarene College.

He also said his proposal is intended to expand the city's tax base by bringing more businesses into Quincy Square. There are 14 vacant stores on Hancock St. from Granite St. to School St.

With a larger tax base, Cahill said the city would have more money in its budget to fund essential city services for all Quincy residents.

Cahill, who is 33 years old, has lived or worked in Quincy Center for 28 years. For the past 10 years, he has operated Handshakes Cafe on Hancock St.

He believes his course of action is on target because he has witnessed first hand the changes in the downtown over the years.

"I've grown up here. I think I know (the Square) better than anyone else in city government and that's why I'm taking a stand."

No Board Action On Restaurant Reconsideration

A sixth-month moratorium on new restaurants in Quincy Center is still in effect despite a request by City Councillor-at-large Michael Cheney that the License Board reconsider.

The board imposed the ban on new Common Victualer licenses in the downtown area at its Feb. 4 meeting. Last week Cheney sent a letter to the board asking them to drop the ban and turn the matter over to the Planning Department for study.

On Tuesday, the board voted to forward Cheney's letter to the Planning Department. However, the board took no further action.

Board member Thomas Gorman, Quincy's Fire Chief, proposed the moratorium and said that the board should get some guidance from the Mayor's office in regard to his downtown revitalization plan.

Quincy Bay Inn Appeal Hearing March 19

March 19 is the hearing date for the Quincy Bay Inn's appeal of its 30-day All-Alcoholic license suspension by the Quincy License Board.

Quincy Bay Inn (Quincy Motel Corp.) will make its appeal to the state Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission that day at 11:30 a.m. in the Saltonstall Building, 100 Cambridge St., Boston.

The License Board imposed the suspension Jan. 28 on Quincy Bay Inn for allegedly serving intoxicated persons on Sept. 24, 1989. That evening, two 19-year old Quincy men died in an auto accident after leaving Quincy Bay Inn's Aquarius Lounge. The bar, now called The Outer Limits Rock Club, remains open pending the appeal.

To Save City Money

Cheney Seeks Change In Contract Law

By STEVE KAVANAGH

City Councillor Michael Cheney has requested Senator Paul Harold and the three local state representatives to file legislation that would change the way that communities are required to handle the contracting of services and goods.

Cheney said the state's Procurement Act Chapter 30B, which governs how communities handle the contracting of services and goods, is so restrictive that it does not allow communities to negotiate a lower cost for services when market prices fall.

"This restriction could cost Quincy taxpayers over $1 million in savings this year in our solid waste disposal contract alone," said Cheney.

The request for a change in the state law came after Cheney completed a report filed with Mayor James Sheets on potential savings that could be realized in the city's solid waste budget.

According to Cheney's report, the city is paying $81 per ton to dispose of Quincy's solid waste. The state wide average has dropped to $54 per ton over the last year.

Cheney estimates that if the city were allowed to renegotiate with BFI the city could save an estimated $945,000 this year in disposal costs alone. The report also cited an additional $100,000 to $400,000 in savings for the city if the mayor could renegotiate other provisions of the BFI contract.

After meeting with Sheets and DPW Commissioner David Colton to discuss the report Sheets ordered some immediate changes in how the city will dispose of debris that is generated by the city's Park Department, DPW and other neighborhood clean-up programs.

The changes that were ordered by the mayor along with other changes that have been initiated by Colton will save Quincy residences thousands of tax dollars over the next 10 months, Cheney said. Cheney commended Sheets and Colton for the swift action in an effort to save taxpayers money.

"It is my hope that the state will allow local communities the same flexibility that private industry has when it comes to handling the contract of services and goods," said Cheney. "Local officials need this flexibility in order to get the most out of every tax dollar."

First Night Meeting

Quincy's First Night Committee will meet Wednesday, Feb. 19 at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chambers of Old City Hall.

All those interested in helping to organize and participate in this event are invited to attend.

CONTROL OVER INCONTINENCE

Urinary incontinence plagues some ten million people in the United States, the majority of them women over age 55. For many of them, gaining back some control over this difficult and embarrassing problem may be possible using a simple program of behavior modification. Therapy being pioneered at the National Institute on Aging revolves around patient education and a strict schedule for urination. Patients learn to put off the urge to urinate through relaxation and distraction techniques, using behavioral training that may be implemented at home. Among a test group of patients, 12 percent achieved total continence with the program, while 75 percent reported improvement of 50 percent or better.

P.S. For more information, call "Help for Incontinent People," a non-profit organization, at 1-800-BLADDER.

Incontinence can be a painful and embarrassing problem. The good news is that, today, many sufferers can be helped using new techniques. The Des Moines: A Bone?

The Navy's offer to help Quincy get another ship after handling the carrier Lexington over to Corpus Christi somehow sounds a little like, "let's toss 'em a bone."

Being mentioned as a possibility is the Des Moines, a 13,000-ton cruiser built here after World War II and sitting in mothballs at the Philadelphia Navy Yard since the mid-1960's.

As a tourist attraction, the Des Moines just doesn't sound very exciting. Who would come to Quincy from out of state just to see a ship named Des Moines unless they were from Iowa?

However, the Des Moines does have strong Quincy ties and there is sentiment here for her.

The last of the so-called big gun cruisers, she was launched at the Fore River Shipyard in 1948. A smaller version predecessor by the same name was one of the first ships built at the Quincy shipyard.

That was just before the turn of the century and the shipyard was then the Fore River Engine Company. It was founded as a machine shop by Thomas Watson who received that famous first phone call from Alexander Graham Bell: "Mr. Watson, come here, I want you!"

You might say that Quincy got into the naval shipbuilding business as the result of the battleship Maine being blown up in Havana Harbor in 1898 triggering the Spanish-American War.

In September of that year, Fore River began building two torpedo boat destroyers, the MacDonough and the Lawrence. And while those ships were under construction the company landed the contract to build a 3,100 ton cruiser — the Des Moines.

The latter really put Fore River into the shipbuilding business in a big way. It was such a significant milestone for the city that the street leading to the shipyard from Southern Artery was named Des Moines Rd. after the cruiser.

So there is sentiment here for the Des Moines and its historic ties to Quincy's early shipbuilding days.

But would it be worth all the effort and money to get her here and maintain her year after year?

The huge aircraft carrier Lexington also built here would have been a super-duper tourist attraction.

In the beginning, anyway. But there were mixed feelings about the Lex. Some were afraid that the novelty of the ship parked in the Town River would wear off and the number of visitors decline as the maintenance costs went up.

SHEETS

Mayor James Sheets, who was greatly disappointed by the loss of the Lexington to Corpus Christi, says he may talk to the Navy about the possibility of bringing the Des Moines here and establishing a naval and maritime museum aboard her.

But after the herculean effort by so many that went into trying to win the Lexington, getting the Des Moines or a smaller ship would be something like telling you you can't be a Megabucks winner but we'll let you have a winning card at the church Bingo.

Texas political and financial clout won the Lexington for Corpus Christi even if the Navy insists it had the better plan. Could the Navy have a bit of a guilty conscience?

Fore River shipyard built some of the mightiest fighting ships of World War II. And built them fast and good when they were needed fast and good in the South Pacific.

Late Quincy Historian William C. Edwards in his book "Historic Quincy" notes that in the three year period beginning with Pearl Harbor Day, Dec. 7, 1941, Fore River launched 88 ships of 11 different types — an average of one ship each 12 1/2 days for three years.

"Built In Quincy" meant a lot to the proud workers at Fore River who did the building and the proud sailors who served aboard them.

When they were built in Quincy, they were really built. Like the old battleship Nevada launched here in 1914.

She was badly damaged at Pearl Harbor and beached. But her construction was so sturdy that she was repaired and modernized and rejoined the fleet in 1942, playing a major role in the invasion of France and in the Pacific.

A tough "old lady" as ships of her class were known, her days were finally numbered. The Navy picked her for one of the target ships for a 1946 nuclear weapons test in the Pacific. Even though in the center of it all and heavily damaged she refused to sink as many of the other target ships did. She finally had to be sunk by naval gunfire.

Hindsight is wonderful. It's too bad we didn't get the Massachusetts or the cruiser Quincy II back when we could have. All we got was the ship's bell from the Quincy, which is on display outside City Hall.

The Des Moines? Would she really satisfy sentimental longing for a reminder of Quincy's glorious shipbuilding past?

Volunteers Needed To Help Restore Lightship Nantucket I

The Metropolitan District Commission in cooperation with Marina Bay is seeking interested volunteers who want to help restore and preserve the Lightship Nantucket I.

The Nantucket, which was built in 1950, was the last to be decommissioned by the Coast Guard several years ago. Lightships, which once served as beacons to warn ships about dangerous shoals and entrances to harbors, have been replaced by buoys with strobe lights and electronic signals.

Plans call for the 617-ton ship to be open to the public in April. The Nantucket is expected to participate in the Tall Ships flotilla in Boston Harbor in July. Several Tall Ships will reportedly be berthed at Marina Bay during the celebration.

Volunteers are needed for general cleanup (painting, cleaning, scrubbing the deck) as well as mechanical repairs on three Saturdays, Feb. 22, March 7 and March 21. The work was begun on Saturday, Feb. 1.

Other dates for volunteering are also available (minimum 10 volunteers). For more information call 727-5290.

Democrats Lost Lexington

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

When the Secretary of the Navy turned down Quincy as a sight for the U.S.S. Lexington, Mayor James Sheets claimed it was politics, He was right, but for the wrong reasons. It was his politics and the politics of his fellow Democrats that lost the Lexington for Quincy.

Why should the Navy reward a state like Massachusetts a prize when its Senators and Congressmen vote consistently against the Navy's interest?

Our congressional delegation, led by Sen. Ted Kennedy, are for ever voting against defense appropriations and slamming the armed services as "war hawkes." Remember, none of them voted to support Operation Desert Storm!

During the 1980's President Reagan conducted the largest peace time build up of our armed forces in the history of the United States. Yet, the Fore River Shipyard in Quincy closed because liberals like Kennedy and his handmaiden Cong. Brian Donnelly could not bring home the bacon. Then they had the gall to blame the closing on "Reaganomics."

If they had done their jobs and protected their constituents, Fore River would still be open. Instead, they pander to the leftist special interest groups that fill their campaign warchests. And, they come home to Massachusetts at election time and fill the voters full of rhetoric.

How many more base closures like Fort Devins, empty shipyards and lost opportunities like the Lexington must occur before the people in Massachusetts wise up. Vote to save your own job instead of some liberal Congressman's.

Supports Lottery Distribution Bill

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

State Senator Tom Birmingham, D-Chelsea has introduced a lottery bill into the current legislative session. The Birmingham bill, if enacted, would simply require that all local aid funds generated by the State Lottery be distributed in direct proportion to the amount of money spent on tickets in a given community.

Birmingham believes the lottery is a regressive form of raising state revenues and I agree. Less affluent folks tend to gamble more than the wealthy in hopes of striking it rich. Is anybody hardly surprised that in communities like Quincy or neighboring Weymouth more people line up to buy lottery tickets than in, say, Hingham or Milton?

Using fiscal 1990 figures--latest available--that could mean, for instance, $2.8 million more in lottery aid to Quincy. Surely, Mayor Jim Sheets, the City Council and School Committee could find some good use for this nontax revenue? Quincy, clearly, would be a big winner under the Birmingham bill. Why is state Sen. Paul Harold, D-Quincy opposed to the Birmingham bill, calling it short-sighted and simplistic? I urge you to call his office today, asking him to reconsider his opposition. Here's one Quincy resident who thinks the Birmingham bill is an idea worth supporting.

Purchasing Agent Would Save $20,000, Burgin Says

Feb. 19-25 1937 55 Years Ago

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin urged legislative action to create the post of city purchasing agent, a move which, he said, would save the city at least $20,000 a year.

"I am convinced," he told the city Council, "that a purchasing officer would save at least four times the amount of his pay."

Burgin said he knew of instances when two city departments, one small and one large, purchased the same thing on the same day at two different stores for two different prices.

DEMOCRATS COMPLAIN

Members of the Democratic City Committee complained to Gov. Charles F. Hurley that aliens were getting preferred treatment over citizens by the WPA and they wanted the rules changed.

Recently, they said, the WPA sent 40 painters to the Fore River Shipyard to work on the cruiser Vincennes. Thirty eight citizens were kept at 67 cents an hour while two aliens were put back on the WPA payroll at $1 an hour.

FIRE STATION APPROVED

The City Council voted 6-3 to authorize the building of a $160,000 Central Fire Station, with the federal government picking up $72,000 of the cost and the city $88,000.

"How can the city make any savings in the tax rate if we continue to borrow and keep the debt at a high figure?" declared Councillor John W. Savage, one of those opposed.

He was joined in opposition by Councillors Myron N. Lane and Edward J. Sandberg.

John's Creamed Ravioli

To pass this dreary winter away a few of us get together on the week end and bring our favorite dish or sometimes we cook it when we arrive (if it doesn't take too long). Last week my brother John brought an entree he invented and it was so delicious I thought it should be passed on to you. I only have one comment about it, however, it is definitely not a diet delight! But we go off the diet on nights like this!

JOHN'S CREAMED RAVIOLI

1 Lb frozen ravioli (preferably the smaller type)
3 cups cream
about 10 pimento stuffed green olives (cut in halves)
1 cup parmesan cheese (grated)
2 or 3 cloves of garlic
3 Tbsps olive oil

First of all, par-boil the raviolis. In a skillet, heat the oil and saute the garlic. Then add the ravioli and saute for a few minutes. Add the cream and then the rest of the ingredients and simmer slowly until ravioli are as tender as you want them. Serve with added grated cheese if desired.

Young Cancer Society Volunteers Find Time For A Worthy Cause

Beth Ann Strenge may have seemed fully occupied as one of Quincy's busiest young ladies, but when her mother was diagnosed with cancer three years ago, she added work as a volunteer for the American Cancer Society to her agenda and has been deeply involved ever since.

In much the same way, Bruce Ayers, new Ward 6 city councillor, responded to the death of a close friend a few years ago. "I was inspired to do more than grieve," Ayers said. "I wanted to 'pitch in' and to make a difference in someone's life."

The program of the South Shore unit of the Cancer Society gave him that opportunity.

Strenge and Ayers are just two examples of busy young people in the nine South Shore communities served by the local unit who represent an encouraging youth movement in volunteering that has carried the unit to leadership among the 46 such units across the state. The unit provides programs of information, education and service in Quincy, Milton, Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Norwell, Scituate and Weymouth.

The show others how they can serve in the fight against cancer in a practical way, the unit held a win and cheese reception recently at the River Bay Club, 99 Brackett St., Quincy.

Other busy Quincy people who find time for major Cancer Society volunteer work are Dennis and Pauline Sweeney and Eileen Cooney. For eight years, the Sweeneys, parents of three children, have been co-chairpersons of the popular Daffodil Days fundraiser. To date, the event has raised more than $214,000 for cancer research.

BETH ANN STRENGE

They recently organized a mailing of nearly 3,000 letters for this year's event, which will culminate March 24 and 25 when over 120,000 bright yellow daffodils will greet spring on the South Shore.

Eileen Cooney, a 27-year-old graduate of Aquinas Junior College with an associate degree in business management, had built up a great deal of secretarial and business experience when she decided last year to help out with the Cancer Society's Making Strides--Terry Fox Run--event. She found the enthusiasm, hard work and dedication of everyone involved so exciting that "it set a fire in me that will never die."

Since then, Cooney has been involved in almost all the fundraising activities of the South Shore Unit, and has been appointed to the Board of Directors. "I absolutely love working for such a worthy cause and would encourage everyone who is interested to become involved in some way," she says.

An active Quincy Rotarian, for seven years chair of the Miss Quincy Bay beauty pageant, and a member of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, all of this added to her work in insurance sales and marketing, Beth Ann Strenge had found an abundance of rewards in her work as an ACS volunteer.

"First and foremost is the intrinsic 'warm fuzzy' feeling inherent in volunteerism," she says. "The selfless joy one gets from doing something for someone else cannot be beat. Another perk is the solid shared friendships with other volunteers. Amy have had personal experiences with cancer and their testimonies offer courage, inspiration and perspective.

"The work for the Cancer Society also provides a mirror to focus on all the good still left in the world."

Bruce Ayers has pitched in by using the assets of his business, Ayers Brothers Handicap Conversion Company. A 10-year-old business headquartered on East Squantum St., the company specializes in providing driving equipment for the physically limited as well as rental vans for transportation of the handicapped.

"For the past three years I have been active in the Cancer Society's 'Jail and Bail' fundraising events, contributing rental vans that we use in our business, along with drivers and time coordinators," he explains. "The rental vans become 'paddy wagons' to bring the 'prisoners' to and from jail. We also deliver poinsettia plants during the holiday season.

"Contributing my extra hours to the American Cancer Society has been a very rewarding experience," he says, adding, "I encourage everyone to become a volunteer--meet new friends and receive the gift of giving."

Youth in volunteering for the South Shore unit of the Cancer Society begins at the very top with Barbara Sullivan of Braintree, president of the unit the past two years. A busy self-employed young businesswoman who provides accounting services to small businesses, Sullivan became involved after the death of her husband four years ago with cancer at the age of 35.

Since then, she has taken a leadership role in almost all the fundraising activities, heading up auctions, working on Daffodil Days, Jail and Bail, and co-chairing with a young Pembroke accountant, Kenneth Kirkland, the first cancer society golf tournament last year.

Immediately ahead on her schedule is a fashion show planned for late spring.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"I was summoned by my country, whose voice I can never hear but with veneration and love." These words were spoken on April 30, 1789, by a tall, tired man.

After losing many battles, but winning a war, he had hoped to retire from public life to his beautiful and beloved home on the banks of the Potomac.

His countrymen, though, needed George Washington in peace even more than in war. They called upon him to lead their infant republic forward.

How Washington responded to the summons is described in his inaugural Address. In an eloquent passage, the first President of the United States gave his countrymen of that day and of our own day a responsibility which should always guide Americans: "The preservation of the sacred heart fire of liberty and the destiny of the republican model of government are justly considered as deeply and finally staked on the experiment entrusted to the hands of the American people."

We Americans have preserved this heritage; its future rests in our hands today, as surely as when the Father of His Country gave his trust to those who heard him on April 30, 1989. We, like Washington, are summoned by our country to preserve "the sacred fire of liberty." ...

North Finishes Regular Season With 15-5 Mark

The North Quincy boys' basketball team ended its most successful season in several years with a 70-54 victory over Weymouth Monday to finish with a 15-5 record going into the Eastern Mass. Tournament.

Sean Donovan, the number four scorer in the Old Colony League, paced the Raiders with 20 points, including four three-pointers and also had seven rebounds.

Bo Smith scored 14 points and Luke Sheets had 10.

Last Friday North defeated Falmouth, 57-43, with Smith scoring 17 points and Sheets adding 10. The Raiders had a 32-24 lead at the half and never looked back.

Earlier in the week North topped Barnstable, 60-42, with Tim Johnson leading the way with 14 points. Desmond Bellot had 12 points and Chris Olsen had 10 as the Raiders went on a 12-0 run early in the second half to pull away.

Crespi, Jolley Shine But Quincy Bows

Despite another outstanding game by captains Joey Crespi and Dave Jolley, the Quincy boys' basketball team lost to Barnstable, 79-71, last Friday, dropping its record to 7-11.

Crespi led all scorers with 27 points and Jolley, the leading scorer in the Old Colony League, had 18 points and 19 rebounds.

Tom Antkowiha had 18 points for Barnstable, which trailed, 40-34, at the half.

Earlier in the week fouls again plagued the Presidents, who were in foul trouble much of the season and Silver Lake won, 69-59, to clinch at least a tie for the league title.

The Lakers kept parading to the foul line as they converted 11 of 17 free throws in the first half and hit on 12 of 15 in the second half.

Stephen McAuliffffe of the Lakers was 10 for 11 from the foul line.

Quincy jumped off to a 20-10 first half lead but then the fouls began to haunt the Presidents once again.

The Presidents went on a 16-4 run in the first half to take a 10-point lead as Jolley, who finished with 15 points, scored all eight of his first half points during this run.

North Girls Take League Second Spot

The North Quincy girls' basketball team lost to Weymouth, 41-32, Monday night but finished in second place in the Old Colony League and take an overall record of 14-6 into the Eastern Mass. Tournament.

North had a bad night from the free throw line which hurt its cause and Weymouth took a 23-12 halftime lead.

Tricia Hughes, Noreen McDonagh, Nicole Sapienza and Jen Santry sparked the North girls.

Last week North Quincy defeated Barnstable, 55-35, with Hughes sparking the attack with 20 points.

Regina Murphy contributed seven points for the North girls.

The Spider of Fortune

When Mark Twain was editor of a newspaper in Missouri, one reader wrote in saying he had found a spider in his paper. The man wanted to know if the spider meant good luck or bad luck.

Twain wrote back: "Finding a spider in your paper was neither good luck nor bad luck for you. The spider was merely looking over our paper to see which merchant is not advertising so that he can go to that store, spin his web across the door and lead a life of undisturbed peace ever afterward."

Moral: The spider of fortune lives everywhere. Keep him from your door by advertising regularly in The Quincy Sun.

TWIN TALENT -- Gayle (left) and Patti Morrell are enjoying a fine season for the Plymouth State College Women's basketball team, a top contender for this year's Little East Conference title. They have combined for 15 points and 13 rebounds a game and also excel in the classrooms, as they each compiled 3.88 grade point average last year. The 1988 graduates of Quincy High are the daughters of Thomas and Patricia Morrell.

Quincy, North Teams In EMass. Tourney

The North Quincy boys' and girls' basketball teams and the Quincy boys' team will play in the upcoming Eastern Mass. Tournament, which is using the open format for the first time on a one-year trial basis.

In the past teams had to win 59 percent of its games to qualify but this year all teams, regardless of records, are eligible to enter.

This format has been used for many years in the Midwest and the South and many times teams with inferior records have gone on to win the tournament.

Both North Quincy teams would have qualified anyway, as both surpassed the 12-win minimum total, the qualifying figure in the past.

The Quincy boys are entered despite winning only seven games.

Girls' coach Bob Keuther has decided not to enter his team in the tournament. The young Quincy squad won only two games this season.

Volleyball

Atlantic Boys Win City Title

The Atlantic Middle School boys' volleyball team defeated Broadmeadows, 2-1, in the semifinals and Sterling, 2-1, in the finals to capture the city championship.

In the semifinals, Atlantic won the first game by a close score of 15-13 behind the powerful serving of Phuc Nguyen and solid hitting of Allen Johnstone.

Broadmeadows took the second game, 15-9, despite fine passing by Darren Marchitti, Billy McCarthy and Edward Chan of Atlantic.

In the deciding game, Atlantic pulled out a nail-biting win, 20-18. Ed Ford and Brian Ross made clutch serves.

Meanwhile, Sterling swept Central, 2-0, in the other semifinal match. Sterling won by scores of 16-10 and 16-14. An outstanding defensive performance was made by Yon Siem of Sterling.

In the finals, Sterling jumped out to an early lead as Mike Luciano served eight points but Atlantic fought back to edge Sterling, 15-13, with a nice set and spike combination from Felipe Ornelas and Raul Ornelas.

Sterling won game two, 15-11, in a see-saw battle. Anthony Greenwood and Dan Conway kept the score close for Atlantic with strong serves and Frank Wells played well at the net. Sterling's outstanding defense, led by Eric Hanlon and Brad Smith, keyed the win.

The third and deciding game featured exciting play with Atlantic winning by a 15-7 score to clinch the City Championship.

The Sterling girls' team defeated Atlantic to win the City Championship also. Atlantic is coached by Carolyn Parsley and Sterling by Chris Prendeville.

ENC Men Off To A Winning Start

The Eastern Nazarene College men's volleyball team kicked off its second season recently with victories over Tufts University and MIT.

In the match against Tufts the Jumbos jumped out to a 2-1 lead but ENC battled back to win, 3-2.

"It was an evenly contested match that could have been won by either team," ENC coach Keith Myers said. "I think we won because we were in better shape. They just seemed to fade in game five. The turning point of the match was when we put it all together in the fifth game and got a large lead that Tufts couldn't overcome."

The Crusaders got out to a 10-1 lead, sparked by senior Dennis Cousins, and held on for a 15-11 win. Senior Tim Carrignan starred for ENC with a .357 hitting percentage and 13 kills.

"Tim hit the ball real well and was consistent through the whole match, said captain Jim Berger.

Against MIT, which had beaten ENC in a tournament earlier in the year, the Crusaders were expecting a tough match. Instead they cruised to 3-1 victory.

"We were in control most of the match, except for the second game when we started playing sloppy. But we came back and dominated the last two games," Berger said.

"The league is very balanced this year and all the teams have improved. It's going to come down to who has improved the most," Myers said. "It should be an interesting year."

Sean Connolly had a good night in goal and John Linehan did well when inserted late in the game.

Last Friday North goalie Dennis Ruggere had the game of his life as North Quincy held high-scoring Marshfield to a 1-1 tie.

Marshfield has the highest scoring line in the state in Chris Dalzell, Brendan MacDermott and Kevin English but they were stymied by Ruggere, who had 43 saves. The Rams' line has scored 73 goals and 166 points this season.

"My hat goes off to North Quincy and their goalie was the MVP of this game," said Marshfield coach Jack Crowley, a former Quincy High star and assistant coach.

"Three times in the first period we had players raise their sticks, thinking the puck was in and he stopped them."

"The was just a great game and Ruggere was amazing," North coach Tom Benson said.

North took a 1-0 lead when Fitzpatrick scored midway through the first period with Christopherson having an assist.

Marshfield tied it with only 2:16 left in the game on a goal by English.

Earlier in the week Plymouth handed North its worst loss of the season, 9-2.

Pacino and McCallum scored the Raider goals. Connelly had 30 saves.

Strong Quincy Finish

It was a disappointing season for the Quincy hockey team, but the Presidents finished strong, winning their final two games to finish the season with a 6-10-4 record (4-9-3 in the Old Colony League).

Quincy exploded for five goals in the third period Monday to defeat Revere, 7-2, at Revere in the season's finale.

Scott MacPherson wound up another outstanding season with two goals and an assist to finished with 32 points (22 goals and 10 assists) for third place in the league scoring.

Sean McArdle had two goals and Steve Miller, Jamie Schatzl and Dan Mann one each.

Jeff Craig had three assists and John Lewis, Jim Smith, Dan Morrell, Schatzl, Shane Abboud, junior Scott MacPherson and Derek Mullen one apiece.

Last Saturday the Presidents rolled over Taunton, 13-3, with eight different players scoring.

Craig had a hat trick, McArdle two goals, Joe McPhee, just up from the jayvees having an impressive varsity debut with two goals and an assist, MacPherson two goals and two assists and Smith, Dave Mullen, Mann and Schatzl a goal apiece.

Schatzl and McArdle had two assists apiece and Mann, Craig, Smith, Abboud, Lewis, Dave Mullen, junior Scott MacPherson and Derek Mullen one each.

Earlier in the week Quincy lost to Barnstable, 7-1, with Craig scoring the lone Quincy goal.

"It was a disappointing season, but the boys played their hearts out against bigger and more experienced teams," said coach Bob Sylvia.

"We started out well and had only two losses in our first nine games. But after our tie with North Quincy, we went downhill and lost eight in a row before winning the last two games. We again had the youngest team in the league and the boys did a good job."

Local Stock Car Wins 'Dream Wheels' Show

A stock car owned by two Quincy brothers and sponsored by several Quincy businesses won first place at the recent Dream Wheels Show at the World Trade Center in Boston.

The car, owned by Chris and Michael Condon, took first place in the Racing Stock Car division over cars from all around New England.

"We spent about a week preparing the car for the show," said Michael Condon. "Stock car racing is a contact sport. We are constantly repairing body damage to the car. It's a testament to the great work done by Bob's Auto Center (one of the sponsors) that we were able to win first place against cars that are built strictly for show," he said.

The car will be raced at Volusia County Speedway in Florida in early February. The Condon team will compete for a share of the $50,000 purse.

"This is part of the Speedweeks series held every years around the Daytona 500," said Chris Condon. "We encourage anyone vacationing in the area to contact us for information and directions to the track."

Sponsors include New England Tractor Trailer School, Alphagraphics, Johnson Motor Parts, Eco Muffler Center, New England Livery Service, Sign Stop, K-Z Citgo and New England Towing.

Squirt C's Win District Crown

Quincy's Squirt C hockey team won the District 3 championship after defeating Canton, 2-1, in a double overtime-six-round tie-breaker.

Canton scored early and held the lead through 40 shots on net until late in the third period. With only 27 seconds left in the game Kevin Cellucci scored the tying goal.

The next two overtime periods saw a relentless barrage of shots from Matt O'Connell, Mike Sullivan and Mike Dempsey, but the Canton goalie stopped them all.

Finally, after six attempts by both teams to score on breakaways, Quincy's Ron Gamel hit the upper corner for the victory.

Solid defense from Joe Watson and Chris DeLisle sparked Quincy, which improved to 15-0-1 with a 3-2 win over Cape Cod Canal.

Joe Vallantini put Quincy ahead, with Paul Burke assisting, but Cape Cod scored twice. In the second period Mike Hastings tied it for Quincy with Brian Ehrlich assisting and Cellucci scored the winning goal.

The Squirt C's are playing this week in the Cranberry B tournament in Pembroke.

Ayers Bros. Converts Van For Paralyzed Athlete

With the help of a local business, Christmas came early this year for Darryl Williams.

On Christmas Eve, Williams, a paralyzed athlete, received a midnight-blue Ford van which had been converted to a fully-equipped wheelchair van by Ayers Bros. Handicap Conversion Center in Quincy, under the direction of Bruce Ayers.

As a sophomore at Jamaica Plain High School in 1979, Williams was on the sidelines during a scrimmage football game at Charlestown High when a rooftop gunman fired a bullet that shattered his spine and left him a quadriplegic.

Ayers Bros. worked extra hours and put additional effort into the van conversion so that the specially equipped vehicle would be ready for Williams for Christmas. "We were pleased that we could help out. It is always gratifying to see dreams come true for people who have had such unfortunate luck in their lives," said Bruce Ayers.

Williams was thrilled when his boss, State Treasurer Joe Malone, unveiled the gift. The Friends of Darryl Williams, a private group, will pay for the van with fundraising events this spring.

The group is helping Williams organize an outreach program where he will speak to youths about racism, violence and the ability to forgive others. The van will help Williams reach those audiences.

Childproofing Your Home

Children are our greatest natural resources. They bring us pleasure, enjoyment, sometimes headaches, but most of all they bring us responsibility. Because a small child does not understand the dangers of every day life, we must take the proper precautions, and prepare our homes to keep the child safe.

One of the first things a toddler learns to do is crawl. From the eyes of a child, the world is a new frontier just waiting to be explored. Since we cannot keep our eyes on a child every moment, we must make sure there are no dangers in his way. Lets start with the kitchen.

When cooking on top of a stove, always turn the pot handles in. By doing this, you will lessen the chances of a child spilling the hot contents of the pot or pan onto themselves which could cause a severe burn. Remember everything less than 4 feet high is in the reach of a small child.

Most of us have a toxic holding area in our home, and it's usually found under our kitchen sinks. Items like dish washing detergent, window cleaner, furniture polish, and plant food are common items found in this cabinet. This is the most dangerous area for children. Since the cabinet door is in the reach of a crawling child, this area becomes a place to explore. The safest way to stop this is child proofing the cabinet doors with child safety latches or locks. Some locks fit on the outside of the cabinet door handles and make it impossible for a child to open the door, while others are hidden inside the door and stop the child from opening the door wide enough to gain access.

If the worst does happen, and a child is exposed to anything toxic, no home should be without the telephone number to the POISON INFORMATION CENTER 232-2120, keep this number near your phone at all times. If a child may have been exposed to a poison, first call 911, then get the container of the item the child ingested and call the poison information center. Do not automatically induce vomiting without the direction of trained personnel, vomiting may cause more damage.

Be careful to close and lock all doors in your home, most of all the cellar door. As the child is crawling, an open door is like an invitation, and a fall down the cellar stairs may be fatal. If you have a refrigerator not in use, remove the door, this will stop mildew from growing inside, and not allow a child to be trapped.

Remember the old sayings about keeping children away from matches, lighters, knives, and other sharp objects. Other things to keep away from children are plastic trash bags and plastic dry cleaning bags which may smother a child. Before bringing a house plant into your home, check to see if it may be toxic to humans; many are.

Remember to use common sense, and don't underestimate the abilities of a child.

Committee To Monitor Home Depot Project

The next meeting of the Home Depot Monitoring Committee will be held Thursday, March 12.

The new committee held its first meeting last week. The purpose of the committee is to oversee the implementation of all conditions and special conditions of the project by Home Depot set by the City Council.

Committee members include Ward 4 City Councillor Tom Fabrizio; Edward Shaw of Dickinson Development Corp. (representing Home Depot); Ward 4 residents Tom McFarland, Mary Tobin and Frank Dunphy; Quincy Planning Director Richard Meade; Jack McDonald, representing the Willard Street business community; and Louise Brabazon, assistant to Fabrizio.

The committee will meet monthly to discuss progress on the project.

So far, blasting has been done to aid in removal of stone ledge so that construction may begin.

"About 35% of the ledge that needs to be removed" has been removed, estimated Meade.

Residents can contact Fabrizio or committee members with comments about the project.

Ward 1 Democrats To Caucus Feb. 29

Registered Democrats in Ward 1 will hold a caucus Saturday, Feb. 29 at 2 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Community Center, Sea St., to elect delegates to the 1992 Massachusetts Democratic Convention.

Ward 1 will elect 11 delegates and four alternates equally divided between men and women to send to the convention. The apportioned number of delegates has been allocated on the basis of a formula giving equal weight to the Democratic Party registration and the average vote for Democratic candidates in the last general elections for governor and president for which figures were available at the time delegate tabulations were prepared.

Leo Kelly, chairman of the Ward 1 Democratic Committee, will call the caucus.

The caucus is open to all registered Democrats, persons ineligible to register and media representatives. The only persons eligible to participate in any portion of the caucus are those who are registered Democrats in Ward 1 as of Dec. 31, 1991. There will be no absentee or proxy voting.

Candidates for delegates and alternates must also be present, voting and give his or her written consent to be nominated and that nomination must be seconded by two persons present at the local caucus.

All ballots will be written and secret. Those candidates receiving the greatest number of votes on the first ballot will be elected.

Each candidate will be allowed to make a two-minute speech and to distribute on his/her behalf one sheet of paper listing qualifications and ideas.

Slate making is allowed, but no special preference shall be given to slates. There is no quorum requirement for the caucus.

There will be no admission or expense charge at the caucus, although donations may be solicited.

Discrimination on the basis of race, sex, age, color, creed, national origin, religion, ethnic identity, philosophical persuasion or economic status in the conduct of the caucus is strictly prohibited.

Challenges to the delegate selection process can be filed in writing with the Compliance Review Commission, c/o The Massachusetts Democratic Party, 45 Bromfield St., Boston, MA 02108 no later than March 2.

3 Residents Named To Fitchburg College Dean's List

Three Quincy residents were recently named to Fitchburg State College's Dean's List for the fall semester.

They are: Deborah L. Brown, a psychology major; Michael Comer Morris, a human services major; and Amanda Jean Young, a nursing major.

A student is placed on the Dean's List for the semester if an average grade of 3.20 or better is attained, and the student is attending the college full time.

Cahill Unveils Own Plan For Downtown

the Burgin Parkway with Southern Artery.

The councillor said constructing the connector would be too disruptive since it would take properties that pay taxes. He also said the four-lane road would bisect Quincy Square in a way that will cause a "traffic nightmare" for motorists travelling north and south on Hancock St. and a "challenge" for pedestrians walking throughout the square.

In addition, the councillor said alternative underground and aboveground connector routes would "simply exist to speed automobiles through Quincy Square."

Finally, Cahill said the estimated $25-30 million connector project is too costly. He noted federal and state dollars to finance the road still come from taxpayers.

Cahill's opposition to the connector is not new. As a city council candidate in 1981, he spoke out against the idea.

Commenting on the third facet of the mayor's revitalization plan, Cahill said he would support a commuter rail station only if it were located at the Quincy Adams Station in South Quincy. He also said he would support a commuter rail station at the North Quincy Red Line station.

Sheets prefers a commuter rail station in the Parkingway between Granite and School St.

Cahill said he opposes the Parkingway site because he believes the MBTA would eventually move the Quincy Center Red Line station to the rail station in the Parkingway.

"To move the current station in Quincy Square will cause harm to the development at Presidents Place and the development of Quincy College. We don't need two stations in Quincy Square. It's not logical."

Asked why he opposes the mayor's plan, Cahill replied, "I just don't think it will work. We'll just be spinning our wheels over the next few years. I don't think we should go ahead with it because Quincy Square can't wait."

In place of the mayor's plan, Cahill unveiled a four-pronged alternative plan which he said would be more viable and less costly. He said the initial aim of his plan is to "bring life into Quincy Square" by bringing new businesses to vacant stores and developing two primary parcels of land, the Hancock Parking area and vacant lot where the former Kincaide's furniture store once stood at the southern end of Hancock St.

First, Cahill proposes using the city's Community Development Block Grant money to continue the successful sidewalk and lighting improvement project initiated under the McCauley administration. Parking meters removed for the project would not be replaced from Granite St. to School St. to increase foot traffic and encourage businesses to fill 14 vacant stores in that area.

Second, Cahill said businesses should not be charged up to $5,000 to join the mayor's partnership. Instead, he said those companies should be asked to continue to sponsor the Historic Lighting program, at $2,500 per light.

The light program was started by the Sheets administration.

Third, Cahill advocates the appointment of a downtown development coordinator with both the necessary political and business associations to assist and develop current proposals for the downtown area. The coordinator would work with the current planning director for projects for the Kincaide and Hancock Parking lots.

Instead of a cross-town connector, Cahill said the city should seek funds for what it is referred to as a "relief link," a road which would connect the Granite St. extension to the Parkingway. The cost of the relief link would be "minimal" compared to the connector, the councillor said.

A new traffic pattern for the Parkingway would be needed to facilitate the flow of traffic from the Burgin Parkway to the Parkingway. Cahill's proposal would call for funding to improve the intersection where School St., Franklin St. and the Parkingway intersect.

Cahill pointed out the proposal for engineering work has already been submitted to the state. He also noted the project would entail the negotiation with only one property owner (Paperama) for completion and no taking of taxable property other than with this one property owner.

Before making his opposition public Tuesday night, Cahill said he expressed his concerns regarding the mayor's revitalization plan to Sheets. Cahill was a member of the mayor's Downtown Revitalization Task Force which discussed the rejuvenation of the city's central business district over the last year and a half.

However, Cahill said Sheets dismissed his concerns. By offering an alternative plan, Cahill hopes to stir up some debate on the revitalization issue.

"I've been a part of the mayor's (revitalization) group and I've expressed my concerns privately to him and I now I think it's time to express them publicly and let the people decide.

"If the business people and constituents believe more in the mayor's plan, that's fine. If not, it will be open to argument and we'll go on from there."

Business Community Enthused

Sheets Plan For 'Partnership' Gets City, State Boost

By MIKE WHALEN

A home rule-petition for a public-private partnership proposed by Mayor James Sheets as part of his Quincy 2000 revitalization plan is gaining support from city and state officials and the business community.

Three city councillors went on record in support of the partnership or corporation at an Ordinance Committee meeting Monday night. In addition, eight business leaders expressed their support for the corporation at the meeting.

Surveyed by the Quincy Sun Tuesday, Sen. Paul Harold and State Rep. Ronald Mariano each said they would likely support the petition if it gets to Beacon Hill.

Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro and Councillors Michael Cheney and Patricia Toland all expressed support of the home-rule petition, which needs the votes of at least five of the nine city councillors before it goes on to the state legislature for final approval.

Councillor Timothy Cahill has already expressed publicly his opposition of the Quincy 2000 plan. However, the numbers are now on the side of the mayor, since only two of the remaining five votes are needed to pass the home-rule petition.

The City Council can vote on the home-rule petition as early as next week.

DeCristofaro said that the sooner the public-private planning partnership, or corporation, was formed, the better.

"We have an opportunity here to continue the bond formed by the City of Quincy with the downtown (business) people," said DeCristofaro. "I think this is a good plan and the council should move this right along."

Cheney agreed.

"I'm strongly in favor of forming a corporation," he said. "This document is well thought-out and well written. It was, I believe, modeled after the Lowell plan, which worked."

Toland called the home-rule petition "a step that we need to take, something that we need to get behind and get moving."

Ordinance Committee Chairman Lawrence Chretien read a letter from Quincy businessman and former mayoral candidate Peter O'Connell expressing support of the Quincy 2000 plan and the home-rule petition. Seven other business leaders in attendance also spoke in favor at the meeting.

"This is a good proposal and a good beginning," said Charles Ryder, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association. "The public-private planning partnership will be very successful, and I urge you to go on with it."

Ed Keohane, president of the Quincy Partnership, said "I commend all of you this evening. This will be remembered as a historic night, one where people proacted instead of reacted."

(The Quincy Partnership is a group of local leaders that has been involved in community affairs; it co-sponsored the city's Flag Day Parade and is responsible for the exterior lighting at several Quincy historical sites).

Maureen Rogers of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce agreed.

Up 841 From November

City's Electorate Climbs To 45,587

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The latest voter registration drive added more than 800 voters to the city's voting list, bringing Quincy's electorate to 45,587 and reflecting a healthy registration period for the presidential election.

According to the city's election department, 841 new voters registered since Nov. 4 when there were 44,746 voters in Quincy. The bulk of those new voters registered during the end of January and the first part of February.

"We had a healthy trend in voter registration the last week of January and the first week of February. We had over 800 people register," said Asst. City Clerk Joseph Shea. Of that number, some 500 people registered on Feb. 11, the last day to be eligible to vote in the Super Tuesday Presidential Primaries, March 10, Shea said.

The biggest factor in the registration surge is the presidential election. Political advertisements for presidential candidates which aired in New Hampshire, which held its first in the nation primary last week, also aired on Boston channels during the past several weeks. Advertisements, along with campaign coverage by the media, heighten awareness in the presidential sweepstakes and propels many unregistered voters to City Hall to register, Shea said.

"The presidential election is the big draw. I think it (registration) will increase as the November election draws near," he said.

Comparing the newest figures with those of last November, the group which gained the most voters was the unenrolled followed by the Democrats. The latter party still has a stronghold in Quincy.

As of Tuesday, there were 26,558 registered Democrats, an increase of 294 and 12,390 unenrolled voters, an increase of 544 since last November.

The unenrolled group was formerly known as independents. However, that classification was changed after the Independent Voters Party became a recognized political entity.

The Independent Voters Party has 10 registered voters, up nine from last fall when only one resident was registered under that party.

Restaurant To Open 24 Hours On Trial Basis

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Hungry residents will now have a choice of where to eat in the middle of the night.

Jonathan's Seafood Restaurant, 588 Washington St., received permission Tuesday from the Quincy License Board to be open 24 hours Wednesday through Saturday on a six-month trial basis.

The only other restaurant in Quincy allowed to be open 24 hours is Eddie's Diner, 382 Quincy Ave.

Last year a request from the nearby International House of Pancakes, 111 Washington St., to extend its hours was denied by the board. The difference was neighborhood opposition.

Residents of an apartment house next to the IHOP opposed the late night hours. More than 100 members of the Pagnano Towers Association backed the plan of neighboring Jonathans after a recent meeting with owner Athansios Kotoulas.

Police Capt. Frederick Laracy, substituting on the board for Chief Francis Mullen, said he would go along with a six-month trial basis provided that Kotoulas again meet with the residents of the senior citizens complex. Laracy said before the extended hours are adopted permanently neighbors should be allowed to see if the new hours cause any problems.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman proposed the six-month trial.

Ward 2 City Councillor Ted DeCristofaro said he was not opposed to the idea but had concerns about safety during late night hours.

"Being open those hours you don't necessarily attract the most desirable people," DeCristofaro said.

The popular seafood restaurant currently operates from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on weekdays and 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. on weekends. The establishment has a bar and serves alcoholic beverages. Whether Kotoulas will decide to serve alchohol until 1 a.m. was not discussed during the License Board hearing.

Chronic Late, Absent Students May Face Strict School Penalties

By STEVE KAVANAGH

High school students in Quincy who are frequently late or absent or who cut classes may face strict penalties beginning in September or even sooner.

The School Committee will likely vote to implement tough punitive guidelines including grade reductions, suspensions and detention.

The proposal differs from the state Department of Education's policy which opposes grade reduction as punishment for students who are excessively late or absent.

The new policy could be voted on as early as the March 4 School Committee meeting. But members agree that, if it does pass, the new rules will probably be implemented at the start of the next semester or school year.

A similar proposal, supported by committee members Steve Durkin and Ron Mariano, was defeated last year. However, School Committee newcomers Linda Stice and Dan Raymondi support the resolve.

School Committee members Mary Collins and Frank Santoro opposed the resolve last year although Collins has shown support for stricter guidelines without grade reductions.

Acting Superintendent of Schools Eugene Creedon has agreed to support the new policy. Creedon will hold a joint meeting with the Handbook Review Committees of the two high schools to review the proposal and form a recommendation.

"What we are saying by tightening up is that we want to make the school environment better for the student who wants to learn," Creedon said. "So for most of our students this will not affect them at all."

Creedon said that many faculty members have been pushing for the tougher rules. He also emphasized that it is a measure designed not to punish students but to improve the learning atmosphere for the majority of students.

"Teachers have been asking for this tool...," Creedon said. "I don't think it's time to question the people on the front lines."

"My feeling is that if teachers thought it would work than it's worth trying," Durkin said. "I know it will not be a cure all... we will still have students who skip school. But a grade reduction targets a certain type of student."

"This is aimed at kids in the middle of the spectrum, who want to do well but who might cut two or three classes a week," Mariano said. "With this proposal kids are going to think twice before leaving early or oversleeping and not making an effort to get to school on time."

"I think we'll see a significant improvement," said Raymondi. "Young people should realize they have a responsibility to attend class."

Durkin said it is important to instill good habits in students regarding attendance and punctuality.

"One thing that is expected of you in the workplace is to show up everyday--not three out of five or else you'll be out in the street," he said.

"I don't think you can do anything good in a school until you have discipline in order," Creedon said.

"You can't teach kids if they are not in school," Mariano said.

If the proposal is adopted, students will lose five points off their term grade in a subject for each class they cut. If a student has seven unexcused absences in a term they will automatically receive a failing grade.

Creedon said that the proposal that is on the table right now may need some "fine tuning" and may be revised before he make a recommendation for the School Committee to vote on.

Raymondi said that by following the request of teachers for the stricter attendance guidelines, "We are sending a strong message to the administration that the School Committee is supportive of them."

Raymondi also said he does not want to wait until September to put the new rules in place.

"I would like to see this implemented as soon as possible if there are no legal impediments," he said.

"There are some problems with trying to put it in in midstream," Mariano said. He said if teachers want to it could be done for the next semester or in September.

Durkin said the policy would most likely go into effect in September.

Speed Bump To Slow Golf Course Traffic

A Montclair resident, concerned about safety of children at the Wollaston Recreational Facility (President's Golf Course), put a speed bump in the way of a new license for the facility's concession stand. Literally.

James Kelly of nearby Vershire Street told the Quincy License Board that many of the neighborhood children use the playground and tennis courts. Kelly said cars speeding in and out of the parking lot on Evans Street have created a dangerous situation.

However, the matter appeared to be settled to everyone's satisfaction after the applicant volunteered to pay for a speed bump and the board approved the license by a 5-0 vote.

The facility is run by Norfolk County. Kelly said he has asked County officials in the past to install a speed bump. James FitzRoy, a Norfolk County official, said the county's budget is so tight it can't find the money for a speed bump.

"I would like a speed bump installed before the county is allowed to distribute any more booze up there," Kelly said.

Although it is not his responsibility, the applicant for the Common Victualer-Wine and Malt license, Rene Lumaghini of M.G.L. Services, Inc., offered to put $250 towards construction of a speed bump. M.G.L. Services will run the concession at the golf course clubhouse.

Lumaghini's attorney Kevin Burke, told the board that there were already two speed bumps in the parking lot and that the license and the speed bump are two separate issues. He asked that the board not delay the license application.

Restaurant Moratorium Opposition Continues

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Opposition continues to build against the six-month moratorium on new restaurants in Quincy Square.

Mark Bertman, chairman of the Quincy Business Council, has asked the License Board to reconsider its moratorium. Bertman sent a letter, on behalf of the Council, to board chairman John Gillis last week.

Gillis said Bertman's letter is being referred to the Planning Department. Last week the License Board voted to refer the moratorium issue to the Planning Deptartment. Bertman's letter was not discussed at Tuesday's License Board meeting.

"We acknowledge the ability of the board to recognize certain signals that might be of damage to a community, but we do not believe the License Board to be a marketing or protectionist arm of a community and thus not grant a license because it may present competition to other businesses. The market has always decided who will succeed and who will fail," Bertman wrote.

Bertman said that it is understandable why a license could be turned down based on factors such as poor location, traffic congestion, lack of parking, poor sanitary conditions, danger to the surrounding community, etc, but that too much competition should not be a reason.

Bertman asked the board to consider each case on its own merit.

He also wrote that the moratorium is unfair to real estate owners who are trying to lease empty space.

HOSPITALIZATION FOR ALCOHOLICS

The surest road to recovery for alcoholics begins with an intensive hospital stay, according to federal health officials. Researchers studying alcoholic employees found that those who have inpatient therapy before attending Alcoholics Anonymous meetings avoided problems with alcohol twice as well after two years as workers whose treatment started only with AA participation. Alcoholics who were initially hospitalized also experienced only one-third as many subsequent hospitalizations as the others. While hospital programs are expensive - about $10,000 over two years for each subject in the study - the total cost of treatment was nearly comparable since patients in the other group had more problems with relapses.

P.S. More than 1.4 million Americans are in alcoholism treatment programs at any one given time.

The sooner an alcoholic confronts his or her problem and arranges for an intensive program of rehabilitation, the better. A Late Primary Night?

A relic of past elections may turn the March 10th Presidential Primaries in Quincy into a late tabulating night and a more costly one.

Quincy voting for some years now has been by computer punch cards which has speeded up the counting when the polls close.

This year, the Republican and Democrat ballots will again be punch card style.

But, notes City Clerk John Gillis, the new Independent Party's will be the old fashioned paper ballots.

GILLIS

"This means," says Gillis, "that the Independent ballots will have to be counted by hand which will slow down the tabulation process."

The Democrat and Republican results will not be official until the Independent Party ballots are counted and the total votes for each candidate on the three ballots jibe with the total number of votes cast.

The Independent ballots cannot be counted alone at the end of the night.

"It could be a late night," says Gillis.

Since the coming of the computer punch card ballots Quincy's city and state elections have been wrapped up by 10 or 10:30 p.m. election night.

"The Presidential Primaries could keep us counting until 1 a.m. or later," says Gillis.

Which still isn't too bad compared to the good old days when sometimes the final precinct or two didn't straggle in until as late as 8 or 9 a.m. the following morning.

That's why Gillis pushed for the punch card system and then Mayor Francis McCauley found the money to do it. The new system is paying for itself.

A city election usually costs around $55,000.

The Presidential Primaries could cost as much as $12,000 more because of the Independent Party paper ballots.

"Every extra hour beyond 10 o'clock costs us $3,900," notes Gillis.

Which could mean up to $12,000 more and a total price tag of something in the neighborhood of $67,000.

Adding to a higher cost could be a higher voter turnout than four years ago. Gillis sees a 35 percent turnout -- five percent higher than in 1988.

Gillis bases his prediction on the surge of new voters who registered for the Presidential Primaries. The number is over 800, bringing the city's total registered voters to nearly 46,000 — the largest in years if not ever.

Most of the new voters registering were in the 25-to-40 age group. Most of them registered as "unenrolled" which is the new designation for the former independents. The independent category was changed to avoid confusion with the new Independent Voter Party.

There are a total of 20 Presidential candidates on the three ballots.

Patrick Buchanan, who gave George Bush something to think about in New Hampshire, has the top spot on the Republican ballot followed by controversial David Duke and Bush.

The lineup on the Democrat ballot:

Ralph Nader, Lyndon LaRouche, Jerry Brown, Tom Harkin, Larry Agran, Paul Tzongas, Eugene McCarthy, Bill Clinton and Robert Kerrey.

And, on that Independent paper ballot are eight not too familiar names:

Robert J. Smith, Darcy G. Richardson, Erik Thompson, Earl F. Dodge, Howard Phillips, J. Quinn Brisben, Michael S. Levinson and Bog Gritz.

Also on the Republican and Democrat ballots will be candidates for state and ward committee posts.

Republican state committeeman candidates are (in order on ballot) Charles Debreczeni of Quincy, Thomas Hamill of Braintree and former Quincy Mayor Francis McCauley.

State committeewoman Kathryn Robert is being challenged by Kathleen Krumpelman of Braintree.

Democratic State Committeeman candidates (in ballot order) are Michael Bellotti of Quincy, William O'Connell of Braintree and Daniel Raymondi of Quincy, School Committteeman and former Norfolk County Treasurer.

Bernice Mader, aide to Mayor James Sheets, is running unopposed for re-election as state committeewoman.

City's Registered Voters Now 45,587

Albeit a small decrease, the Republican party was the only group to lose voters in Quincy. As of Tuesday, there were 6,628 registered Republicans, a decline of seven from 6,635 since last fall.

The influx in new voters was evident in all six wards. Ward 1 gained the most new voters, 187, followed by Ward 4 with 157, Ward 2 with 149, Ward 5 with 121, Ward 6 with 116 and Ward 3 with 111.

Ward 3 still has the most registered voters, 8,091, while Ward 4 has the fewest with 7175. Totals for the other wards, in descending order, are Ward 2 (7863), Ward 1 (7656), Ward 5 (7506) and Ward 6 (7296).

Shea emphasized the new voter registration figures are dynamic and are updated virtually every day by the city's data processing department. To get an accurate reflection of voter registration trends, Shea said the registration periods just prior to presidential elections should be compared.

In the past, presidential elections have had a profound impact on registration in Quincy. The highest number of registered voters in Quincy occurred just prior to the 1976 presidential election when 52,380 voters were on the rolls.

Before the last presidential election in 1988, there were 51,537 registered voters.

Shea said there is a chance Quincy's electorate could top the 50,000 mark again by November.

"As the presidential election gets closer, you get more people registering to vote. I'm hopeful (we'll get to the 50,000 mark) but I don't know."

Shea urges all Quincy unregistered voters who want to cast ballots in the state primary and presidential election to register soon and avoid any possible delays during the late summer and early fall registration drives.

The last day to register for the Sept. 15th state primary is Tuesday, Aug. 18. Oct. 6 is the last day to register for the Nov. 3rd presidential election.

Merrymount Second Graders Present Quincy History Program

Kathleen Fitzpatrick's second graders at the Merrymount School recently presented a historical program on Quincy for their parents, Mayor James Sheets, Acting Supt. Gene Creedon and other invited guests.

The children told the audience about modern Quincy, its government and jobs and other attractions. They also discussed Quincy's history and in particular, the Adams family.

The children entertained with songs and poems. For this special occasion each student wrote their own poem, a tribute to their home town.

The poem reads, "We live in the city of Quincy, a city that's by the sea, It's not too big--it's not too small, it's just the right size for us all.

"This city has trees and houses and people, And up at the square a church with a steeple.

"Our city has stores and beaches and schools, and everybody obeys the rules

"It has famous people and landmarks galore, It might have been fun to have one more.

"But the Lexington has gone out west, We Hope she'll have a very good rest, But we'll always know that Quincy's the best.

"Now you know why we're happy to be here--Quincy has everything So give us a cheer.

"Hip! Hip! Hooray!

The students who presented the program are:

Peter Abruzzese, Diana Brennan, Rachel Carrera, William Costa, Timothy Curran, William Eastwick, Aaron Echelle, Luis Goldstein, Robert Hennessy, Brandi Jackson, Danielle O'Rourke, Shawn Richardson, Katie Rose, Stacey Smith, Jennifer Symonds, Ola Tabuni, Mark Tetreault, Migdalla Tracy, Julie Vallatini and Amanda Wright.

Impressed by the students' work, Mayor James Sheets told the youngsters that the poem would be on permanent display at Quincy's Historical Museum in the near future.

The students were to present their program Wednesday to the Quincy School Committee at 7:30 p.m. in the Quincy High School Method Center.

home-rule petition," said Rogers. "Make sure it is done quickly."

Mark Bertman, chairman of the Quincy Business Council, also spoke in favor, saying that he was "excited" about the home-rule petition.

George White, vice president of the QCBPA, praised Sheets for his efforts in formulating the Quincy 2000 plan.

"Fortunately, we have a mayor who has the time and is willing to make the effort to see this through," said White. "I urge support of the Quincy plan."

Anastasios Kapsaskis of Taso's Pizza also spoke, saying he is "all for the mayor's plan."

Anthony Agnitti of Agnitti Insurance also offered his support of the home-rule petition.

"This is a great opportunity to give the mayor the tools he needs to get the job done," said Agnitti. "I urge you to give him the tools."

Mariano said Tuesday he was definitely in favor of the mayor's concept of the revitalization of the business community in the city.

"I will support any reasonable effort to support some downtown development," said Mariano. "I think we're dying on our feet out there. I will support anything that will stimulate growth in the community."

Harold expressed similar sentiments.

"I'll do anything I can to get it through," said Harold. "The basic concept I've seen in the newspaper, I fully support. If, in its final form it meets state requirements, I'm sure we'll be happy to get it through as quickly as possible."

State Rep. Stephen Tobin said he spoke with Sheets last week about the matter, but added that he will not be able to make a final decision on the petition until he and the mayor discuss it in depth. State Rep. Michael Morrissey could not be reached for comment.

Much of Monday's meeting focused on the technical language of the home-rule petition, with all of the councillors directing questions at City Solicitor Steve McGrath and Planning Director Richard Meade. However, none of the councillors except Cheney, Toland and DeCristofaro indicated how they would vote on the matter.

A single amendment, suggested by Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, was added to the document. Fabrizio felt that the home-rule petition, which singles out the Downtown, North Quincy and Wollaston Business Districts, should be expanded to include the entire city.

The amendment was approved by a vote of 7-1-1, with Cahill voting against the amendment and Toland voting present.

"I want time to think this over," said Toland. "This is not a night for snap decisions."

Meanwhile, Cahill said he thought including the entire city would be a mistake.

"Quincy Center needs the most work," said Cahill. "The neighborhood concerns always get addressed first because we have only three councillors-at-large and six ward councillors.

"The problems to Quincy Center are, I think, unique to Quincy Center. If we include the whole city, I think we're going to water down what's proposed here.

"The question is, are we doing this for a part of the city or the whole city? If it's the whole city, I think we have to look at it differently."

Despite Cahill's opposition, however, Executive Secretary Thomas Koch said that Mayor Sheets (who is out of town) remains hopeful that the home-rule petition will pass.

"This (Quincy 2000) plan is the culmination of two years' work," said Koch, "and the home-rule petition is the vehicle for the plan to work.

"We're hoping for the executive committee (of the corporation) to be completed by the end of April, and we hope to hold the first meeting by the end of May.

"To take us into the 21st century, we need really strong commitment from government to business and from business to government."

The business and affairs of the partnership or corporation would be managed and conducted by an executive director chosen by an executive committee. The committee would consist of nine voting members: the mayor, city council president, planning director, four from the corporation, two at-large and one non-voting member from the planning department.

Sheets has said that the partnership or corporation is the "driving force" of his Quincy 2000 plan to bring revitalization and growth to the city.

City Air Raid Warnings Readied

Feb. 26-Mar. 4
1942
50 Years Ago

The official air raid and blackout warning signals for Quincy — short blasts on whistles and sirens for a period of two minutes — were published in the Patriot Ledger.

The all clear signal consisted of long blasts on whistles and sirens repeated for two minutes.

Whistles were located at the Alfred Hale Rubber Co., the Tubular Rivet and Stud Co., City Hospital, the Granite City Ice Co., Fire Headquarters and the Fire River Shipyard.

Sirens were placed at the intersections of Sea St. and Samoset Ave., Sea and Palmer Sts., Franklin St. and Independence Ave., Copeland and Cross Sts., and Post Office Square in Squantum.

Meanwhile, members of the Massachusetts Women's Defense School under Capt. Alice Boughtwood practiced evacuating Quincy children to Onset in the event of an air raid.

And Sanborn and Damon Co., 1428 Hancock St., was selling blackout equipment: 36-inch blackout shades, 50 cents; wrist flashlights, 98 cents; and blackout paint, $1.50 a gallon.

LAUNCHING POSTPONED

Mrs. Bonnie-Jean Fetridge smashed the traditional bottle of champagne across the bow of the Sheldon Clark but the tanker built at the Fore River Shipyard failed to move down the ways.

Bethlehem Steel Co. officials decided to postpone the actual launching for the first time in the yard's history when winds up to 50 miles an hour made the launch dangerous.

MORE COPS NEEDED

Police Chief John J. Avery told the City Council that be needed 15 additional police officers on the force but at least one councillor indicated that he was against it.

"I for one will not vote for additional policemen," said Councillor Frank N. Orcutt, "until the chief wakes up and stops double parking in the downtown area."

SCHOOL BUDGET CUT

The City Council slashed another $20,230 from the school budget after Supt. James N. Muir reported that the school enrollment was 600 students less than the previous year.

Stuffed Mushrooms
With Seafood Or Ham

I recently had to bring an appetizer as my contribution to a dinner party. I chose stuffed mushrooms because they can be made ahead of time and because most people love them! These mushrooms can be made with either seafood or ham.

STUFFED MUSHROOMS
Large mushrooms for stuffing (as many as you will need)
2 or 3 garlic cloves (chopped)
1 medium chopped onion
fresh parsley (chopped)
white wine (about 2 or 3 Tbsps)
plain bread crumbs five or six scallops (diced) or use ham instead olive oil
grated parmesan cheese for topping

In the olive oil, saute the garlic and onion. Add the stems from the mushrooms (chopped), the diced scallops or ham and cook for a few minutes. Add the wine, bread crumbs and parsley and blend. Brush each mushroom cap with either melted butter or margerine or olive oil (I used the oil). Stuff each mushroom and then top them off with the grated cheese.

Place on a cookie sheet or shallow baking pan and bake in a preheated 350 degree oven for about 7 to 10 minutes depending on the size of the mushrooms. They can be served either hot from the oven, or room temperature.

ARTS/ENTERTAINMENT

THE HOWARD JOHNSON restaurant chain was born here in this small drugstore on Beale St., Wollaston, in 1925.

Howard Johnson Exhibit To Open At Historical Society April 2

The Quincy Historical Society, 8 Adams St., will open an exhibit entitled "Howard Johnson: Host of the Highways" on April 2.

The exhibit, which will run until January, 1993, has been made possible by a donation from the Howard Johnson Corporation of New York City.

Howard Johnson began operations on Beale St. in Wollaston in 1925. Just back from France with service in the Yankee Division, young Johnson owed $40,000 by voluntarily assuming his deceased fathers' debts and purchasing a small patent medicine store with a soda fountain and newsstand that was losing money.

The first thing he did was expand the newspaper business by sending out a group of delivery boys to sell papers in nearby communities. Sales went up and then Johnson turned his attention to the soda fountain.

Johnson believed the number of flavors should be more than just vanilla, chocolate and strawberry. He bought rights to a new recipe for ice cream and used a hand crank freezer to develop the best product possible. He used only natural ingredients and soon had people waiting in line for his ice cream.

This demand led to his selling ice cream at nearby Wollaston Beach. In three years his debts were overcome and his business was a success.

He added frankfurts, hamburgers and other easily prepared foods, carefully controlling the quality of their content and preparation.

This little store became a restaurant and Johnson decided the food business was a way to greater success.

In 1929 he opened a second restaurant in the Granite Bank Building in Quincy Square and envisaged a chain of restaurants which would have the confidence of travelers.

He overcame the tight money of the Depression by franchising--giving his name and products to a restaurant for a fee. By 1935 there were 25 Howard Johnson restaurants in Massachusetts. By 1940 this grew to more than 100 from Maine to Florida.

Each restaurant was topped by a bright orange roof so travelers could immediately recognize the establishment. Johnson began locating restaurants along turnpikes in 1940 and survived World War II by feeding military installations, war plants, and schools, even though most of the restaurants had to close their doors.

The chain greatly expanded in the mobile, prosperous post-war days with over 400 restaurants operating by 1954. That year, the first Howard Johnson Motel opened in Savannah, Ga.

When Howard Johnson died in 1972 the company had extended to California, Canada, Puerto Rico and the Bahamas. The corporation also included Red Coach Grill and Ground Round restaurants.

In June of 1980 the Howard Johnson Company was acquired by a subsidiary of Imperial Group Limited, a multi-billion dollar from London. While most of the Howard Johnson restaurants disappeared after this merger, the franchises today still use the Howard Johnson name.

The exhibit is based on a collection acquired by the Quincy Historical Society in 1987 and traces the development from a local Quincy-based enterprise in the 1920's to a national corporation in the 1970's. The collection includes company newsletters and communications, advertisements, television commercials, menus, cups, plates and administrative material from the Howard Johnson headquarters.

The Society is still soliciting artifacts held by local people to borrow for the exhibit. Individuals who have uniforms, chairs, tables or other items and are willing to lend these for the exhibit should call the Society at 773-1144.

The exhibition will open April 2 and the public is invited from 4-7 p.m. The exhibition will be open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Saturday's from 1-4 p.m.

For information call Dr. Elliott Hoffman, Director, 773-1144.

Mass. Military Archives Historical Society Topic

James Fahey, Director of the Massachusetts Military Archives in Natick, will speak on the development of the Archives at a meeting of the Quincy Historical Society, 8 Adams St., tonight (Thursday), Feb. 27, at 7:30 p.m.

The program is free and open to the public.

Fahey, a Braintree resident, discovered a warehouse of material on soldiers and sailors from Massachusetts ignored by state government. Some of this material dates back to the 18th century and is the property of the Massachusetts National Guard.

Fahey retired from the Coast Guard and then got involved in sorting and preserving the collection that had largely been ignored by the Adjutant General.

In an almost single-handed effort Fahey had the material moved to an unused section of a maintenance facility in Natick and, working with a part time assistant, created what some have called the best military archive in any of the 50 states.

Included in the collection are enlistment records and personnel records of Massachusetts soldiers dating back to the Colonial Wars. The collection is particularly strong in information dealing with the 19th Century militia and the Civil War.

Added to documents and manuscripts are photographs, books, uniforms, equipment and weapons. The facility is now open daily as a museum and research center.

Fahey has also been involved in re-burial of newly found remains of Massachusetts Civil War soldiers found in Southern campsites and battlefields and in documenting the graffiti and artwork created in 1918 in chalk caves by Yankee Division soldiers in France.

The public is invited and light refreshments will be served.

Local Mass. Maritime Students Receive Private Audience With Pope

Five Quincy residents were among the 250 Massachusetts Maritime Academy students, officers and crew aboard the Academy's training ship, Patriot State, who recently received a private audience with Pope John Paul II.

They are: Michael Brighton, Michael Dunning, Matt Fahey, Daniel McLean, and Thomas Walsh.

At his residence in the Vatican, the Pope personally welcomed the visiting Academy members, shaking hands with most of the people in the room. He then read a short message in English, in which he congratulated Massachusetts Maritime Academy on its centennial year of service to young men and women in the maritime trades.

Referring to St. Peter, the first Pope of the Catholic Church, who spent his early life as a fisherman, the Pope was warm and receptive to the Academy's cadets who are following a maritime lifestyle. He urged them to study hard, practice a disciplined lifestyle and be good ambassadors as they travelled the world.

His final message to the group was to always show consideration for those less fortunate than themselves. The Pope then walked among the cadets, blessing them and shaking hands before departing to a chorus of cheers from the students.

The Patriot State is returning from a 50-day Sea Term Semester which visited the old world ports of Genoa and Naples, Italy; Barcelona, Spain; and Lisbon, Portugal. This training mission celebrated the navigational feats of Christopher Columbus on the 500th anniversary of his voyage to the Americas.

In addition to the marine engineering and nautical science training of almost 500 male and female cadets, the Patriot State conducted a floating trade show in each of the visited ports.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL seventh graders present a $185 check to Friends of the Unborn, a Christian sheltering-home for pregnant homeless young women. The home provides a loving and compassionate atmosphere to young women in need by providing numerous services, such as drug and alcohol counseling, medical referrals, housing advocacy and adoption counseling. Student John Malzone makes the presentation to Marilyn Birney, director and founder of the organization. The students raised the money from bake sales and prize drawings. (Quincy Sun photo by Tom Gorman)

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Someone once said that the realization that there are other points of view is the beginning of wisdom. Understanding what they are is a great step. The final feat is understanding why they are held ...

We all know that it is seldom easy to thoroughly understand another person. In fact, the actions, thoughts, and emotions of others often leave us baffled. We find this to especially true when they are so contrary to "our own way of thinking and doing." We simply cannot understand how others can do some of the things they do; how they can think the way they do.

When this happens, especially when the person is someone working for or with you, don't be too quick to judge. Remember no two human beings are alike in their thoughts and emotions for the simple reason that no two human beings are molded by exactly the same experiences. And therein lies the source of the difficulty, the potential for misunderstanding.

When you find yourself at odds with someone working for or with you, the least you can do is to try to understand, try to learn as much as possible about the other fellow, his experiences and his point of view. This attempt to understand, tempered with a great deal of patience and tolerance, will at least prevent the difference in viewpoint from being needlessly distorted and exaggerated

A Few Words on

Children at Funerals?

By all means, "Yes." But only if you've explained it to them.

Don't make up fairy tales or fudge with the truth. Don't say "Grandpa is going on a trip," etc. You'll cause more harm than good.

Relate the passing to something familiar and natural. "Flowers or birds or pets grow and bloom or live and are enjoyed by all. Grandpa lived a long time and you enjoyed him, but like the flowers, he died and you'll always remember him."

Or relate the death to things natural — the sun, the moon and stars. But let the children come to the funeral only if they wish to.

Quincy Edged By Newton N. In Tourney

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy boys' basketball team's season came to a disappointing end Sunday when the Presidents lost a 58-54 squeaker to Newton North in the preliminary round of the Eastern Mass. tournament.

Quincy (8-12), seeded 19th in Division 1 South, led the Tigers (12-8), seeded 13th, 27-23, at halftime but Newton, led by John Churchill, came back and held on as the Presidents were hurt by a late turnover and a missed one-on-one free throw.

Churchill, hampered by back programs, sat out most of the first half and didn't score. But he came back after the intermission to score 19 points.

Dave Jolley, the top scorer in the Old Colony League, finished with another fine game and led the Presidents against their former Suburban League rival with 17 points.

Robbie Kane had 16 points and Joey Crespi and Matt Dwyer had excellent games.

Quincy tuned up for the tournament by hosting its annual invitational tourney and finishing second.

The Presidents rolled over Revere, 63-43, in the semifinals but lost to Stoughton, 70-65, in the championship game.

In the opener, Jolley had 18 points and 14 rebounds and Kane has 15 points and seven steals. Junior Dwyer had a fine game and contributed eight points.

The title game pitted Jolley, who averaged 18.7 points a game to lead the OCL, against Stoughton's Jamie McGarry, who averaged 28 points a game to lead the Hockomock League.

McGarry had a wide edge in the title game with 36 points, while Jolley wound up with 19.

"McGarry is an outstanding player as his 28 points a game indicates," said Quincy coach John Franceschini. "He should be an excellent player for a Division 2 college."

Walker Receives 4-Year B.U. Scholarship

Chris Walker, Quincy's outstanding wide receiver and defensive back, recently signed a letter of intent for a full four-year football scholarship to Boston University.

Walker was one of the most sought after wide receivers in the area and chose BU from a list including Northeastern, University of Mass., Rhode Island and Maine.

Walker finished third in Division One in touchdown receptions with 10 and will enroll in the Liberal Arts program at BU.

"I feel Chris Walker is one of the finest overall athletes to come out of Quincy High in some time," said coach Jack Raymer. "His best playing days are definitely ahead of him. I think the offense at Boston University (the run and shoot) is ideal for him. He will be a great addition to the BU football program."

Walker, named to every all-scholastic team in football, has also starred in winter track this year.

He was recently named the MVP of the Old Colony League in track, setting a league record of 6-7 in the high jump and placing second in the Class A state meet. He also placed fourth in the 60-yard hurdles.

"We are obviously very proud of Chris's accomplishments this year, but our staff is proud of all of out 16 seniors will be going on to college to continue their football careers," said Raymer. "This has always been the goal of our football program at Quincy."

North Draws First Round Bye

The North Quincy boy's basketball team, which enjoyed its best season in several years at 15-5, drew a first round bye in the open Eastern Mass. tournament and had to wait for the results of two games to determine its first round opponent in Division One South.

The Raiders were due to face Brockton or Natick this week at a time and site not determined at press time.

First, Natick (3-16) defeated Boston English (4-14), 65-50.

Brockton (14-6 and seeded 10th) faced Natick Tuesday night with the winner facing North Quincy.

North Quincy was defeated seventh in Division One South after defeating Weymouth to end its successful season.

Sean Donovan had an excellent season for the Raiders and was the number four scorer in the Old Colony League.

Co-Capt. Desmond Bellot had another outstanding year with his scoring, playmaking and rebounding, and Co-Capt. Chris Olsen also played well.

Matt Flynn had several fine games and Luke Sheets came along fast and had several high scoring games. Bo Smith was another Raider who had a fine season as did Tim Johnson. Also contributing were Adam Russo, Ken Ross, Jeff Jones, Mike Staiti, Pat Shea and Mike Patch.

"Although the tournament is open to all this year, we wanted to reach the 12-win figure, the minimum qualifying figure in the past," said coach Ted Stevenson.

"We wanted to make sure we would have qualified for the tournament even if it wasn't open to all. The boys did a fine job and turned in some excellent performances. I feel we should do well in the tournament."

Durfee is the top-seeded team in Division One South at 18-2, followed by Silver Lake, Bridgewater-Raynham and Brookline, all 16-4, and Boston College High, coached by Quincy's Brian Buckley, at 15-4. B.C. High also drew a first round bye.

Quincy (8-12), one of eight entries with losing records, was seeded 19th.

Hockey

North Faces Walpole In State Tourney

North Quincy's hockey team, which finished at 10-4-6 under second-year coach Tom Benson and was seeded 17th in Division One, was scheduled to open state tournament action last night (Wednesday) against 16th-seeded Walpole (13-7) at Boston University.

If the Raiders passed their first test they face the unenviable task of meeting top-seeded Norwood (16-1-2) Sunday at noon at Boston College.

North finished its season with a 7-4 victory over Taunton in a game in which Benson rested several starters and used several junior varsity players.

John Linehan, the number three goalie, started his first game and turned in a creditable performance. he was beaten on a penalty shot but made three scintillating saves on Taunton breakaways.

Benson received a tough break when he lost top scorer Mike DesRoche for the season early in the year with a knee injury.

However, the MIAA, after first declaring Bob Fitzpatrick, transfer from Catholic Memorial, ineligible, changed its decision and declared him eligible.

Fitzpatrick had a fine season, scoring his share of goals and setting up many goals with his passes.

Goalie Dennis Ruggere had an outstanding season and played his finest game in a 1-1 tie with Marshfield. The Rams have the highest-scoring line in the state but they were stymied by Ruggere, who had 43 saves. It took a goal with only two minutes to play to give Marshfield the tie.

Junior Sean Connelly, the backup goalie, stood out in several games.

Mike Christopherson, Steve O'Brien, Chris McCallum, Jim Sapienza, Sean Vermette, Matt Riley, John Gladu, Andrew Vermette, Dave Pacino and Aiden O'Donoghue all scored well as the Raiders had a well-balanced attack.

They also played strong defense. Other contributors were Joe Carinci, Kevin Barrett, Brian Kelley, Jay Evans and Bill Knox.

"I'm happy the boys made the tournament, they played well all year long," Benson said. "It would have been a shame if they hadn't qualified. I feel we will do all right in the tournament, but if we win our opener, we have a tough road in the next round against Norwood."

Lightning Strikes Twice For North Girls

Lightning struck twice in the same place and as a result, the North Quincy girls' basketball team is out of the Eastern Mass. Tournament after the opening round for the second year in a row.

Last season the North girls defeated Silver Lake twice during the regular season and lost, 39-38, in the opening round of the tournament.

This year North twice defeated Plymouth during the regular season and Monday night lost to the Eagles by the identical score of 39-38.

This year's loss was all the more disappointing as Plymouth (10-10) and seeded 22nd in Division 1 South, wouldn't have qualified for the tournament if it hadn't opened up to all teams regardless of record.

North finished ar 14-6 and was seeded 11th after finishing second in the Old Colony League.

Plymouth was led by high-scoring Heather Morin, who had 15 points, but the Eagles had to withstand a furious North rally in the final three minutes to take the win.

North had erased an 11-point deficit in the last three minutes and had the ball with 10 seconds left and a chance to win the game with the last shot.

Cindy White had the last shot but it just failed at the buzzer.

"The same thing happened to us last year," North coach Ken Panaro said. "I don't like playing a team three times and I think more coaches feel the same way."

Plymouth coach Barbara Waithe had a different opinion. "I'd much rather play them than someone we haven't seen because I think we can prepare better," she said.

Regina Murphy had an outstanding all-around game for the North girls.

Track

Quincy, North Well Represented In State Meet

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy and Quincy were well-represented in the recent all-state track meet and both schools will be represented in the New England championships at Brown March 14.

North sprinter Amy Wong's state meet didn't turn out as planned. A bad ankle cost her a week of serious training and a bad start in the quarterfinals cost her a chance of advancing to the semifinals.

"We were in the 'set' position when the gun went off for the mile," said Wong. (The dashes and hurdles are run in the infield concurrently with the longer races at Harvard). "We all went with the gun and had to be called back. The next time we took to the blocks, I think I froze, not wanting to false-start."

"Amy was coming on at the end, but just ran out of room," said coach Geoff Hennessy.

North high jumpers Heather Rendle and John O'Donnell both cleared opening height, Rendle clearing 5-0 and O'Donnell 6-2, both on their first attempt but could go no higher.

As the meet started to wind down, all eyes were on North junior Suzanne Lewis. She was the odds-on favorite to win the two-mile, but any one of six runners had a chance to win. The opening pace was fast and Lewis, whose trademark has been to hold back early and make her move at the end, ran a bit too fast too soon and finished a close third behind winner Deirdre Milligan of Brockton and Maria Berger of Lexington. It was Lewis' first loss ever to Milligan in seven meetings.

Lewis' anticipated battle with Lincoln Sudbury's Robyn Art never materialized as Art had trouble keeping up right from the gun and dropped out after just a mile. Lewis' time was 11:35.67, her second fastest time ever.

"She just got impatient with herself and tried to force the pace early, but her mile split of 5:40 was a little too fast," said Hennessy. "When Milligan and Berger made a move with three laps to go, Suzanne could not respond." Milligan finished at 11:32.15.

"We still have the New Englands and one thing about Suzanne, she won't make the same mistake twice," Hennessy said. (Lewis still has the fastest time this year, 11:31.2 from the class meet).

One athlete who keeps improving is Quincy's Chris Walker. After picking up a fifth place in the 50-yard hurdles, he hooked up with St. John's of Shrewsbury's Chad Kopp in the high jump. A first attempt clear of 6-6 (he's already broken the school record of 6-5 set by Art Diloreto with a 6-7 in the Old Colony League meet) set the stage for a second place finish and a berth in the New Englands, along with Lewis. Kopp won the high jump clearing 6-6 and 6-10 1/2.

Quincy senior Ally Sleiman (145) won the South Sectional championship last week at Randolph, improving his record to 41-1.

The host school won the team title with Quincy finishing 10th and North Quincy 13th out of 16 teams competing.

The top four wrestlers in each weight class qualified for the state championships this Friday and Saturday at Lowell High School.

Sleiman capped his outstanding 41-1 season with a 6-1 decision over Weymouth's Jeff Moore in the championship bout.

"Ally deserves all the credit, he has really put it all together," said coach Lou Venturelli. "He's worked hard every summer and his time has come. He has a very real shot at a state championship if he continues his aggressive style of wrestling. He's improved tremendously on his feet and is unstoppable on the mat. He should be considered a favorite."

With only one loss in the sectionals, Souza and Colantonio should be watched closely in the states.

"Both have the potential to win the tournament," said Venturelli. "I'm looking for a big effort out of Souza. Colantonio, a junior, can build on his effort for next season."

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Watchers Can Reduce Crime

By reducing opportunities for crime, looking out for your neighbors, and acting as extra eyes and ears for law enforcement, you as a member of a Watch group can improve the quality of life in your community.

First, check security in your own home. Your police or sheriff's department may provide a free home security survey. Make sure there are good locks on exterior doors and windows and use them. Don't forget to lock up when you go out, even if it's only for a few minutes. Trim shrubbery that hides doorways or windows and join Operation Identification to mark valuables. If you leave for a vacation, use timers on lights and radios to make your home appear lived-in and have a neighbor take in your mail and newspapers. Make an effort to know your neighbors and their daily routines. Keep your block map near the telephone for emergencies. Check your neighborhood for things that might contribute to crime like poor street lighting, abandoned cars, vacant lots littered with debris, or boarded-up buildings.

An important responsibility of Watchers is to report anything suspicious to the police or sheriff's department. Look for:

- Someone running from a car or home.
- Someone screaming. If you can't determine what the screams are for, call the police and report it.
- Someone going door-to-door in the neighborhood looking into windows and parked cars.
- A person who seems to have no purpose wandering in the neighborhood.
- Any unusual or suspicious noise that you can't explain, such as breaking glass, or pounding.
- Vehicles moving slowly, without lights, or with no apparent destination.
- Business transactions conducted from a vehicle. This could involve the sale of drugs or stolen goods.
- Offers of merchandise at ridiculously low prices. They're probably stolen.
- Property carried by persons on foot at an unusual hour or place, especially if the person is running.
- Property being removed from closed businesses or residences known to be unoccupied.
- A stranger in a car stopping to beckon to a child.
- A child resisting the advances of an adult.

How to Report:

The police need to have accurate information as quickly as possible about a suspicious activity or crime in progress.

- Give your name and identify yourself as a member of a Watch group.
- Describe the event in as brief a manner as possible. Where, When, How, and Who did it?
- Tell if the crime is in progress or if it has occurred.
- Describe the suspect - what sex, race, age, height, weight, hair color, clothing, accent, beard or mustache, and distinctive characteristics or clothing.
- Describe the vehicle if one was involved - color, make, model, year, license plate, special markings, dents, which way did it go?

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, you who gives meaning to and shines light on my path so that I may reach my goals, you who gives me the divine grace to forgive and forget the evil done unto me and which is with me at every moment of my life. I want in this short dialogue to reassure you one more time that I do not ever want to be separated from you, no matter how grand the worldly possessions may be, my desire to be with you and my brothers in perpetual glory will not be lessened. (One should say this prayer 3 days in a row without mentioning the request, within 3 days the divine favor shall be granted, no matter how unobtainable it seemed) Publish this prayer as soon as your request is granted. Wants Site Re-Zoned To Open Space

Chretien Opposes Quarry St. Housing Development

Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien has repeated his opposition to the application of Stephen Ricciardi and the Summit View Associates to build 1340 units of housing on the easterly side of Quarry St. between Granite St. and Common St. in West Quincy.

Instead, Chretien said he wants the 77-acre site rezoned from Planned Unit Development to open space.

Ricciardi has applied for an extension of a permit granted to him several years ago under Chapter 40B, the state's "Anti-Snob Zoning Law." Because of economic conditions, construction on the project has not yet started and the initial permit has lapsed.

The issue is on the agenda for the Zoning Board Tuesday, March 3 at 7:15 p.m. in the City Council Chamber of the James R. McIntyre Government Center (City Hall).

Chretien said he has information that the developer will be asking for a postponement of the hearing. However, because the item has been advertised, the Zoning Board has the authority to rule on the application or allow a postponement. There is also a possibility that legal technicalities may prevent Ricciardi from receiving an extended permit.

"Whether the developer wants a postponement or not," Chretien said, "I will be asking the Zoning Board to deny the application for an extended construction permit and to kill the project once and for all. The Summit View site simply isn't appropriate for 1340 units of housing--especially in today's market."

Ricciardi applied for the permit in November, 1987, when, Chretien said, the economy was strong, housing costs were increasing and there were federal and state dollars available for subsidized housing. The 77-acre parcel is zoned PUD which means the City Council should have been the permit granting authority.

However, Chretien said that Ricciardi "ran around the council because he knew that we would deny his proposal or impose conditions on it that he wouldn't like. The state's Anti-Snob Zoning Law allowed him to apply to the Zoning Board instead because he made a commitment to build a lot of subsidized units."

Continuing, Chretien said, "The city hired consultants, did research on the matter and was told in 1988 that if we denied Ricciardi's application, he would appeal the decision to the state's Housing Appeals Board and most likely win. Furthermore, if the state granted the permit, they probably would do so without imposing the kind of conditions on Ricciardi that were imposed by the Zoning Board.

"In other words, Ricciardi had the city over a barrel at the time. He doesn't anymore," the councillor said, adding the development should be stopped.

"Now that the economy is weak and the housing market is soft, we shouldn't have to worry about Ricciardi beating us at the state level. As a matter of fact, because he failed to start construction within two years of getting the permit, he may be legally unable to get the permit.

"If that's the case," Chretien said, "the Zoning Board won't even have to lift a finger. The project may be dead already. Although the city's fiscal condition makes it difficult to promise anything, I intend on working towards preserving the Summit View site for open space."

Thomas Hamill Announces Bid For GOP State Committeeman

Thomas Hamill of Braintree announces his candidacy for Republican State Committeeman in the Norfolk District which comprises Quincy, Braintree, Avon and Holbrook.

Hamill, 64, was born in Quincy and is a graduate of Quincy High School. He and his wife, the former Mary Gilmore of Wollaston, are the parents of three children: Marianne Spencer of Carver, Maureen Copeland of Braintree and Thomas of Braintree.

A retired systems technician for New England Telephone, Hamill is a lifetime member of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local #2222. He is an active member of St. Francis of Assisi Church, Braintree, and a member of the parish council. He is past grand of the Ave Maria Council #1535 Knights of Columbus, West Quincy.

THOMAS HAMILL

A combat veteran of the Korean War, Hamill, a member of the Braintree Republican Town Committee and delegate to the 1990 Republican State Convention, said he opposes what he calls "the liberal social agenda of the Weld administration."

"I am a Reagan Republican. I will do my best to bring the Massachusetts Republican Party back to traditional family values. I will work to recruit and elect conservative candidates who will keep the state party in step with the national Republican platform," Hamill said.

"I want to see fiscally conservative and morally sound leadership in Massachusetts, and I want to support courageous candidates dedicated to good government. Voters who support these goals should vote for me on March 10.

"I welcome discussion with the voters who can call me at 843-7833. Together, we can restore integrity to our party," Hamill added.

SUPER TUESDAY PREPARATION--Anne-Marie Kenney, senior clerk of Quincy's election department, and Asst. City Clerk Joseph Shea ready one of the city's 30 ballot boxes for the Massachusetts Presidential Primary Tuesday, March 10.

Gillis Estimates 33 Percent

Light Turnout Forecast For Super Tuesday

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Approximately 33 percent of Quincy's registered voters are expected to turn out in the Massachusetts Presidential Primary Tuesday, March 10, estimates City Clerk John Gillis.

The state primary is part of Super Tuesday, the day thousands of voters go to the polls and cast ballots for an array of presidential hopefuls in 11 states.. The popular vote for each candidate is apportioned into party delegates which are needed to win the Democratic and Republican presidential nominations.

In Massachusetts, there are 106 Democratic delegates and 38 Republican delegates at stake.

Gillis said he doubts turnout will be higher than 33 percent in Quincy because he perceives a lack of local interest in the Democratic and Republican nomination races. He also said he does not see the candidacies of two native sons, President Bush and former Massachusetts Sen. Paul Tsongas, driving turnout higher.

"I don't see a lot of interest here," he said.

Although he considers Texas his home state, Bush was born in Milton. Tsongas was born in Lowell.

On the Democratic ballot, there are nine presidential candidates.

Related Story Page 10

They are, in order of ballot position, consumer advocate Ralph Nader, Lyndon LaRouche, Former California Gov. Jerry Brown, Iowa Sen. Tom Harkin, Larry Agran, former Massachusetts Sen. Paul Tsongas, Eugene McCarthy, Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton and Nebraska Sen. Bob Kerry.

On the Republican ballot, there are three contenders: columnist Patrick Buchanan, David Duke and President George Bush.

For the first time, there is ballot for the newly recognized Independent Voters Party. There are eight candidates on the IVP ballot: Robert J. Smith, Darcy G. Richardson, Erik Thompson, Howard Phillips, Earl F. Dodge, J. Quinn Brisben, Michael S. Levinson and Bo Gritz.

Voters are permitted to write in a candidate or select no preference on all three ballots. Voters should not write in a candidate and select no preference.

All voters who registered by Feb. 11 are eligible to vote in next Tuesday's primary.

Registered Democrats will get a Democratic ballot, registered Republicans will receive a Republican ballot and those registered in the new Independent Voters Party (there are 10 in Quincy) will get an Independent Voters Party ballot.

Unlike other states, Massachusetts state does not permit voters of the three major parties to "cross-over" and vote for another party in a primary election. In other words, those enrolled in one of the three major parties will get a ballot for their respective party automatically; they cannot change parties and get a different ballot at the polls.

Those who are unenrolled (formerly known as "Independents") should ask for the ballot they want: either Democrat, Republican or Independent Voters Party. Only unenrolled voters have a choice of ballots.

Recycling Center Runs Into Strong Opposition

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A proposal by Browning-Ferris Industries, Inc. to begin operation of a recycling center at 88-102 and 106 Penn St. received strong opposition at a public hearing Monday night from residents who are concerned by potential traffic and safety problems.

The overwhelming majority of residents at the meeting were against BFI's proposal. Nine residents spoke against the proposed center, with an additional 39 signing in opposition. Only three residents spoke, and 10 others were recorded, in favor.

As proposed, the center would be limited to the processing of curbside materials such as newspapers, plastics and glass. It would be open Mondays through Fridays from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. as well as half-days on Saturdays, and would process approximately 200-250 tons of materials a day.

Atty. Carl Johnson, who is representing BFI in the matter, said "BFI is proud to have been in partnership with the City of Quincy to start a successful recycling program and would not want to do anything to diminish that."

During a presentation of BFI's proposal, Richard Bryant of Vanasse Hangen Brustlin, Inc. (a Watertown-based engineering planning company) and BFI Divisional Vice President Pete Watson both assured those in attendance that potential traffic and safety problems have all been taken into consideration. They said there would be minimal, if any, inconvenience to the community as a result of the center.

Three residents agreed.

"I feel it's important to recycle as much as possible," said Joyce Romeri of 744 Willard St. "I feel the presentation addressed the neighborhood concerns."

"I share the neighborhood traffic concerns," said Douglas Gouthro of 750 Commonwealth Ave., a member of the Quincy Recycling Committee, "but this proposal is important in order to meet recycling needs. Recycling is cost effective and economically sound, and helps us solve our waste problems."

"I appreciate the potential traffic and noise

Creedon Hospitalized After Collapsing In Restaurant

Acting School Supt. Eugene Creedon remained in Quincy Hospital Tuesday for observation after collapsing Monday in a Quincy Square restaurant.

Creedon, 55, was listed in stable condition Tuesday afternoon, a hospital spokesperson said.

Assistant Supt. Dr. Carol Lee Griffin said Creedon collapsed while standing in line at a lunch counter at Barry's In The Square and blacked out for a few seconds. She said Creedon has been battling the flu since February vacation.

GENE CREEDON

"He collapsed yesterday. It appears flu-related. They're going to keep him the hospital a couple of days for observation," Griffin said.

"He's (Creedon) had the flu since February vacation. He really hasn't taken any time off."

Creedon has had some difficulties with his heart. Griffin said paramedics administered an electrocardiogram at the scene "and it appears everything is okay."

After the EKG, Creedon walked to a car for the trip to the hospital.

Griffin said Creedon's wife, Kathleen, said doctors decided to keep him in the hospital for observation.

Creedon became acting superintendent last month after former Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci stepped down.

$10,000 Grant For DWI, Speeding Enforcement

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The Quincy Police Department has been awarded a $10,000 grant from the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau.

The grant is for DWI (driving while intoxicated) and speed enforcement ($6,000), pedestrian safety enforcement ($2,000), and child-passenger safety enforcement ($2,000).

The money will be used by Quincy Police to fund overtime for enforcement in those areas.

"Naturally we welcome the funding because of money shortages," Quincy Police Chief Francis Mullen. "This will help us focus in on particular situations."

The award was based on three criteria, personal injury and fatality data (relating to auto accidents), Quincy's previous commitment to traffic safety and the quality of Quincy's grant application.

A representative from the bureau visited the police station recently and discussed the departments safety program, the safety officer who visits Quincy schools, the DARE officer, and school crossing guards, Mullen said.

"They also looked at our facility and I think they were impressed," Mullen said.

Bureau director Nancy Luther will visit Mullen today (Thursday) at the police station to officially award the grant. Luther will be accompanied by Sen. Paul Harold.

Police Seek Man In Rape Of Boy

Quincy police are investigating the rape of a 14-year-old boy last Friday night in woods behind Temple Beth El near Furnace Brook.

The victim described the suspect to police as a white man in his 30's, about 5'7" to 5'9", with medium-length brown hair, blue jeans and a brown leather jacket. The man also appeared to be unshaven.

The boy was walking home alone at about 10:30 p.m. from a dance at the Woodward School when he was approached by the man who asked for directions.

The man then pulled the victim into a wooded area and forced him to perform oral sex.

Det. Thomas Tierney said Monday police do not have a suspect yet.

Tierney said youngsters should avoid walking alone.

Police Chief Francis Mullen said Quincy police are checking with other area police departments to compare similar incidents.

"We are collectively meeting with other police departments, for instance Braintree, and looking at the possibility of the same suspect. And we're having a sketch made up," Mullen said. Three months ago a similar assault occured behind the Quintree Shopping Plaza on the Quincy-Braintree border.

Mullen said the police welcome public input. "If anyone has seen anything suspicious we would like to know about it."

Woodward School held an assembly following the incident to discuss how students can take precautions against crime.

Mullen said residents can take steps to reduce the chance of being a victim of violent crime.

"We (police department) have offered seminars to people on public safety and will continue to do so and we encourage people to attend," he said. "The seminars help people learn to help themselves."

"Obviously, I am very, very angry any time a situation like this occurs," said Mayor James Sheets.

Sheets said he talked extensively with Mullen Sunday. "I know the Quincy Police Department will make every effort to apprehend this individual Our hearts go out to this young man and his family This kind of incident is tragic and it makes us heart-sick.

"People who perpetrate these kinds of crimes should not be free in society," Sheets said.

New Owners To Reopen Mr. Kelly's

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Mr. Kelly's, a popular Quincy Point restaurant, will be reopening soon under a new name and new ownership.

The Quincy Adams Restaurant, 60 Summer St., will operate as a full service restaurant similar to the way it did as Mr. Kelly's, said attorney Ronald Rice representing the applicants.

The Quincy License Board approved a transfer of the Common Victualer-All Alcohol license to the new owners by a 4-0 vote. Building Inspector Matt Mulvey was absent.

The restaurant will be run by Steve Kenneally and Patrick Fallon, both of whom are experienced in the food service business. Kenneally formerly managed Captain Parker's in Yarmouth and Fallon ran the Ashmont Grille in Dorchester for many years.

The new owners agreed to change the name of the business from Quincy Adams Restaurant and Pub at the request of Ted DeCristofaro, Ward 2 City Councillor.

DeCristofaro said the word "pub" sometimes carries a "negative connotation" which may imply that it is "just a place to drink." He said Mr. Kelly's was always a well-run establishment with customers from all over the South Shore and he would like to see the tradition continued.

Leanne Pasquale, daughter of the former owners, said her family would refund gift certificates which had not been used when Mr. Kelly's closed.

$200 Fine, Or Jail For School Trespassers

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Those found trespassing on Quincy school property while class is in session now face a fine of $200 or a three-month jail term.

The City Council Monday night amended a city ordinance to prohibit trespassing on school grounds during classroom hours.

The original ordinance pertained only to when classes were over for any given day. The new amendment was passed with emergency preamble upon the request of the School Committee because safety is now considered to be of prime concern in Quincy schools.

"This is long overdue and I strongly support it," said Councillor Michael Cheney. "It is only one of the steps that is necessary to ensure that the school system is a safe place."

The ordinance now states that it is illegal for any person to enter a school building or school grounds while classes are in session, with the following exceptions:

•Pupils, faculty and/or staff of the school;

•Any employees of the school department and/or any other city department having business at the school;

•Any other person who first obtains permission to enter from the principal of the school or his/her designee, which permission must be obtained immediately upon entry.

When he learned that security people at the school will be authorized to enforce the new law, Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson suggested that Police Chief Francis Mullen be notified that he should instruct the security people on how to enforce it.

"This is police work, no matter how you cut it," said Kolson. "It would be wise for them (security) to know what police powers they have."

Originally the amendment called for violators of the ordinance to be subjected to either a $50 fine or three months in jail. However, a further amendment suggested by Cheney that was approved by the council raised the fine to $200.

Sheets Asks License Board To Lift Downtown Restaurant Ban

Mayor James Sheets is asking the City License Board to lift its sixth-month moratorium on new restaurant licenses in downtown Quincy.

The mayor sent a letter to the board Tuesday. License Board Chairman John Gillis distributed the letter to board members and asked them to read for discussion at the March 10 meeting.

The board imposed the ban on new restaurants at its Feb. 4 meeting citing a glut of establishments in Quincy Center for the moratorium.

Board members also agreed that the mayor should give them some guidelines in regard to his downtown Quincy plan.

Sheets told the board that now that he has support for the Quincy Partnership, the proposed group which will oversee his "Quincy Plan," he hopes it will begin operating by mid-May.

The mayor said the Partnership will actively seek retail tenants for vacant storefronts to create a healthy business "mix" in Quincy Center.

The mayor's letter stated, "In this context, I would suggest that the moratorium on restaurants in the Downtown could and should be lifted.

"I fully understand your reasons for the moratorium and know that you have always had the best interests of the Downtown in mind when decisions were made."

$15,000 Voted For Asian Counseling Service

The City Council Monday night approved the appropriation of $15,000 to the Planning Department to be used by the Protestant Social Service Bureau for the establishment of a counseling service for the city's Asian community.

The PSSB had received a commitment of a $15,000 matching grant from the Hyams Foundation in Boston if the match could be raised by October.

Robert Taylor, Executive Director of the PSSB, said he was pleased with the council's decision.

"We have not been able to offer counseling services to Asians because of the language barrier," said Taylor. "This is about helping people to be more comfortable with what they're doing."

Councillor Patricia Toland expressed strong support on the matter.

"I firmly support this," said Toland. "I think that it is important to overcome the language barrier."

Agreed Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro, "This is another indication of what the City of Quincy does for agencies such as this."

HORMONE DEGATE RAGES ON

In recent years, women have been told that estrogen replacement therapy was either a miracle cure for the problems of aging or a risky ticket to cancer and gall bladder disease.

Although arguments on both sides of the issue still compete, women can feel more confident making their own choices by weighing several factors. Conditions that would point in favor of having estrogen therapy include being at high risk of osteoporosis or heart disease, or experiencing severe menopausal symptoms. Factors that should signal caution in taking estrogen include having active liver or thromboembolic disease, family history of breast cancer or presence of uterine fibroids.

P.S. The Food and Drug Administration recommends that estrogen replacement should be made available to most post menopausal women.

If you are considering estrogen-replacement therapy, you owe it to yourself to have a thorough discussion with your physician to discuss the risks and benefits of such a course. If you would like to learn more about this topic, or bout how you can modify your lifestyle to help ward off heart disease, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24, in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

A Gold Medal For Uncle Sam

If there had been a public relations event in this year's Olympics, Quincy's Uncle Sam Rounseville would have come back from Albertville with a gold medal.

Rounseville summed up the reception he got at the games and on the street in one word: "Incredible."

"Wherever I went," he says, "I got the thumbs up from passers by or the spectators at the various events."

ROUNSEVILLE

And he got around.

An Australian group headed for a Rugby tournament in Paris spotted him and someone yelled: "Hey, there's Uncle Sam. How ya doin ya bloody Yank!"

At the USA-Unified Team hockey game which the Americans lost, someone with a Russian accent wearing a Gorbachev face mask came up to him and handed him a Russian flag.

"The place went wild," says Rounseville at the sight of the two of them standing side by side.

What the crowd didn't know and Rounseville didn't know until later was that this Gorby was from California.

At the speed skating competition, Rounseville found himself sitting with a number of fans with American flags painted on their faces.

Thinking there might be someone among them from the Boston area he asked: "Where are you from?"

"Holland," they replied. They had come to cheer for Dan Jansen.

Rounseville who seemed to be on TV as often as the athletes, hob-nobbed with celebrities and became one himself.

Figure skating gold medalist Bonnie Blair and bronze medalist Nancy Kerrigan had their picture taken with him. Blair even put his Uncle Sam hat on and asked him for his autograph. He also had his picture taken with Bruce Jenner, decathalon gold medal winner in 1976 and went out to dinner with him.

Rounseville says he got kissed and hugged by the French people wherever he went.

"It made me food so good," he says. Not for me, so much, but for my country. Everyone showed that America once again is loved very much."

There was not a single "Yank, Go Home" cry, so common overseas not too long ago.

"It made me feel so good to be an American," says Rounseville. "It was incredible."

THE ETHNIC CHANGES in Quincy is indicated in this item from the South Shore YMCA:

Did you know? Industrial Art, Machine Shop Mathematics and Naval Architecture — these were just a few courses offered by the South Shore YMCA (then Quincy YMCA) in 1906. English for non-English speaking young men was another YMCA class, with special sections offered for Swedes and Finlanders. Today, the South Shore YMCA runs an English Tutorial Program for Asian immigrants in conjunction with Quincy High School. The program helps newly arrived teens develop language skills, along with important socialization skills. A membership at the Y comes with consistent attendance in the course.

Houghs Neck Mural Needs New Home

A 75-year-old mural of historic Houghs Neck Square as it appeared in the early 1900s needs a new home.

The 12'x6' painting had been displayed at the Mr. Donut on Sea Street which was recently bought by Dunkin Donuts.

Paul Cleary, owner of the shop, presented the mural to Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney and asked him to find a suitable home for the painting so that as many Houghs Neck residents as possible may enjoy it.

The mural was painted by Frank McWade who now lives in Weymouth.

Anyone who has a suggestion for placement of the mural should contact Cheney at the City Council Office at City Hall, 1305 Hancock St. Dorothy Lang and Ruth Wainwright, co-authors of Houghs Neck History, and Cheney will make the final decision.

Bicentennial Celebration

City Officials To Re-enact Quincy's First Town Meeting

Eighteenth century colonial times will be relived as a host of Quincy officials and residents, playing the roles of the city's forefathers, help re-enact Quincy's first town meeting held almost 200 years ago Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Council Chambers of City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy.

Quincy began its bicentennial year celebration Feb. 22. On this date in 1792, the legislature passed an Act of Incorporation which Gov. John Hancock signed on Feb. 23, 1792. This act incorporated the Town of Quincy as an independent municipality from the North Precinct of Braintree.

The re-enactment kicks off the Quincy Bicentennial Committee's celebration activities commemorating the 200th birthday of Quincy as an independent municipality. Quincy's first town meeting was actually held March 8, 1792.

The re-enactment event will begin with a procession of the participants escorted by members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts from the First Parish Church to the Council Chambers.

Mayor James Sheets and other city and state officials will dress in costumes of the day and portray the roles of Quincy's first public officers during the actual re-enactment. A reception will follow in the second floor conference room at City Hall annex.

The public is invited to attend the re-enactment.

Those participating in the re-enactment, and the roles they will play, are:

Sen. Paul Harold, Justice of Peace Richard Cranch; Councillors Pat Toland and Mike Cheney and Acting School Supt. Eugene Creedon, Board of Selectmen; City Clerk John Gillis, Town Clerk Ebenezer Vesey; Asst. City Clerk Joseph Shea, Warrant Officer Lt. Elijah Veazie; Police Chief Francis Mullen, Constable Joseph Neal Arnold; Fire Chief Tom Gorman and Bob Mood, Fire Wards; Councillor Larry Chretien, Treasurer Peter Boylston Adams.

Also, Councillor Bruce Ayers and State Rep. Ron Mariano, Tithingmen; Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, Bread Weigher; Councillor Peter Kolson. Culler of Fish: Howie MacKay, packer of beef; Councillor Tom Fabrizio, Surveyor of Hemp; Building Inspector Matt Mulvey, Surveyor of Boards; Maureen Mazrimas, Hogreave; Jim Boudreau, Hay Ward; Planner Bill McMullen, Surveyor of Highway; former School Committeeman Frank Anselmo, Fence Viewer; Mayor James Sheets, gubernatorial candidate Samuel Adams; and Rev. Sheldon Bennett, Rev. Anthony Wibird.

The Quincy Bicentennial Committee is chaired by Howard MacKay. Members include Peggy Nigro, Marcia Olinto, Mary 'Jane' Powers, Tim Reidy Jr., Donald Uvanitte, Hobart Holly, Glendon Buscher, Stephen MacKay, Elliot Hoffman, director of Quincy Historical Society, Heather Sargent, Angelito Santos, and Rev. Sheldon Bennett, pastor, United First Parish "Church of Presidents."

The committee is planning other events during the year to commemorate Quincy's 200th birthday. A calender of events will be forthcoming.

For more information contact Howard MacKay at 328-8101 or Bernice Mader at City Hall at 376-1990.

Dates On The Town And City Seal

1625 -- Settlement of Mount Wollaston.

1640 -- (May 23) Separation from Boston "to be a Town called Braintree."

1792 -- (February 22) Incorporation of the North Precinct of Braintree as the Town of Quincy.

1888 -- (June 11) Incorporation of the Town of Quincy as the City of Quincy.

Chief Mullen To Address Ward 4 Assn.

Quincy Police Chief Francis Mullen will be the guest speaker at the next Ward 4 Neighborhood Association meeting Tuesday, March 10 at 7 p.m. at the Faith Lutheran Center, 65 Roberts St., South Quincy.

Mullen will speak on matters of current interest.

The association, which serves South and West Quincy, also encourages public input to expedite action to solve the Lincoln School problem. The school was cordoned off and labeled dangerous after a half a ton of bricks fell from the top of the building two weeks ago.

A committee of city officials, including School Committeeman Dan Raymondi and Building Inspector Matt Mulvey, are examining the situation and are expected to make a recommendation to Mayor James Sheets in the near future.

Sheets has instructed Mulvey to seek an estimate to demolish the building if necessary.

Association President Ernie Aristide said the building's dangerous condition represents an emergency problem. He said the school, which closed in 1975 and served as storage space in recent years, should be demolished or rebuilt.

Letters will be sent to the proper Quincy officials to move action on the school, Aristide said.

In addition, the association's ongoing collection of discarded hearing aids and eyeglasses is encouraged.

Quincy's Yesterdays

City, Fore River Reach Agreement On Assessment Case

March 5-11 1948 44 Years Ago

Moments before the case was to be heard by the State Appellate Tax Board, the city of Quincy and the Bethlehem Steel Co. reached a settlement that reduced the assessment on the Fore River Shipyard by more than $2 million.

Bethlehem had sought an abatement of $5 million from the assessed valuation of $9.8 million for each of the years 1946 and 1947, a move which, if successful, would have cost the city $3,000,000 in tax revenue for the two years.

Instead, the company won an abatement to $8.6 million for 1946 and $8.5 million for 1947 and the city agreed that the assessment for 1948 and 1949 would be set at $7.6 million. The settlement cost Quincy $66,300 in tax revenue.

BUDGET TRIMMED

The City Council's Finance Committee chopped $40,460 more from Mayor Charles A. Ross' 1948 budget, bringing it down to $7,601,524, up nearly $700,000 over the previous year.

Included in the latest cuts were $15,000 for improvements at City Hospital and $1,800 for the police new equipment account.

NEW SHOW AT CAPITOL

"The Voice of the Turtle," starring Ronald Reagan, Eleanor Parker, Eve Arden and Wayne Morris, and described as "the hit with 1,000 kisses — and a laugh for everyone," opened at the Capitol Theater.

NEW CONTRACT FOR YARD

The Fore River Shipyard landed a $1.5 million contract for conversion of the SS Panama from wartime to peacetime purposes, the third such job for the Panama Line after SS Ancon and SS Cristobal.

EQUAL PAY RULE

The School Committee placed in effect a new rule, approved by voters at the 1947 election, that would grant equal pay to women teachers in the Quincy school system. It's cost was pegged at $87,000 a year.

Recycling Facility Runs Into Strong Opposition

problems because I used to live on Hancock Street," said Tom Birmingham of 265 Highland Ave., "but this proposal would not only be a help to recycling, but also an improvement to the current structure (an older concrete building that takes up approximately 79,000 square feet)."

Most of the residents at the meeting, however, said the problems caused by the center would outweigh the positive effects it might bring.

"I think recycling is good for the City of Quincy, but BFI can't run a proper recycling center," said Joe Kelliher of 47 Barry St., who added that he has had problems with property he owns on Gilbert Street because of BFI.

"I can't get onto my property; I'm landlocked," he said. "The promises they (BFI) are giving you are just a bunch of baloney."

Ralph Maher of 72 Gardner St. said the surrounding streets in the neighborhood are not equipped to deal with the estimated 45-47 curbside trucks (13 of which would be tractor-trailer trucks to transport materials out of the city) that would arrive and depart the proposed center.

"I'm 100 percent for recycling; I think it's a great thing," said Maher, "but I don't believe the road is built strong enough to handle the constant tractor-trailer trucks."

Julie D'Andrea of 73 Columbia St. agreed.

"South Quincy has had to endure a lot over the last 20 years," said D'Andrea, "and the streets there are narrow and may not be able to take the weight.

"We are being squeezed out in our attempts to make our neighborhoods cleaner and greener."

In addition to potential traffic problems, safety of children (because of the many trucks on the streets) and pollution were the biggest concerns of those against the proposal.

After the opponents spoke, Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, whose ward includes the site for the proposed facility, read four letters from residents opposed to BFI's proposal but who were unable to attend the hearing. He also presented Council President Charles Phelan with a petition signed by a number of residents who are against the proposed recycling center.

Phelan said there were "roughly 100" names on the petition.

With both the proponents and the opponents of the plan having spoken, the City Council must now decide whether the proposed center would have a positive or negative effect on the city. It has not yet been decided when the council will vote on the matter.

At The Polls Tuesday:

New Independent Party Could Cause Confusion

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

D-Day, or Decision Day, could become C-Day, Confusion Day, for some voters going to the polls for the presidential primaries next Tuesday.

That's because there's a new political party in Massachusetts: the Independent Voters Party. Registrars and election workers believe many former Independent voters, who are now referred to as unenrolled voters, may get confused when taking a ballot next Tuesday.

Before the Independent Voters Party, people could call themselves Independents, meaning they were not affiliated with any major political party. For a primary election, these Independents would choose what kind of ballot they wanted: Democrat or Republican.

However, because of the Independent Voters Party which became an official party last November, those "Independents" are now referred to as unenrolled. As a result, voters who were once registered as Independents (before the emergence of the Independent Voters Party last fall) are now classified as unenrolled voters.

The new distinction does not mean that they are not registered; it simply means they are not affiliated with the Democratic, Republican or Independent Voters parties.

Furthermore, members of the new Independent Voters Party should refer to themselves as members of that new party.

The emergence of this new political party and the new "unenrolled" designation has city election officials bracing for a potentially confusing day at the Quincy's 30 polling precincts next Tuesday.

"The advent of this party (the Independent Voters Party) is causing a great deal of confusion," said Asst. City Clerk Joseph Shea. "We've never gone through this before. We expect some difficulty but we'll get through it."

Because this is the first election with the Independent Voters Party, the Quincy Board of Registrars is taking steps to educate election wardens and supervisors in an effort to minimize voter confusion.

First, the Board, which is chaired by City Clerk John Gillis, will meet with the city's 210 election workers, including supervisors and demonstrators, before Tuesday's election. Gillis, the other registrars and Shea will explain the new Independent Voters Party as well as the proper procedure for giving ballots to voters, especially those who are unenrolled.

"We're going to talk them through this quandary we're in," Shea said.

Registered Democrats, Republicans, Independent Voters and unenrolled voters who were registered to vote by Feb. 11 are eligible to vote in the presidential primaries.

The voting procedure is simple. As in past elections, voters will get in line at the polling precinct and give their street address and name to a "checker" who will then look up their name on the city's voting lists.

Registered Democrats have a "D" next to their name; Republicans have an "R"; and Independent Voters Party members have an "I." Unenrolled voters do not have a designation next to their name.

Registered Democrats will get a Democratic ballot, registered Republicans will receive a Republican ballot and those registered in the Independent Voters Party (there are 10 in Quincy) will receive an Independent Voters Party ballot.

In other words, Democrats, Republicans and Independent Voters will get a ballot for their respective party automatically; they cannot change parties and get a different ballot at the polls.

Those who are unenrolled should ask for the ballot they want: either Democrat, Republican or Independent Voters Party. Only unenrolled voters have a choice of ballots.

The Democratic and Republican ballots are punch-card ballots and will be counted by an electronic voting machine. The Independent Voter Party ballot is paper and will be counted by hand.

According to the Secretary of State Office, any voter who incorrectly registered under the new Independent Voter Party will be allowed to vote on an escrow ballot in either the Democratic or Republican primaries, meaning their votes will be counted only in a tie or a recount.

Checkers will explain the new set up to voters who are confused by the Independent Voters Party and unenrolled labels. If further assistance is needed, demonstrators, who provide one-on-one help at the polls, will explain the new set up more.

In addition, there will be literature available explaining the Independent Voters Party and unenrolled voters.

Unenrolled voters is the second largest voting block in the city's electorate, comprising 27 percent or 12,390 voters out of 45,5587. Traditionally, Shea said "a good amount of unenrolled voters, in proportion with other parties," go to the polls in Quincy.

For example, if an election draws 40 percent of the total electorate, about 40 percent of those voters are unenrolled.

Voters who wish to change their party affiliation after they vote may do so by filling out a party enrollment card. Unenrolled voters who do not revert back to unenrolled status will become affiliated with the party of the ballot that they took. For example, an unenrolled voter who takes a Democratic ballot and does not fill out a party enrollment card will be listed as a Democratic when the city's voting lists are updated.

Cards can be filled out at the precinct. Voters can also take the cards, fill them out at a later time, and return them to City Hall.

For more information, call 1-800--462-VOTE or the League of Women Voters of Massachusetts at 1-800-882-1649.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

One of the fine organizations for youngsters in America is scouting - The Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts.

It was in March, on the 12th in 1912, that Daisy Gordon, and ten other young girls, met in an unused stable of Daisy's aunt, Mrs. Juliette Low, in Sevannah, Georgia, and founded the first patrol of Girl Guides in the United States.

Mrs. Low had merried an Englishmen and they lived in London and Savannah. She knew Sir Robert Baden-Powell, the founder of the Boy Scouts, and when she became acquainted with and helped the Girl Guides - which had been founded in Savannah by her sister - she brought the two concepts together.

The headquarters of the Girl Scouts was moved to Washington in 1915, after other groups began forming in other cities. Later it was moved to New York and in the span of only a few decades, there had grown up in this country a national Girl Scout organization with members numbered in the millions.

Generally speaking, scouting is one of our noblest youth organizations - teaching and stressing doing good deeds - helping others - courtesy, learning and cleanness in word and deed. After a short period of declining interest in scouting, the movement is again vigorous and expanding, which is good and welcome news ...

North Eliminated By Brockton

The North Quincy boys' basketball team, after drawing a first round bye and waiting 10 days to play, was eliminated from Div. 1 South of the Eastern Mass. Tournament by former longtime Suburban League rival and nemesis Brockton, 66-54, last Thursday.

The Raiders had to await the results of the Natick-Boston English and Brockton-Natick games to determine their opponent. Brockton defeated Natick, 71-56.

North may have been stale after waiting 10 days to play, but coach Ted Stevenson refused to use that as an excuse.

North had finished the regular season at 15-5 and was seeded seventh, while Brockton, at 14-6, was seeded 10th.

North's defense forced 10 second-half turnovers but the Raiders could capitalize on only three, a major factor in their defeat.

Brockton jumped off to a 13-8 lead but Desmond Bellot, who completed his high school career with one of his better efforts (14 points, two steals, a big slam and a three-pointer) brought the Raiders to a 13-13 tie. However, from that point it was all Brockton.

The Boxers' Viet Nguyen (19 points) answered with the first of three three-pointers and teammates Ben Mitchell (13 points) and Gary Burnett (18 points), crashed both boards and combined for 17 rebounds.

In the opening moments of the second quarter North contained Mitchell and caused several turnovers, but could not score.

North's Sean Donovan, the number four scorer in the Old Colony Leagu, was held to nine points, one of his lowest totals of the year, while Matt Flynn had seven points, also low for him, and Bo Smith had five points and two steals.

"North Quincy's defense shut us down in the second half and we had a lot of problems moving the ball," said Brockton coach Vic Ortiz. "They (North) played their hearts out and caused us to stand around on offense."

"We just couldn't take advantage of Brockton's turnover's," said Stevenson. "The defense did a fine job in causing all those turnovers and if we had taken advantage of them, it might have been a different story. But the loss doesn't take away from our fine season. The boys played well all season long and I couldn't find fault with their effort."

During his four years with the squad he totaled 34 tackles, four interceptions for 38 yards and knocked down four passes.

Douglas began the year as a tight end but was converted to the offensive line during the season. He handled a reserve role at that position while also earning a spot on the kickoff return squad.

Molloy, son of John and Betty Molloy, is a 1988 graduate of Boston College High School where he was a three-time letter winner, captain and all-league selection in basketball as well as a two-time letter winner in football.

Douglas, son of John and Nancy Douglas, graduated from Abp. Williams High School in 1990 after being named all-league in both football and basketball. He was a Patriot Ledger all-scholastic.

Norwood Too Much For North

By TOM SULLIVAN

After defeating Walpole, 4-3, in double overtime in its first state tournament game, the North Quincy hockey team found itself up against the top seed in Division 1 South, Norwood.

The Bay State League powerhouse proved too much for the Red Raiders, who were eliminated, 6-1, at Boston College Sunday.

Norwood (16-1-2), which just missed being named to the Big 8 (Div. 1-A) group, had too much firepower for North Quincy (10-4-6), led by Chris Riley (hat trick) and Tim Lovell (two goals and two assists).

Dennis Ruggere, who had an outstanding year in goal for the Raiders, found himself under extreme pressure from the start and, despite the six goals, he had another excellent game.

Norwood had 15 shots in the opening period but scored only once, Riley scoring from Lovell at the 3:09 mark. Norwood had 11 prime scoring chances, three each by Lovell and Riley.

"Dennis made all the first, second and third stops, but he just couldn't be asked to make the fourth stop every time down," North coach Tom Benson said.

"None of those goals were his fault."

Lovell and Riley were their whole team on offense, and their defense moved the puck out well. We weren't able to sustain any pressure for more than 30 or 40 seconds."

Bob Fitzpatrick, who had the lone North goal and who had a hat trick in the win over Walpole, had a good chance in the opening period when he split two defenders and got off a solid backhand shot but Joe Montesano made the save.

North had another fine opportunity in the second period when Chris McCallum got off a wrist shot from the left faceoff circle, but again Montesano made the save.

North had still another good chance later in the period but Montesano again was equal to the task on Jim Sapienza's shot from the slot.

North's only goal came at 5:24 of the third period when Mike Christopherson took a Sean Vermette pass and found Fitzpatrick alone in the right faceoff circle. Fitzpatrick, ending his brief North Quincy career, made no mistake and his slap shot beat Montesano inside the left goal post.

Against Walpole Fitzpatrick, who didn't join the Raiders until midseason, in the 10th game, had his best game with three goals, including the winner at 4:19 of double overtime.

Fitzpatrick, a transfer from Catholic Memorial, at first was declared ineligible by the MIAA but, following an appeal, the MIAA changed its mind and Fitzpatrick helped take up the scoring slack when North's high scorer, Mike DesRoche, was put out of action for the year early in the season with a knee injury.

He had only four goals but was a fine playmaker and assisted on several other goals.

Walpole took a 3-1 lead in the opening period but Ruggere was unbeatable the rest of the way.

Fitzpatrick scored his first goal at 9:23 of the first period to tie the score at 1-1.

While Ruggere stopped everything that came his way, North battled back and Christopherson redirected a Fitzpatrick shot at 3:36 of the second period to make it 3-2.

Fitzpatrick tied it at 7:43 of the third period with a spectacular goal. He cut to the inside and slipped a one-handed backhander past goalie Jayson Petroni with a defender draped over his back.

Both goalies were hot in the first overtime, but, after Ruggere flashed the left leg to stop Brian Crowell, Fitzpatrick capitalized down the other end with a rebound through Petroni's pads.

"We had an excellent season and I'm very happy with our performances," said Benson, who completed his second year as North coach. "The boys did a fine job and I couldn't ask for any more."

Sleiman Keeps Promise, Wins State Title

At the start of the season, Quincy's Ally Sleiman said he would win the state championship.

Last Saturday, in the finals of the Div. 1 State Championships at Lowell, Sleiman kept his promise and shocked defending state champion Darby McLaughlin of Springfield Central, 1-0, for the title.

McLaughlin hadn't lost a bout in two years as Sleiman improved his record to 45-1 in the 145-pound division.

Quincy's Greg Souza advanced to the 140-pound finals but lost a 6-4 decision to Ben Ring of St. John's Prep.

In the semifinals Sleiman defeated John Burrows of Billerica, 6-3, while Souza pinned Justin Gaudet of Keefe.

Sleiman and Souza will compete this weekend in the New England championships at Glastonbury, Ct.

"I am delighted for Ally, he has worked awfully hard for four years and wrestled every summer to keep in shape," said Quincy coach Lou Venturelli.

"Greg also did a fantastic job and both should do well in the New Englands."

Sleiman also was an outstanding linebacker for the Quincy football team.

North Quincy's Matt Colantonio won his first bout in the state tournament but lost his next two.

Quincy finished 11th in the states.

To Democratic And Independent Voters of Quincy

Elect

Mike Bellotti

Democratic State Committeeman

"I believe the Democratic Party is capable of change—if it doesn't it will render itself ineffective and useless.

"As a small business owner I am convinced the party can do more to address the concerns of working people. First the party must stop the endless and useless debate on issues that do not affect the way we live and work. Then we must rebuild the party from the ground up through energy and commitment.

"As your Democratic State Committeeman I will work for these changes. Please give me your vote and this opportunity to work with you to bring the Democratic Party back to Quincy."

Two Massachusetts native sons, Paul Tsongas and President George Bush, captured big victories in Quincy as well as the state in their respective presidential primaries on Super Tuesday.

Tsongas, a former U.S. senator from Lowell, received 8,206 votes or 61.9 percent in the Democratic presidential primary in Quincy. Statewide, Tsongas had 67 percent of the vote.

Bush, who was born in Milton but has adopted Texas as his home state, collected 2,101 votes or 58.6% in Quincy. His state total reached 66 percent.

Locally, 16,918 voters or 37.2 percent of the city's electorate turned out.

Four Quincy residents also came out on top in their respective state committee man and woman races.

Political newcomer Michael G. Bellotti, son of former State Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti, won the Democratic State Committeeman contest in the Norfolk senatorial district with 6,913 votes.

William D. O'Connell of Braintree placed second with 6,584 votes while Quincy School Committeeman Daniel G. Raymondi finished third with 6,032.

Bellotti lost Quincy to Raymondi by 71 votes but finished strong in Braintree, Avon and Holbrook to capture the four-year seat.

PAUL TSONGAS

In Quincy, Bellotti had 4,787 votes while Raymondi had 4,858. O'Connell collected 2,268 votes here.

In the Republican State Committeeman contest, former Quincy Mayor Francis McCauley topped the three-man field. McCauley polled a total of 3,245 votes in the four towns followed by Braintree's Thomas Hamill who had 1,482 and Charles DeBreczeni of Quincy who had 976.

In Quincy, McCauley had 2,235 votes. DeBreczeni collected 617 votes and Hamill 436.

In the Republican State Committeewoman race, Kathryn Roberts of Quincy was re-elected with 3,288 votes. Challenger Kathleen Krumpelman, also of Quincy, had 2,002 votes.

In Quincy, Roberts polled 1,855 votes and Krumpelman 1,022.

Bernice Mader of Quincy, administrative assistant for Mayor James Sheets, was re-elected to a second term as Democratic State Committeewoman. Mader, who was unopposed, polled, 8,643.

In the Democratic primary, Tsongas easily finished first in Quincy, outdistancing his nearest competitor, former Gov. Jerry Brown, more than two-to-one. Brown, who has made some surprise showings in recent primary contests throughout the country, received 2,004 votes or 15.1 percent.

Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton, who swept the Southern primary races and took a commanding lead in delegates with his Super Tuesday victories, finished a distant third in Quincy. He collected 1,339 votes or 10.1 percent.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader finished fourth with 672 votes or 5 percent.

Three hundred and fifty four Quincy Democrats cast ballots for no preference, the fifth highest vote total.

License Board Lifts Restaurant Moratorium

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The controversial six-month moratorium on new restaurants in Quincy Square has been lifted after five weeks.

The License Board voted 5-0 to lift the ban after pressure from businessman and city officials.

The board originally imposed the moratorium Feb. 4 to protect established restaurants and to await guidelines from Mayor James Sheets in relation to his plan for the revitalization of Downtown Quincy.

Building Inspector Matt Mulvey was initially opposed to lifting the ban.

"If we take this (moratorium) off then whatever (business) wants to come in I'll vote for," Mulvey said.

"Each case is individual," replied board chairman John Gillis.

Last week Sheets sent a letter to the board requesting that the ban be rescinded. Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney and Mark Bertman, chairman of the Quincy Business Council, had also asked the board to reconsider the ban.

Bertman said competition is healthy and the market should decide who succeeds and who fails.

Cheney said new restaurants would boost Quincy's economy and provide jobs.

Sheets wrote that because of the positive response to the Quincy Partnership the public/private group which will oversee his "Quincy Plan" he hopes the group will begin operating before June.

One of the Partnership's duties will be to seek a proper retail business mix and work to fill vacant stores.

"Let the process work... which we've been told will be in place," Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue said.

"Let's work together with the Planning Department, the Mayor, etc. for the best interests of the City of Quincy," Police Chief Francis Mullen said.

Sheets praised the board for having the city's best interests in mind at the time the moratorium was imposed.

Creedon Back At Post

Acting Superintendent of Schools Eugene Creedon was back at his desk Monday morning after being discharged from New England Medical Center Sunday.

Creedon, 55, was released after tests found nothing wrong with him. He collapsed a week ago Monday. His condition was attributed to the flu which he has had since mid-February.

"I'm doing fine," Creedon said. "I'm back at my job and anxious to get back into full swing."

Creedon was transferred from Quincy Hospital to NEMC last week so his personal physician could run further tests on him, he said. Following initial tests last week, doctors at Quincy Hospital recommended he remain in the hospital for observation.

"The doctor said to slow down a bit and to get the proper amount of rest," Creedon said.

"I am extremely gratified to have had so many caring wishes, thoughts and prayers from so many people in and outside of the school system," he said. "And I'm also grateful for the caring thoughts expressed to my wife and children."

MWRA Valve Work May Cause Rusty Water

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority announces its Waterworks Division will be continuing its project exercising manual air valves in Quincy during the weeks of March 16-27.

Main line valves will be operated by the work crews and this turning of valves may cause rusty water in the areas of Adams St. at Beale St., Beale St. at Summit Ave., and West Squantum St. at Amsterdam Ave. for up to two weeks after the work is complete.

"Rusty water does not create a health hazard," said William A. Brutsch, director of the MWRA Waterworks Division.

Man Released On $5000 Bail

Pre-Trial Conference In Rape Case Thursday

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The 43-Quincy Point man who allegedly raped a 14-year-old Quincy youth and was released earlier this week on bail, will be back in Quincy District Court today (Thursday) at 9 a.m. for a pre-trial conference

The conference will determine whether there is sufficient evidence for Salvatore Dinenna of 92 Curtis Ave. to stand trial. Dinenna, who has no criminal record, is charged with the Feb. 28 rape of the boy in a wooded area off Hancock St. The boy was walking home alone from a school dance.

The boy identified Dinenna, a sheetmetal worker who has lived in Quincy seven years, last Thursday near the Central Middle School on Hancock St. The boy and his classmates were leaving school for the day when the boy saw Dinenna walking on Hancock St. and shouted to his friends that he was his attacker. The group chased Dinenna nearly a mile and surrounded him outside a convenience store in Wollaston until police arrived.

At his arraignment last Friday, Dinenna pleaded innocent to child rape, child molesting and committing unnatural acts. Judge Albert Kramer ordered Dinenna held at the Norfolk County Correctional Center in lieu of $25,000 cash bail or $250,000 surety.

Kramer denied a request from Defense Attorney Michael Farrington to release Dinenna on his personal recognizance. "It's a classic case of misidentification or identification, depending on the reading of the facts. I have not heart anything other evidence besides (the boy saying) 'that's the man,'" Farrington said.

However, Kramer said bail was needed to ensure Dinenna's return to court. The judge said Dinenna is in-between jobs and does not have deep roots in the community, although he has lived in Quincy for seven years.

"There is little to keep him here if he decides to run," Kramer told Farrington.

At Farrington's request and the prosecution's approval, Kramer allowed Dinenna to remain hidden from public view during his arraignment. The defense attorney said the case hinges on the alleged victim's identification of Dinenna. He was permitted to stand at the top of the stairwell leading from the holding cell to the courtroom, out of public view but within hearing distance of the proceedings.

Dinenna was returned to the Norfolk County Correctional Center where he remained in custody until Monday afternoon. At a bail hearing, Superior Court Judge Paul Sullivan reduced Dinenna's bail to $5,000 from $25,000 after briefly talking with the eight men and two women.

Ten of Dinenna's longtime friends, including a hospital manager and bank vice president, vouched for his character in court and posted the $5,000 at the hearing.

In his 19 years on the bench, Sullivan said he had never seen such a show of support at a bail hearing.

The judge also said he did not question that the boy was traumatized by the rape, but he said it still was uncertain whether Dinenna was the attacker.

At his arraignment, Kramer ordered Dinenna not to go within 1,000 yards of the victim and the victim's family if Dinenna made bail.

Dinenna will not be allowed back into Quincy while the case is pending expect to check weekly with the probation officer. He also must call the office daily.

After the arraignment, relatives of the victim were angered by Kramer's low bail. They said the bail should have been higher to ensure that Dinenna remain in custody until the pretrial conference.

After hearing Dinenna's bail had been lowered and posted, the victim's uncle, Michael Rivard of Quincy, told the Sun that his family is "very, very upset."

"We're very, very upset. I don't care if you haven't been arrested before," noting child rape is a very serious offense. "As far as we're concerned, justice was not served. It's just not right," Rivard said.

Police Dept. Receives $10,000 For Traffic Safety Enforcement

The Massachusetts Governor's Highway Safety Bureau has awarded a $10,000 traffic safety enforcement grant to the Quincy Police Department to fund police patrols in the areas of drinking and driving, speeding, occupant protection and pedestrian safety.

Nancy Luther, director of the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau, presented the grant to Chief Francis Mullen on behalf of the department.

Fourteen other communities will receive similar grants which range from $5,000 to $10,000. The grants were awarded after Quincy and the other communities met several grant criteria, including the identification of specific highway safety problems.

The Quincy grant will be divided among three areas: DWI (driving while intoxicated) and speed enforcement ($6,000), pedestrian safety enforcement ($2,000), and child-passenger safety enforcement ($2,000).

"Excessive speed and drunk driving are the two major factors that cause crashes throughout Massachusetts and the majority of these occur on local roadways. Education combined with enforcement is an effective tool in reducing the number of Massachusetts residents injured and killed on our roadways," Luther said.

For those riding in any vehicle at all times, the safety bureau urges the use of safety belts, or the appropriate child restraint. Massachusetts law requires all children age 12 and under to be properly restrained while riding in a motor vehicle.

In addition, drivers must obey the posted speed limits, never drink and drive or ride with an intoxicated driver, and be aware of motorcyclists, bicyclists and pedestrians.

GOVERNOR'S HIGHWAY SAFETY Bureau Director Nancy Luther presents a $10,000 grant to Quincy Police Chief Francis Mullen, right, as Sen. Paul Harold looks on. The enforcement grant will fund police overtime patrols in the areas of drinking and driving, speeding, occupant protection and pedestrian safety.

Lincoln School Tour Friday

A newly formed committee which is studying the future of the closed Lincoln School on Brooks Ave. in South Quincy will tour the building Friday, March 13 at 8 a.m.

The committee, chaired by School Committeeman Dan Raymondi, invites concerned residents to participate in the walk-through tour.

Building Inspector Matt Mulvey and Physical Plant Manager James Wilson will join the group and answer questions pertaining to the school's structure.

Other committee members include Ward 4 Councillor Tom Fabrizio, Ward 4 Neighborhood Association President Ernie Aristide and several residents representing the neighborhood and Lincoln-Hancock and Sterling Schools.

After the walk, the committee will make a recommendation on the school's future to Mayor James Sheets. The committee could recommend one of several courses action for the school: keeping it, selling it or demolishing it.

If the committee deems the situation an emergency because the building poses a dangerous safety problem, Raymondi said an immediate recommendation will be made to the mayor.

The school, which had been used for storage space since closing in 1975, was cordoned off several weeks ago after a 4 foot by 10 foot section of brick wall fell from the top of building.

No one was hurt. Since that time, the future of the school has been uncertain.

Lincoln-Hancock Students Win National Award

A group of Lincoln-Hancock School students were honored Monday as grand prize winners of Scholastic News magazine's "Kids Care" good-citizenship contest.

Teacher Stephen Cantelli's 1991 fifth grade class (now sixth graders) received the award for their project recognizing a fallen Civil War veteran from Quincy.

The students presented $1,000 from Scholastic News to the New England Shelter for Homeless Veterans, Boston. The shelter hosted the ceremony.

Entries were received from more than 500 elementary schools. The Lincoln-Hancock project is one of six grand prize winners.

"The outstanding entries that we received prove that our nation's children care very deeply about the world around them and, even though they are young, are able to reach out in extraordinary ways," said Cathy Vanderhoof, editorial director of Scholastic News.

"It is also really important for young people to know that adults care about their involvement. We salute all of the teachers, parents and communities who join with us in helping and recognizing these children and their heartfelt projects," she said.

After discovering the forgotten grave of a teen-aged soldier in a West Quincy cemetery, the fifth graders began to learn the importance of history and developing respect for all veterans.

The students researched the unknown soldier's background and discovered that his relatives still live in Quincy. The class then planned a memorial service to honor the soldier, Jimmy Ryan. They helped restore the gravesite and planted a yellow rose bush in honor of the Civil War veteran.

The "Kids Care" contest is one of America's largest awards programs created to encourage and recognize volunteerism projects by elementary school students.

"MOTHER CELLS" MAY FIGHT CANCER

Researchers in California believe they have isolated the so-called "mother" or "hematopoietic stem" blood cells that generate all other blood cells in a person's body. Scientists have been searching for the special cells since their existence was discovered 35 years ago, because the cells should assist doctors in restoring a patient's blood and immune systems damaged by chemotherapy or radiation. Patients undergoing aggressive cancer treatments could receive purified stem cells instead of the riskier, more traumatic bone marrow transplants now used. The first clinical tests of a procedure to use the purified cells in cancer patients are set to begin within months at Stanford University Medical School.

P.S. Stem cells are unique within the human body, comprising only one in every 200,000 blood cells.

Doctors are hopeful and excited about the discovery of the "mother cell," and many believe that this will make future cancer treatments safer and less painful. If you would like to learn more, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. We are dedicated to the compassionate and caring practice of medicine. A Clinton-Tsongas Ticket?

Paul Tsongas and Bill Clinton have been bashing one another for weeks now.

Question: Is there any chance of them later smoking the peace pipe and teaming up as this year's Democrat Presidential ticket?

HAROLD

"It's possible," said Senator Paul Harold, on the eve of Super Tuesday.

"But it was more probable a few weeks ago when they were still pretty good friends. Now they have the gloves off."

But, he acknowledges, that in love, war and politics anything is possible.

In the final analysis the important thing will be a balanced ticket, says Harold.

Clinton and Tsongas have the makings of a balanced tickets: Moderate and liberal.

CLINTON

TSONGAS

South and North. Washington outsider and former insider.

They have major differences on abortion, the national debt, taxes and relations with Japan.

But they could still get together if they looked like the best bet for a balanced ticket, Harold says.

"But I think someone from the west might be a better match," says Harold.

Past Democrats have pounded one another in primary battles across the country and then later reconciled as a ticket.

John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson are a notable example. Kennedy knew he needed Texas and the South. And Johnson was the man to help deliver it.

Harold, who is backing Clinton thinks Clinton has the best chance of wrapping up the nomination.

A Clinton-Tsongas ticket would be the most likely, he feels, if the pair were to get together.

If Tsongas were to win, Harold doubts that there would be a Tsongas-Clinton ticket. He doesn't think Clinton would accept the No. 2 spot.

Harold, like many of the experts is amazed at how Tsongas has come on as a national candidate with strong showings in New Hampshire, Maryland, Utah, Washington and Idaho and respectable performances in Minnesota and Georgia.

Tsongas, who has been called unelectable, has to be the big surprise so far this Election Year '92.

Although he mumbles at times, a lot of people apparently have been listening to what he is saying and a lot think he is telling it like it is. But has about as much charisma as a sack of potatoes. He just doesn't look or sound like a candidate who can make it on TV.

But maybe that's part of his appeal this year.

Joe Flaherty, the West Quincy oil dealer who doesn't pretend to be a political expert, but has been around long enough to qualify, may have hit it on the head as far as Tsongas' appeal goes:

"I think the people are tired of the glamour boys. They've had enough of them. Now they want substance."

Maybe this year Tsongas could turn out to be the Democrats' Lincoln.

But even Lincoln would have a tough time getting elected these days of television campaigning.

Can't you hear a PR hotshot saying: "Look, Abe, baby. You gotta shave that beard. The Gillette crowd will murder you."

Tsongas doesn't have a beard. But he's looking like Honest Abe.

WELL, SOME WOMEN (and men) might be reluctant to reveal their age, but City Councillor Patricia Toland isn't one of them.

TOLAND

Pat will be 60 March 16 and friends are throwing a "Pat's 60th Birthday Party" March 17 from 7 to 10 at the Neighborhood Club.

Tickets are $25 per person and $35 per couple.

The invitation, in appropriate green, with a big 60 on it reads:

So this is the year to be 60 along with Liz and Ted. To kick up your heels and dance on your toes and paint the city red.

So come and enjoy the party and bring a friend or spouse.

By March we need to celebrate, evacuate the house.

When movie stars and senators and city councillors, too

Observe a landmark birthday date, we'll all sing toora loo.

(Paint the town red on St. Patrick's Day? The committee says it really means green but that doesn't rhyme with Ted.)

Now let me add my own little verse:
You can't help loving our Councillor Pat
A finer lady no where else is at.
But we can't help wonder on this big date
Whether she'll get there on time — or be late.

THERE'S BEEN SOME speculation that George Miller might drop out of the race for state representative in the Third Norfolk District but according to him, don't believe it.

MILLER

Miller, who made an impressive political debut last year as a city councillor-at-large candidate, has had nomination papers for state representative out for several weeks now.

"I've made up my mind and I'm definitely running, and in to stay," he says.

Which will make two Democratic Quincy candidates with incumbent Ron Mariano up for re-election.

A single Weymouth candidate would be helped with Mariano and Miller splitting some of the Quincy vote.

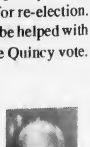
FRANK KEARNS, community activist and The Quincy Sun's "Citizen of The Year" for 1991, underwent gall bladder surgery at Quincy Hospital last Friday but hopes to be released today (Thursday). He says he's doing fine.



KEARNS

This is the second surgery since February for Frank who is 79 — but acts like he's not old enough for Social Security.

QCA Wants Decision Postponed

Partnership Petition Public Hearing March 16

The City Council Ordinance Committee will hold a public hearing Monday, March 16 at 6:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers on a home-rule petition calling for a public-private partnership as part of the mayor's downtown revitalization plan.

Residents, business leaders and others will be able to publicly state their support or opposition to the partnership proposed by Mayor James Sheets. The partnership would be comprised of business leaders and city officials and would actively market Quincy to prospective investors, retailers, companies and industries as well as tourists and visitors.

The mayor calls the partnership the "driving force" of his Quincy 2000 Revitalization Plan. He said it would boost development through large-scale planning and promotions as well as guide and drive the revitalization effort.

At a recent Ordinance Committee meeting, three city councillors went on record in support of the partnership. Eight business leaders also voiced approval.

Monday's public hearing will likely be the only hearing held regarding the partnership. After the hearing, the council is expected to vote on the petition. Sheets has asked the council for quick action on the matter.

One local organization, the Quincy Citizens Association, has called on Sheets and city councillors to postpone the final vote until after the March 16th meeting to allow time for more public input.

In a letter to Sheets dated March 9, QCA President Arthur Chandler wrote, "Our association feels that a vote on "The Plan" is premature and should not be rushed through on March 16 (after a brief public hearing earlier the same night). There needs to be city-wide public input before any vote is taken."

Sheets, who was attending a conference in San Francisco on Tuesday, was not available for comment.

In his letter, Chandler listed 14 questions pertaining to the mayor's revitalization plan which were addressed to Executive Secretary Thomas Koch at a recent QCA meeting. The QCA had asked Sheets to attend its Feb. 26th meeting but because the mayor was out of town, Koch filled in.

"Despite the good intentions of your substitute, Tom Koch, that night, many serious questions pertaining to "The Plan" and the future of Downtown Quincy remained unanswered," Chandler said.

Some of the questions which Chandler said need to be answered before a final vote is taken on the partnership include:

•Why should the "Partnership" have the power to propose new zoning laws when the city was just rezoned a few years ago and 95 percent of the residents favored a six-story height limit in historic Quincy?

•Is this "partnership" a prelude to a "Quincy Redevelopment Authority" or "Urban Renewal Authority?" Will they eventually have eminent domain powers?

•Why hasn't Quincy sought outside professional design plans and recommendations from one or more successful shopping center architects and consultants who have revived other shopping districts with face lifts and innovative designs, as has been done on Cape Cod and at Faneuil Hall Market?

•If our purpose is to see that the historic aspects of Quincy are preserved and promoted, why should the proposed "Design Review Board" supersede the present Historic District Commission?

•Won't the cross-town connector road (from the Burgin Parkway to Southern Artery) divert traffic from retail Hancock St. and how many properties will be taken to widen the area for the roadway?

•Has a survey been made of the possible opposition of women parkers to using over-the-track parking areas or high-story parking garages?

•Why should Wollaston and North Quincy be included in such a Plan, before it has been proven successful in Downtown Quincy?

•Has an environmental impact statement been planned both for the Town Brook drainage project and the cross-town road? Are there any concerns by the Quincy Conservation Commission?

•Why can't Quincy Center have free parking after a certain A.M. hour, like Braintree, as an incentive to shop?

"In view of the above questions, and others more numerous to mention here," Chandler wrote, "the Quincy Citizens Association suggests that the answers to these questions be published in the media for all to read and digest, before any "go ahead" vote is taken by the City Council or wholly endorsed by you.

"Without considerable city-wide public input and support this important issue that affects the future of Quincy and the quality of life of our residents who cherish Quincy as their hometown and want the very best that we can provide for its future will not succeed."

Chandler concluded his letter by commenting on the beautification of the City Hall--Church of Presidents area. "With a professional-design plan for the southern end of Hancock St., certainly all Hancock St. property owners should be happy to participate in a similarly-enhanced shopping district that will benefit them and increase their property values," he added.

Nancy's Pasta
With Mushrooms

Our daughter Nancy, the bride, doesn't get much of a chance to experiment with food because of her working hours, but last week, she told me about a recipe she prepared with just mushrooms. It's also a great dish for the lenten season.

NANCY'S PASTA
WITH MUSHROOMS

1 Lb mushrooms (cut in halves)
2 garlic cloves (chopped)
2 Tbsps white cooking wine
2 Tbsps flour for thickening olive oil for sauteing
1 cup milk
bread crumbs for topping butter or margerine for topping
salt and pepper to taste
1/4 cup parmesan cheese
3/4 Lb of ziti

While the pasta is cooking, saute the garlic in the olive oil. Add the mushrooms, the salt and pepper, the white wine and cook for a few minutes. Add the milk and the flour until the sauce is thickened. After you have drained the pasta, place them in a slightly greased casserole dish and pour the sauce over the ziti. Sprinkle with the parmesan cheese, the butter and bread crumbs and bake in a 305 degree oven for about 15 to 20 minutes or until bubbly. Serve with added grated cheese if desired.

The United Nations Association of Greater Boston and the United Nations Association of Greater Boston and the United Nations Association Council of the South Shore will co-sponsor "The Future of United Nations Peace-keeping" March 26 at the United First Parish Church, Quincy Center.

Dr. Klaus Tornudd will be the keynote speaker. Dr. Tornudd was the Permanent Representative of Finland to the United Nations from 1988 to 1991. Presently, he is a Fellow at the Center for International Affairs, Harvard University.

He is the author of many books and articles on international politics, human rights and Finnish politics. His presentation will focus on topics including new approaches to peace-keeping, humanitarian assistance, election supervision, and a permanent peace-keeping force.

In 1991, the United Nations gained importance and influence with new peace keeping missions. El Salvador, Cambodia and Yugoslavia highlight the new role the UN has in solving international conflicts.

"Now we must work for a world wide era of supreme reverence for life, embodied in a universal, peaceful, nonviolent, just society," said Robert Muller, former United Nations Assistant Secretary General.

The public is invited. For information contact Dagmar Koesling, 22 Batterymarch St., Boston, MA, 02109 or call 482-4587.

Quincy Big Sister Assn. To Expand Asian Services

The Quincy-South Shore Big Sister Association has been awarded a small foundation grant which will enable Big Sisters to expand their outreach services in the Asian community in the South Shore.

There are potentially 1,000 Asian girls between 7 and 15 in Quincy and Randolph who could benefit from the care and attention of a Big Sister.

The grant will be used to develop an ethnically diverse advisory group of community representatives which will assist the South Shore agency in promoting a culturally sensitive process. The agency will also connect with community schools, churches and community groups that serve minority populations.

The South Shore Big Sister agency is hoping to match 20 Asian girls with Big Sisters by the end of the grant's two-year term. One South Shore Asian Little Sister has been matched with a Big Sister.

Saturday Deadline To Order Cancer Society Daffodils

The deadline for placing advance orders for the colorful yellow daffodils that will greet spring on the South Shore on March 24 and 25 for the benefit of the American Cancer Society, has been extended to Saturday, March 14 to give the volunteer solicitors a few extra days to make their calls.

"While we've had a mild winter, spring still seems a long ways off and we didn't want anyone to miss the opportunity to brighten the first days of the new season while helping in the fight against cancer," said Pauline Sweeney, co-chair of the Daffodil Days campaign of the South Shore Unit of the American Cancer Society. "We decided to extend the deadline to March 14 and would even try to honor orders received a day or two later."

Advance orders for a minimum of three 10-bloom bouquets at $4 each may be placed by calling 773-8226 or 341-4210 or with volunteers in several South Shore communities. Boxes of 50 bouquets are $200. This year an attractive vase is available for $6, making a combination of vase and bouquet for $10.

Last year, Daffodil Days on the South Shore brought in a record $54,000 for the programs of the Cancer Society which include information, education transportation and other services to cancer patients in the communities of Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Quincy, Scituate and Weymouth.

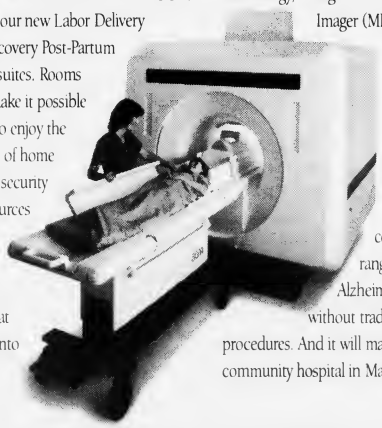
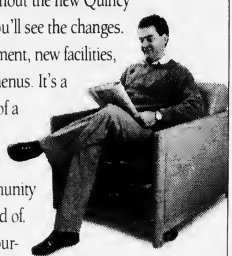
Just A Few Of The Latest Things Now Being Delivered At Quincy Hospital.

These days, healthy little tykes aren't the only things being delivered at Quincy Hospital.

Take, for instance, the furniture and equipment that's been delivered to our new Labor Delivery Recovery Post-Partum (LDRP) suites. Rooms which make it possible for you to enjoy the comforts of home with the security and resources of a hospital. Partner's chairs that convert into sleepers, special birthing beds, even homestyle oak cabinets covering your basic medical supplies, have all been delivered to make your delivery as stress-free and as "unhospital-like" as possible. And that's just on the second floor.



Coming to the first floor this summer, you'll find the newest in diagnostic technology, a Magnetic Resonance Imager (MRI). This equipment, far more advanced than an x-ray or CAT scan, gives doctors an in-depth look at conditions ranging from Alzheimer's to arthritis without traditional invasive procedures. And it will make us the first community hospital in Massachusetts approved for a permanent, full-time MRI on campus.



Throughout the new Quincy Hospital, you'll see the changes. New equipment, new facilities, even new menus. It's a new vision of a community hospital the entire community can be proud of. To see for yourself, or to tour our LDRP suites, just call 773-6100, ext. +016.

So next time you need to go to a hospital, consider Quincy Hospital. You'll see what's really being delivered here is great healthcare.

Complaints Aimed At South Quincy Auto Shop

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The owner of a South Quincy auto repair and used car business appears to be on a collision course with the City License Board.

David Tarbox, who owns D.W. Tarbox, II & Sons at 85 Liberty St., did not appear at Tuesdays hearing regarding possible license violations. The hearing has been continued until March 17 at 10 a.m. at City Hall.

Complaints against Tarbox include too many cars on the property, lack of sanitary facilities and poor condition of the property.

Ward 4 City Councillor Tom Fabrizio told the board that he counted 27 cars at the site recently. Tarbox agreed to limit the number of cars to 10 with no more than five junk cars at any time at a License Board meeting Jan. 29, 1991. At that time he told the board he would keep the junk cars stored indoors and cars for sale outside.

The board then granted Tarbox a Motor 2 license to sell used cars on a six-month probationary period.

Fabrizio said he believes Tarbox is currently sub-leasing the property to someone else.

Fabrizio added that a bathroom was not added to the building as had been stipulated at the Jan. 29, 1991 hearing.

A neighbor, Claire O'Brien of 147 Liberty St., told the board that three men were working on cars at the site on a recent Sunday. This would also be a license violation.

O'Brien also complained about too many cars there and that two flat-bed trucks have been stored there. Tarbox was instructed by the board not to park trucks in the neighborhood during non-business hours.

Tarbox met with neighbors and Fabrizio Jan. 28, 1991 and agreed to limit the total of junk cars stored at the site to five although he has a license for 10.

Hearing Continued On Marina Bay Liquor License

The Caffe Spagnuolo, which sells Italian-style coffees and pastries at Marina Bay, has asked the Quincy License Board for permission to sell alcoholic beverages.

Owner Beverly Spagnuolo told the board she wants to sell liquers, such as sambuca and amaretto, which traditionally compliment her menu of coffees and desserts.

Her attorney, Tom Mullen of Quincy, said the establishment will not be run like a barroom but like a cafe in Boston's North End. "For instance, there will be no Budweiser sold," he said.

Mullen presented the board with a petition in favor of the All-Alcoholic license signed by nearly 450 people including many Marina Bay residents.

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers requested that the License Board postpone a vote on the matter until March 17. Ayers is in Washington and was unable to attend Tuesday's hearing.

The board said they did not oppose Spagnuolo's request but voted to continue the hearing until Ayers could attend.

The Spider of Fortune

When Mark Twain was editor of a newspaper in Missouri, one reader wrote in saying he had found a spider in his paper. The man wanted to know if the spider meant good luck or bad luck.

Twain wrote back: "Finding a spider in your paper was neither good luck nor bad luck for you. The spider was merely looking over our paper to see which merchant is not advertising so that he can go to that store, spin his web across the door and lead a life of undisturbed peace ever afterward."

Moral: The spider of fortune lives everywhere. Keep him from your door by advertising regularly in The Quincy Sun.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Did you know the verb "to explode" comes from a Latin word meaning to clap one's hands?

In olden days people clapped their hands to show disapproval.

If they did not like what they were seeing or hearing, they literally clapped and hooted the performer off the stage.

With the passage of time "explode" came to mean anything that burst noisily or expanded suddenly with the release of pressure. Also, clapping of the hands has come to show approval not disapproval. Today we show our approval by clapping our hands.

We all like applause. We all like to be praised. From childhood on every human being likes to be praised for effort and accomplishment. We want people to think well of us ... to approve of our actions ...

But such desires can, unfortunately, spill over into compromise. The desire for applause is good only if such desire comes out of a good spirit.

A Few Words on FUNERAL SERVICE

What do you say to a grieving widow?

DON'T say "I know how you feel." You just can't know.

Better to hold her hand firmly with a simple "I'm sorry." No long eulogies. Listening and just being there shows you care.

Don't try to jolt her out of her grief, she must first accept the loss and this takes time.

Offer to help her as best you can and your shoulder to lean on.

Most important: make a point of visiting with her later when everyone's gone and she's alone and lonely.

Correction

A reporting error in last week's Quincy Sun stated that the City Council approved the appropriation of $15,000 to the Planning Department for the establishment of a counseling service for the city's Asian community.

Although the matter was discussed, it was actually referred to the Finance Committee.

Protestant Social Service Bureau Benefit Walk April 26

A 10-kilometer benefit walk for the Protestant Social Service Bureau will be held Sunday, April 26.

The walk will begin at the Hingham Congregational Church, Main St., Hingham. Proceeds will benefit the PSSB programs.

This year's goal is $40,000. Besides walkers, the PSSB needs volunteers for crossing guards, the blister patrol and check pointers. Volunteers are also needed to provide sandwiches and beverages at the end of the walk.

This is not a race. It is an opportunity to stroll with friends.

Dorothy Sparks and Carla Steen are the co-chairmen of the event, the PSSB's largest fundraiser of the year.

More than 50 South Shore churches are planning to participate. Anyone who would like to take part can call the PSSB office at 773-6203.

For those times when the darkness lingers

With the loss of a loved one through death, it is helpful to be able to share the feelings and emotions which we all experience.

For most of us, there are family members, clergy, and friends who are ready to listen in a caring way.

Yet, there are those who find it helpful to share their grief with someone outside their immediate circle of support.

Because of our continuing commitment to the families we serve, Keohane Funeral Service is pleased to announce that Dr. Sherry Johnson has joined our staff as a Grief Counselor. Her educational background, professional experience and understanding manner can be particularly helpful.

We are the first funeral home in New England to offer the service of a Grief Counselor.

10 From Quincy, North In N.E. Championships

By TOM SULLIVAN

Ten athletes from Quincy and North Quincy will compete in the New England track championships this Saturday at Brown University's Margolies Athletic Center in Providence.

Representing Quincy will be Chris Walker, who has had an outstanding season in the high jump. He will compete in that event and the 55-meter hurdles.

North Quincy will feature boys and girls' 4X200 relay team as well as Suzanne Lewis in the two-mile.

The boys' team qualified by virtue of its third place finish in a special development meet last Sunday night at BU's Commonwealth Armory.

The team of John O'Donnell (25.7), Tony Licciardi (22.5), Mike Yee (24.7) and Mark Sinclair (24.1) turned in a time of 1:37.0, its best time of the year. (Mass. does not contest the 4X200 relay in the state championships, which is the normal method of qualification for the New Englands).

The girls qualified through participation in the Eastern States championships last Saturday at Harvard.

The team of Amy Wong (29.1), Katy Deady (29.8), Ilana Cobban (28.6) and Sue Hamilton (29.0) overcame some shaky baton passing to clock a 1:56.2 and place third among Massachusetts teams. (The top six teams qualified).

In other action, Tricia Hughes, who just completed an excellent basketball season, tried her hand at triple jumping and placed second in the BU development meet with a jump of 34-11 1/2 and placed fourth at the Easterns with a 34-1 1/4 jump.

Lewis switched down to the mile for some speed work in the Easterns and ran a personal best 5:19.2, good for sixth place. Coach Jeff Hennessy feels his team is finishing the indoor season on a high note and hopes the momentum carries into the spring season.

"Hughes is within a foot of her best triple jump all last year and she has not practiced, so this is a good sign," Hennessy said. "Lewis was hoping for an even-paced 5:20 mile so she was pleased with her 5:19."

Lewis hopes to reverse the tables on rivals Deirdre Milligan of Brockton and Maria Berger of Lexington, who defeated at the all-state.

Quincy seniors Ally Sleiman (145) and Greg Souza (140) placed third and sixth respectively in the New England wrestling championships last weekend in Glastonbury, Ct.

Quincy placed 11th in the tournament which featured high schools from all the New England states.

Norfolk County Sheriff's Office Raises $105,487

CLIFFORD MARSHALL

Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall announces that $105,487 was raised during the first half of fiscal 1991 through several programs administered through the sheriff's office. The funds are deposited in the County General Fund to help support county governmental operations.

A significant portion of the $105,487 was generated through alternatives to incarceration and room and board receipts from those programs. The sheriff's work release and electronic incarceration programs raised $1,881 and $85,376 respectively. The Federal Bureau of Prisons also pays a per diem rate to have federal inmates participate in the sheriff's office electronic incarceration program.

The Norfolk County Work Release program, housed at the Braintree Alternative Center in Braintree, affords selected individuals the opportunity to work in the community and 'pay' for some of their own incarceration costs. Work release participants are required to pay room and board, fines and restitution to the courts, and in some cases, family support.

The electronic incarceration program (EIP), administered at the Village Avenue offices in Dedham, monitors the individual at home with an electronic device attached to the ankle. Selected participants are permitted to work, further their education and/or attend substance abuse treatment programs such as AA or Narcotics Anonymous.

EIP participants pay approximately $12 per day to remain on the program. The average cost to house an inmate in Norfolk County is approximately $24,000.

Other revenues were generated by the use of the collect telephone stations placed within the jail facility. Monies collected from the pay telephones located inside the facility accounted for $18,221.

Remaining monies were collected as restitution and fines to the courts.

"In these days of economic recovery," Marshall said, "We are fortunate to be able to see such a significant return from some of our inmate programming."

Mariano, Haley Ask U.S. Funding For Boston Harbor Clean-Up

Rep.s Ron Mariano (D-Quincy) and Paul Haley (D-Weymouth) have co-sponsored a resolution calling upon Congress to provide funding for the clean-up of Boston Harbor.

The resolution, unanimously passed by the House of Representatives, urged Congress to support a bill filed by Sen.s Edward Kennedy and John Kerry to fund the harbor clean-up with $1 billion in federal funds.

"The ratepayers of the MWRA can no longer afford to pay for the harbor clean-up," said Mariano. "Help must be forthcoming from the Federal Government if we expect the harbor to be clean while still allowing residents to afford their homes."

"The Federal Court System ordered this project and the President used it as a campaign issue," added Haley. "It is now time for the Federal Government to take an active role in the solution of this very serious problem."

150 Quincy High Students Participate In SAT Field Trials

One hundred and fifty students at Quincy High School recently participated in the latest and largest "field trials" designed to revise the SAT and other College Board tests.

The students were among the 257,000 from 2,400 schools nationwide and abroad who took sample two-and-a-half hour tests over the past two weeks.

The purpose of the field trials is to guarantee the continued usefulness and fairness of these tests in the college admissions process.

Test results will help establish final content, timing and statistical specifications for College Board's new Preliminary/SAT National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT), SAT-I Reasoning Tests, and SAT-II Subject Tests (the expanded and revised Achievement Tests). The results also will be used to develop appropriate score scales and new test familiarization and score interpretation publications.

The College Board and Educational Testing Service (ETS) have been developing these new versions of the tests since 1988. The new tests will be closely linked to high school and college courses and will emphasize critical reading, verbal reasoning, mathematical problem solving, data interpretation and applied mathematics.

The new SAT-I Reasoning Test will permit the use of calculators, and an optional SAT-II Writing Test with Essay will be added to the array of Achievement Tests that will be renamed SAT-II. The new PSAT/NMSQT will be introduced in fall 1993; the new SAT and writing test will make their debut in spring 1994.

Each school participated in one of five field trials. Students at some schools compared old and new forms of the SAT and PSAT/NMSQT while others compared the new SAT-Writing test with the current English Composition Achievement Test. The effects of essay response time on the new tests also were studied and some students used calculators on math sections while others did not. Most students completed a questionnaire on their reactions to the new tests.

Local Substance Abuse Center Receives Mental Health License

High Point, an alcohol-drug abuse treatment services center, has been granted a mental health license for its outpatient facilities in Quincy and Plymouth.

The license will broaden the spectrum of services offered at High Point.

"In addition to providing substance abuse treatment services, we will now be treating a full range of mental health conditions including depression and other mood disorders, thought disorders, sexual abuse issues, eating disorders, phobias, and other problems in living," said Dona Maynard, director of Outpatient Services.

Treatment modalities available include individual, couples, family and group therapy.

High Point's Outpatient Department is staffed by a multidisciplinary clinical staff. Major insurance is accepted and sliding scale fees are accepted.

SCUBA Course Begins March 24 At Lincoln-Hancock School Pool

The Quincy Recreation Department and the Quincy Underwater Recovery Dive Team will cosponsor an introductory SCUBA course as part of its swimming programs at the Lincoln Hancock Community School pool.

Recreation Director Barry Welch said, "This course has been designed to give the average family access to the sport of SCUBA with no cost to the participant. The dive team provides the necessary equipment and instructors for the three-week course, and it enables residents of Quincy an opportunity to become knowledgeable about the sport, equipment, and safety in a controlled and orderly fashion.

"Although the course does not lead to certification at its conclusion participants may elect to enroll in a certification program. It is our hope that a program of this type will prevent persons from borrowing gear to give it a try, a dangerous practice which can end with injury or death," Welch said.

There are two sessions of classroom programs and two sessions of pool experience. Classroom lessons are held on Tuesdays at 6:30 p.m. and the in pool experience is on Mondays at 7 p.m.

The course will begin Tuesday, March 24, and is open to all ages from children to adults. Family groups are encouraged to enroll.

Registration is limited and may be done by calling the Quincy Recreation Department at 376-1394

Tsongas, Bush Winners Here

Democratic contenders who recently retired from the race, Nebraska Sen. Bob Kerry and Iowa Sen. Tom Harkin, took the sixth and seventh spots with 110 and 82 votes respectively.

Rounding out the rest of the Democratic field were Eugene McCarthy (49 votes), Lyndon LaRouche (45) and Larry Agran (39).

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, who has repeatedly said he will not be a candidate this year, received 20 write-in votes in Quincy.

In all, there were 13,521 votes cast in the Democratic primary in Quincy, including 331 blanks.

In the Republican primary, President Bush easily turned aside challenges by conservative columnist Patrick Buchanan and David Duke. Buchanan polled 1,114 votes or 31 percent while Duke collected only 93 votes or 2.5 percent.

Quincy Republicans also cast 149 no preference votes (4.1 percent) and 125 blanks (3.4 percent). There were 3,582 ballots cast in the local GOP primary.

Bush swept all eight GOP primary contests Tuesday, virtually assuring himself the Republican nomination in the fall.

There were eight candidates on the Independent Voters Party. Final results were not known at press time.

$124 Million Projected

Sheets Hopes For No-Layoffs Budget

BY ROBERT BOSWORTH

Mayor James Sheets projected Tuesday that he will submit a $124 to $125 million budget reflecting no layoffs for FY 93 to the City Council by May 1.

Sheets made the projection in part based on his assumption that the city's state local aid payment for the next fiscal year will be essentially level funded. "It appears that we'll be level funded. I've asked the department heads to level fund their departments and I hope there will be no layoffs.

"I think our fiscal problems have bottomed out and they will begin to improve over the next two to three years," Sheets said Tuesday.

For the current fiscal year which ends June 30, the city received $25,678,000 in local aid. The mayor believes that figure could climb, albeit only slightly, to $26,373,000 for FY 93 which will start July 1.

Much of the mayor's budget numbers are estimates. He said he should know how much revenue the city will have available for FY93 after he gets some hard numbers regarding the tax levy, state aid, city receipts and other monies received such as back taxes. Those numbers should be known within a week to 10 days, he said.

In a few weeks, Sheets said he intends to begin discussing next year's department budgets with department heads.

"What we'll attempt to do is level fund each department budget, and then sit down with each department head and work out the individual budgets."

Barring any large emergency appropriation, Sheets said he does not expect to end FY 92 in the red. As of the end of February, there was $449,348 in free cash and $554,000 in the UDAG account. Both those accounts can be rolled over into the next fiscal year.

Furthermore, if the city is level funded, the mayor said he expects to submit a balanced FY 93 budget with no layoffs.

"It may not be balanced by much but it will be balanced," he said.

If the $124-$125 million budget figure holds true, the FY93 budget would increase by approximately $6 million over this year.. At the same time, however, some costs are

Costly Question:

Raze Or Renovate Unsafe Lincoln School?

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The Lincoln School Task Force will meet Monday, March 23, to discuss the future of the building.

The condition of the building has deteriorated and last month a 4x10-foot section of the outside wall fell from the top of the school sending a half ton of bricks crashing to the ground on the school lot near Brooks Ave. and Caledonia Ave.

The incident prompted Mayor James Sheets to ask Building Inspector Matt Mulvey to examine the building and seek an estimate to demolish it if necessary.

"We (Building Dept.) have been monitoring it day-to-day," Mulvey said.

Mulvey estimated that it would cost from $220,000 to $250,000 to raze the building.

He also estimated that to secure the building (to prevent sections from falling and making the structure safe externally) would cost about $100,000. The school would be secured with metal plates which would be attached by bolts secured inside. Although this plan is the least expensive it would create an eyesore in the neighborhood.

To renovate the structure would cost between $1.4 and $1.7 million, Mulvey estimated. He said the cost could go higher if more structural problems are discovered.

The Task Force, a recently formed committee, toured the site Friday and will make a recommendation to Sheets on the best course of action for the building. School Committeeman Dan Raymondi is chairman of the committee which includes parents, neighborhood representatives and a student representative.

About 25 people, including committee members, elected officials, neighbors and city personnel surveyed the 100-year-old building which was closed in 1975.

Since then the school department has used the building, in a limited capacity, as a storage facility and food preparation center for the school lunch program. The building also housed the Quincy Police Department's Stress Unit and prior to that was the home of the school system's Heritage Room where administrative meetings were held.

Mulvey, Physical Plant Manager James Wilson and maintenance foreman Bill LaForest led the group through the basement and first and second floors of the two-story, 12-classroom school. The structure was originally built with eight classrooms and four more were added in 1909.

Council Gives 8-1 Go-Ahead

Mayor Optimistic On Partnership

By MICHAEL WHALEN

With an 8-1 City Council vote and support from residents behind him, Mayor James Sheets is optimistic his home-rule petition for a public-private partnership to oversee development will get the needed green-light from the state legislature.

"I think it will do very well there (at the State House)," said Sheets. "I look forward to getting it approved quickly by the state legislature."

Sheets said he would like to see the petition approved by the end of April, and for the partnership, or corporation,

Related Story On Back Page

to come into being by June 1. He added that among the partnership's first priorities would be "to help the retail merchants on Hancock Street, and to help market some of the vacant spaces that exist (in Quincy) and bring some retail establishments to the city."

The mayor also said that this is a very "exciting" time to live in Quincy.

"I'm excited because we've already gone two steps further than anyone in my many years as a public servant to bring revitalization to the downtown area," said Sheets. "First, to actually create the plan for a partnership, and second, to have the council approval is the next major step."

$280,500 Offered For City Owned Land

The City Council Land Conveyance Committee Monday night discussed an offer of $280,500 for a city-owned piece of land in West Quincy by the Milton Corporation.

Michael Solimando, project manager of the Milton-based construction company, said he is interested in the 16 1/2-acre piece of land, which runs off Ricciuti Drive on the Milton/Quincy line, because it is abutted by property already owned by the company.

He added, however, that the Milton Corporation does not know yet what it will do with the property.

"We have no present plans for the land," said Solimando, "but we have had offers from elderly housing, nursing homes, United Paper and other organizations."

The corporation has already the received approval of the Planning Board for the purchase of the property. Land Conveyance Chairman Thomas Fabrizio was reluctant to support the sale of land when the corporation did not go into specifics on how the land would be used.

"The vagueness of not having a plan is a concern to me," said Fabrizio.

The matter was kept in committee.

WATER DAMAGE has caused numerous problems to the vacant Lincoln School including this collapsed ceiling in the basement.

SCHOOL SUPPLIES and equipment, including record players, tape recorders, computer equipment, film projectors, screens, typewriters, headphones and video tapes are strewn throughout many rooms inside the Lincoln School. Much of the equipment appeared to have been ruined by water damage. Some of the equipment and supplies also appeared to be outdated.

ceilings, floors and walls are rotted and paint peeled due to water infiltrating the brick building. The floors are littered with paint chips and other debris.

Mulvey said that water has leaked behind the walls because of holes in the gutters and has penetrated the 16-inch brick walls through the old lime mortar. Mulvey said the water damage has been occurring over the course of 20 years.

"When the water gets in behind the bricks and into the wood it freezes. The wood contracts when the water freezes and expands when it thaws pushing the mortar and bricks out," Mulvey explained.

In addition to the extreme water damage which includes severe damage to the walls and outside perimeter of the floors Mulvey said the school needs wiring, plumbing, heating and floor work and must be brought up to code for handicapped access and state energy guidelines. There are also pipes in the basement covered with asbestos and lead paint would have to be removed.

He said that possible additional damages to the floor are unknown.

Mulvey said one area that was in good condition is the roof framing although the roof is leaking in some spots. "The roof framing appears stable," he said.

In addition to damage to the building the Task Force discovered piles of audio/visual equipment and school supplies, including old books, most of which had been damaged or ruined.

There are also canned foods still stored there and a variety of kitchen equipment which appeared to be in good condition

There were also some automobile doors in a basement room.

The equipment and supplies at the Lincoln School have been put on the March 18 School Committee agenda.

Also touring the building were Fabrizio, Acting Superintendent of Schools Eugene Creedon, School Committee members Linda Stice and Ron Mariano, Ward 4 Neighborhood Association President Ernie Aristide, Lincoln-Hancock School parent representative Susan Wilson, Sterling Middle School parent representative Marilyn Lumaghini, student representative Nicole Sheffer of the Quincy Youth Council, and Richard O'Brien assistant principal of the Snug Harbor School.

"It's a shame this building was let go and is in the condition it is now," Fabrizio said. "It appears the building is structurally unsound. I'm not optimistic (about renovating)."

"It was a great building in its glory days," Creedon said. "It's difficult to come in here now and see it the way it's deteriorated."

"I can't believe the amount of equipment in here," said Lumaghini. "If this equipment was no good why wasn't it thrown out?"

Mariano said he believed the equipment was sent to the Lincoln School for repairs.

Lumaghini said if the city can't fund maintenance to keep the schools structurally safe she would like Quincy to borrow the money.

"I would like to see the city float a bond to help Jim Wilson's department keep all the school buildings safe. Our children are our most important asset," she said.

Parents have been curious about the possibility of reopening the school to alleviate crowded conditions at the Lincoln-Hancock School.

"My daughter is in the fourth grade at Lincoln-Hancock and she's been told by her teacher that she'll probably have to be bused to a middle school next year," said Susan Wilson. She noted the Lincoln school was close by and said, if possible, it should be renovated and reopened.

"The kids play in the lot (school grounds) and I live across the street. Do you think I'm upset?" Wilson said.

"There is a tremendous need for this classroom space," Mariano said. "I'm very disappointed in the condition of the walls and floors," he said.

Estimates to build additional classroom space at Lincoln-Hancock have been at a minimum of $300,000.

Mulvey said another alternative would be to tear down the existing building and replace it with a space building. He said a two-story 10,000 square foot building or one-story 17,000 square foot building could be built. He said he hasn't made a cost analysis but gave a rough estimate of $500,000 to $700,000 to build the new structures which would not have a basement.

Another idea Mulvey is studying is the feasibility of the city selling the property for residential use. He said the area could be sub-divided into at least six lots for single family homes or divided into six or seven lots for three-family town houses.

Raymondi and several neighbors were critical of past and present city officials they said were responsible for allowing the building to fall apart.

Sheffer said that what has happened in the past can't be changed and that it's important to move forward with a positive plan.

Sheets Optimistic On City- Private Partnership

The City Council voted 8-1 Monday night to support the partnership, which the mayor has called the "driving force" of his Quincy 2000 revitalization plan.

Councillor Timothy Cahill, who has voiced his disapproval of the mayor's plan in the past, was the only councillor to vote against the planning partnership/corporation.

"I think we've already got the tools (for downtown revitalization)," said Cahill. "I just feel that this could be done in-house with the administration that's here right now.

"It wasn't just chance that President's Place took place, and it wasn't just chance that Quincy Center Plaza took place. These are two examples of changes made under the present administration.

"I'm just bringing speculation of what could go wrong; I'm just questioning if this vehicle is the way to go. The city will benefit if there's more economic development in the city, and I will be glad to be proven wrong on this."

The rest of the council, however, disagreed with Cahill's objections.

"The Quincy plan is a good and important tool to start with," said Councillor Michael Cheney. "Its intent is great, it's a vehicle to move forward, and it should move forward quickly. The bottom line for us is jobs and tax revenue. I think the plan will have a dramatic impact on the quality of life in the City of Quincy."

Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro agreed.

"It's a wonderful opportunity for the City of Quincy," said DeCristofaro. "Formation of that group can do nothing but help the city."

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers said he would support the partnership "because a lot of businesses in the area have been lost, and that's why I'm in favor of this."

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien said he felt the establishment of the public-private planning partnership was vital to the chances of the overall success of the Quincy 2000 plan.

"The plan provides us with an impetus to do some of the right things, and we do need a partnership to get us moving," said Chretien. "Hopefully, it will set the stage for a lot of good things to happen."

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson called the partnership "an opportunity to strike the flint and really get the fire going," adding, "it's a marvelous plan."

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio said "I think safeguards are built in there (the partnership). This is a longtime plan to get things going in the downtown and other areas."

He also noted that support of the partnership does not commit the council to support any of the other components of the mayor's revitalization plan.

"This doesn't tie us into anything, and that's one of the reasons I'm going to support this."

City Solicitor Stephen McGrath expressed similar sentiments.

"All this is, is a vehicle," said McGrath. "It (the partnership) does not bind anyone to any other portion of the Quincy plan."

Council President Charles Phelan called the partnership "a group that will look at some long-range plans," adding that he has spoken to businessmen in the Wollaston area that support the petition.

Councillor Patricia Toland said the council should act immediately on the partnership, saying that putting it off would only hurt the city.

"Any wrinkles can be ironed out later," said Toland. "The time to do it is now.

"The future has got to be brighter than what we have now."

At a public hearing held earlier in the evening, 33 residents spoke in favor of the partnership and only one spoke against.

"I'm against this plan," said John Howard of 28 Ridgeway St. "I only want the duly-elected officials of the city making decisions, and I'm suspicious of any kind of shadow government that may be created."

However, the general consensus at the hearing was that although there were a few reservations, the other residents felt the partnership was an important tool in bringing revitalization to the city.

In addition to those who spoke, 11 residents were recorded in favor of the partnership and four against. There were also three letters read at the beginning of the hearing from residents who could not attend but were also in favor of the mayor's petition.

Three Ward 5 Write-In Candidates Elected To GOP State Committee

Three Quincy residents in Ward 5 were elected to the Republican State Committee by write-in votes in last Tuesday's presidential primary.

Write-in candidates elected were Gilda Knowles, 36 Sachem St.; David Tuerch, 1025 Hancock St.; and Ann Schoot-Miller, 24 Willow St.

All the Democratic candidates listed on ballot in each of the city's six wards were elected to the Democratic State Committee.

BFI Withdraws Plans For Recycling Center

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Responding to strong opposition from local residents, Browning-Ferris Industries, Inc. has withdrawn its application for a special permit to operate a recycling center at 88-102 and 106 Penn St.

BFI's withdrawal follows a March 2 public hearing that showed an overwhelming majority of South Quincy residents to be against the proposed center.

In a letter dated March 5 and addressed to City Council President Charles Phelan, both BFI and L. Antonelli Realty Trust (which owns the property) conceded that the residents' concerns must take priority.

"Although the project proposed to provide several mitigation measures in the area, primarily aimed at traffic control," the letter stated, "it is obvious that the neighborhood is badly frustrated by long-standing problems occasioned by the presence of many private homes within the industrial zone.

"Given the strong commitment to recycling that Quincy has shown, it is regrettable that such action must be taken, but it is important to recognize that the recycling plant was not the issue per se; it did, however, provide the forum, through the special permit process, to galvanize local frustrations at past overall development of the neighborhood."

Among the residents' major concerns regarding the plant were traffic problems, safety of children (because of the recycling trucks the center would have brought to neighboring streets), and pollution.

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, whose ward includes the Penn Street location, expressed satisfaction with BFI's decision.

"I'm very pleased on behalf of the community who was wholeheartedly against the idea as proposed," said Fabrizio. "It was a case where the community united together as a whole, and the city officials listened to and were impressed with their deliberations.

"I think what's important, too, is that this was not a referendum against the concept of recycling. It was made very clear that it was just a business too large and too intrusive into a residential neighborhood."

Fabrizio went on to say that even if the proposal had not been withdrawn, it would not have received his support.

Quincy Firm Has Contract To Remove Rock From Harbor Tunnel Projects

A Quincy-based marine contractor has a three-year, $14.4 million contract to dispose of rock removed from the Boston Harbor Project tunnels.

J.M. Cashman, Inc., will remove an estimated 14,000 tons of rock. "The stone can be used for a number of purposes," said Bruce Wood of J.M. Cashman. "But it will most likely be used as a road base or as gravel back fill."

The other half of the excavated rock will be used on Deer Island as back fill around building foundations and piping on the 210-acre construction site for the MWRA's new wastewater treatment plant.

Inn Withdraws Liquor License Suspension Appeal

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The Quincy Motel Corp., (Quincy Bay Inn), has withdrawn its appeal of a 30-day liquor license suspension and will begin serving the suspension Monday, March 23.

The Quincy License Board voted to suspend the license Jan. 28 after finding the motel in violation for serving intoxicated persons on Sept. 24, 1989.

Quincy Motel Corp. immediately filed an appeal with the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission.

Two 19-year-old Quincy men, Daniel Ward and Shaun Clancy, died in an automobile accident after leaving Quincy Bay Inn's Aquarius Lounge (now the Outer Limits Club) that evening.

The board voted 5-0 Tuesday to allow Quincy Motel Corp. to begin serving the suspension on March 23 for 30 consecutive days.

In a related matter, Quincy Motel Corp. vice president Kenan Nacar asked the board for permission to conduct two "all ages-no alcohol" concerts at the Outer Limits Club on April 3 and 4.

The board continued the hearing until March 31 to allow Nacar to meet with Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers.

"My initial reaction is that when the license is suspended I would be opposed to any other activity at the location," Ayers said.

Ayers told the board he wants to "open a line of communication" with Nacar and that he would want to hold neighborhood

RATE YOUR RISK

Cardiovascular disease, or CVD, is a silent killer. A person can have the disease without even being aware of it. Left untreated, CVD can result in stroke or heart attack. Not everyone has the same odds of developing the disease, however. People at the highest risk are those who smoke cigarettes or have high blood pressure or high cholesterol. Other risk factors include a family history of CVD, eating a diet high in fats and cholesterol, obesity, stress, lack of exercise, diabetes and advancing age. The more risk factors you have, the greater your odds of developing CVD and its potentially lethal consequences. To avoid CVD, know your risk factors, have regular check-ups, and take steps toward a healthier lifestyle.

P.S. In the word cardiovascular, "cardio" comes from the Greek word for heart, and "vascular" refers to blood vessels.

There are many steps you can take to help prevent the onset of cardiovascular disease. If you would like to learn what you can do to stay healthy and ward off the dangers of heart attacks, feel free to call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. If necessary, we will refer you t another medical professional. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24, in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospital.

True Grit

True Grit — John Wayne had it, make believe, in the movie.

Sean Barry has it in real life.

Last January, Sean, who hopes to someday stake out a career in journalism and/or maybe in the political field, lost a near-six year battle to save his right leg from cancer.

BARRY

When the doctors told him, finally, they would have to amputate, took the news and the decision like a trooper.

And that's not easy for a 27-year-old with a lot of energy, enthusiasm, one who likes to be active and has plans and goals for the future.

Sean was even able to kid about it by saying he would be ready for the surgery after one of his favorites from Barry's Deli, a honey ham sandwich with Swiss cheese on an onion roll.

And he had that sandwich the night before.

The following day was a long, long one. The surgery didn't take place until late in the day. It was a long time to lay there and think about it and wonder about his future.

But Sean got through that long day. His courage got him through it. His True Grit came through.

Sean is upbeat. No, "Why me?" He's looking to the future and to his goals.

Sean made his political debut as a School Committee candidate last fall. It was an impressive one, finishing seventh in a field of 11 candidates, just 29 or so votes shy of winning a nomination spot in the preliminary election.

He may soon be back in the political arena.

He is now "getting out and around." He goes to the Braintree Hospital three times a week for rehabilitation. And he is getting out to do a few errands.

This week he was planning to attend the School Committee meeting. And he's thinking of a possible second run next year.

Sean would like to thank a few people for their support, encouragement — and prayers — before, during, and after his hospital stay — and now.

He calls it: "When A City Becomes A Neighborhood."

By Sean Barry

On the advice of my father I attended college out-of-state.

This, said Dad, would expose me to different cultures and perspectives. He was right. After a few weeks of adjusting, the sleepy college town of Delaware, Ohio formed the cornerstone of my college experience at Ohio Westleyan University.

However, each break found me returning home to Quincy. Sure, Wollaston looked a little worn after each visit, but the familiarity of home made each sojourn a special event.

During the summer of 1986, while walking home from a summer internship, my right leg went numb. In a series of weeks with doctors poking and pinching, I found myself in a bed at Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston.

Little did I know that that would become my home away from home for the next six years. At least 19 operations, and 20 something stays later, I found myself facing the biggest challenge of my life. Losing most of my right leg to cancer meant major changes. Contemplating the future while "on-call" for surgery, little did I realize the machinations of a local newspaper would initiate a support system which transformed a bustling city of Quincy into a quaint New England neighborhood.

When I awoke from surgery, the cavalcade of phone calls, cards and visits began. Personal notes from Cong. Brian Donnelly, Senator Paul Harold and members of their staffs, a visit from Councillor Peter Kolson and his family and calls and cards from previous political adversaries, Peg King and Dan Raymondi, reaffirmed my belief that despite national trends, politics is highlighted by the noble intentions of decent people.

There were cards and flowers from friends and relatives; and a supportive family at bedside.

There were handmade cards and neatly printed letters from students at St. Ann's School and the Charles A. Bernazzani School. Books. Baked goods. Still more cards from residents of senior housing where I had campaigned vigorously. Notes from voters prompting memories of my first political effort.

Visits from Fr. Jack Ahern of St. Ann's Parish, prayer cards and the prayers of a multitude of faiths certainly sped my recovery and warmed my heart.

Notes from Mrs. Kathy Creedon, once Miss Summers, my first grade teacher. Mrs. Patricia Norton, my second grade teacher, Charlie Schuetz, my high school principal. A visit from Edith Perry, the drama teacher and former vice-principal. at St. Ann's School.

Kind words from the Quincy Citizens Association and Wollaston Park Association via Dorothy Kelly. A visit from Mrs. Sheila McIntyre.

I had amassed an enormous support system. Suddenly during my return home traveling through Quincy had an even more personal effect. This sprawling city had closed-in and suddenly took on the image of the traditional American small town.

Thank you, Mr. Bosworth. With a few inches of space and the stroke of your pen, the Sunbeams column shook loose the inner-strength we Americans often draw upon when one of our own needs a boost.

Thank you, Quincy, for the compassion and encouragement. To this ailing neighbor you drew close to lend a much appreciated boost.

JAMES (PETE) RICCIUTI, a familiar and powerful City Hall figure in the administrations of Mayors James McIntyre, Walter Hannon and Arthur Tobin, is "doing fine" after undergoing triple by-pass surgery Friday at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

RICCIUTI

Ricciuti served as mayoral executive secretary, public works commissioner and purchasing agent.

If you'd like to send a card the address is:

A speedy recovery, Pete.

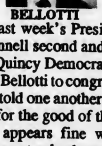
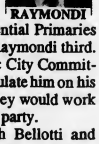
IF YOU'RE LOOKING for a political feud between Mike Bellotti and Dan Raymondi, you might as well stop looking. There apparently isn't going to be one.



BELLOTTI



RAYMONDI

Bellotti won the vacant Democratic State Committeeman seat in last week's Presidential Primaries with William O'Connell second and Raymondi third. Raymondi, who is Quincy Democratic City Committee Chairman called Bellotti to congratulate him on his victory and the pair told one another they would work together in Quincy for the good of the party.

And everything appears fine with Bellotti and O'Connell. The latter not only showed up at Bellotti's victory party at Coddington's in Quincy election night but did the emcee honors introducing Bellotti to the crowd.

Incidentally, if you're a little confused by a report that O'Connell plans to move to Braintree be unconfused: he already lives in Braintree and ran out of Braintree for the state committee seat.

AND DON'T TAKE any stock in the speculation that Bellotti is eyeing the senatorial seat held by Paul Harold.

Bellotti assured Harold he has no such plans and said: "If I was thinking of running for anything else, why not think governor?"

(But, he isn't thinking that either.)

A 'Night Of Health' At Lincoln-Hancock School

Lincoln-Hancock Community School recently held a "Night of Health" for parents, teachers and students.

The planning team for the event was Principal Dennis Carini; Hank Logan, assistant principal; Eve Powell, Lincoln-Hancock School teacher; and Jane Maffie-Lee, clinical director, Manet Health Center.

The evening featured three parent workshops: "Parenting in the '90s", "Drug Education" and Speaking With Your Children About Sexual Issues." The students enjoyed their own anti-drug workshop presented by the up-and-coming musical group, "Ivory Soul."

In addition to the workshops, there were free blood pressure and cholesterol checks, and information booths on various health issues: AIDS education, alcohol education, dental care, nutrition, skin care, smoking cessation, poison prevention and women's health screening.

Guest presenters of the parent workshops were Janet Powell, coordinator of guidance and psychology, Quincy public schools; Georgina Valante, R.N. and health educator, Quincy public schools; Jane Maffie-Lee, R.N., Manet Health Center; and Mark Samuelson, registered pharmacists and health educator, South Shore Hospital.

Working at the information booths were Mary Jane Callahan, R.N., school nurse; Judy Shultz, lab supervisor; Linda Holbrook, L.P.N., and Jane Maffie-Lee, R.N., of Manet Health Center; Ann Walsh of Prevention Resources; and Mark Samuelson, pharmacist, South Shore Hospital.

Also assisting in the evening were Drug Abuse Resistance Education (D.A.R.E.) Officer Bob Edgar, Quincy Police Dept.; Joseph Murphy, Chris Hill, Laura Brailele and Erin Duggan, students from North Quincy High School; Maureen Duggan and Lois Blowers, teachers at the Lincoln Hancock School; and Carol Shiffer, physical therapist, Quincy public schools.

Healthy snacks were provided by the Culinary Arts Department, Center for Technical Education, and Eve Powell's third grade class.

The evening was made possible through a Comprehensive Health and Human Resources Grant awarded to Eve Powell, vice chairman, Superintendent's Health Advisory Council, and Hank Logan, assistant principal, Lincoln Hancock.

The Spider of Fortune

When Mark Twain was editor of a newspaper in Missouri, one reader wrote in saying he had found a spider in his paper. The man wanted to know if the spider meant good luck or bad luck.

Twain wrote back: "Finding a spider in your paper was neither good luck nor bad luck for you. The spider was merely looking over our paper to see which merchant is not advertising so that he can go to that store, spin his web across the door and lead a life of undisturbed peace ever afterward."

Moral: The spider of fortune lives everywhere. Keep him from your door by advertising regularly in The Quincy Sun.

Nearing completion at the yard were two large yachts, a 53-footer for Charles S. Payson, New York sports fisherman, and a 58-footer for the Fuller family of Hartford, Conn.

NOICE ORDINANCE

City Council President William W. Jenness introduced an anti-noise ordinance that would restrict the playing of radios, phonographs and musical instruments in the city.

"I am having this order introduced because of the many requests I have received asking that some action be taken to stop this nuisance," he said.

The ordinance would prohibit the playing of those devices "in such a manner as to be plainly audible at a distance of 100 feet from the building or structure in which it is located."

Sue's Yogurt Scalloped Newburg

With our daughter Sue's husband Rob watching his fat grams, she came up with a delicious scallop dish last week. We tried it and it was so creamy, you wouldn't believe she used yogurt. It's also a great lenten idea. Make sure you use plain yogurt and not the non-fat kind (it waters it down).

SUE'S YOGURT SCALLOPED NEWBURG

1 Lb scallops
8 oz plain yogurt
salt and pepper to taste
a tsp of freshly chopped parsley
1 Tbsp cooking sherry
the juice of 1 lemon
Dijon Mustard (or favorite mustard)
Corn flake crumbs for topping

In a slightly greased scallop dish, place the scallops, then add the rest of the ingredients blending well (except the corn flake crumbs). Top with the crumbs and bake in a 350 degree oven for about 25 minutes. Serve hot over rice or noodles. When I prepared them, I put each of them in separate casserole dishes, but one dish is fine.

You can also substitute the scallops with shrimp, haddock or a favorite fish.

This fat gram thing really works, our son-in-law is looking great!

Continental Cablevision Presents $13,505 Franchise Payment

Continental Cablevision General Manager Stephen J. Farquhar recently presented a check for $13,505.50 to Mayor James Sheets as the cable operator's annual franchise payment to the city for 1991.

The payment represents 50 cents for each of Continental's 27,011 customers as of Dec. 31, 1991.

Together with the franchise payment, Farquhar delivered an annual report on Continental's accomplishments in Quincy during 1991.

"During 1991, Continental Cablevision made significant advances in customer service, programming and community service," said Farquhar, "and we're committed to building on those accomplishments in 1992."

Farquhar noted that Continental had a net increase of 452 cable customers in Quincy during 1991, despite the economic recession and decline of growth in new housing.

"More than 75 percent of local households subscribe to our service, which we feel is a testament to Continental's strong programming lineup, quality customer service and reasonable rates."

In the area of customer service, Farquhar cited the expansion of telephone service hours to 9:30 p.m. seven days a week; a decline to an all-time low in the number of repair requests and visits despite the all-time high subscriber numbers; same-day resolution of most service problems; and 24-hour-a-day computerized ordering capability for pay-per-view movies.

Farquhar also noted technical and programming advances, such as 24-hour-a-day computerized ordering capability for pay-per-view movies.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

We all know that yesterday's tomorrow is now today and tomorrow will make today another yesterday. Once tomorrow comes, today will be forever gone ... There is no substitute, no replacement.

Common sense tells us the uncertainties of fate indicate tomorrow may be too late to tackle the job we haven't done ... too late to write a letter ... too late to make a visit ... you rarely regret when you "take the time."... You can often regret it when you "take your time."

It is a tragic truth that time runs out for some who really meant to "discuss pre-arrangements" - but "never got around to it." Consequently, loved ones are confronted with needless indecision and confusion when calm and comfort are needed most. In this too, doesn't it make sense to "take the time" - instead of "taking your time?"

Speaking of time, the right time is discuss or plan "pre-arrangements" is head of time. It saves worrisome, confusing and sorrowful situation for loved ones at a difficult time. That is why "our time is our time" ... anytime you wish for such discussion. Any discussion is in the strictest of confidence and is under no obligation ...

Vehicle Theft A Big Problem

Over 1 million vehicles -- cars, trucks, buses, motorcycles and trailers -- are stolen every year.

In 1983, there were 1.2 million thefts of contents and almost 1.3 million thefts of accessories from motor vehicles.

The recovery rate for stolen motor vehicles dropped from 90% in the 1960's to approximately 54% in the early 1980's.

In the time it takes you to read this pamphlet, nine cars will be stolen!

Don't make it easy for professional thieves or joyriders to take your wheels. Take these steps to protect any vehicle.

• Lock it and pocket the key when you leave for a minute or several hours. Close windows all the way and make sure the trunk is locked.

• Control your keys. Never leave an identification tag on your key ring. If your keys are lost or stolen, this could help a thief locate your car and burglarize your home.

• Don't leave your registration inside your vehicle, but carry it with you. Important identification paper, or credit cards should never be left in a glove compartment.

• Keep everything of value that you can in your trunk. If you do leave packages, clothing, or other articles in the car, make sure they're out of sight or covered.

• Park in well-lighted and busy areas. Avoid leaving your vehicle in unattended parking lots for long periods of time. If you park in a lot where you must leave the key, leave the ignition key only.

• When buying a car, ask about anti-theft options, such as steering column locks, alarms, switches that interrupt the fuel or electronic systems, and locks for tape decks, batteries and gas tanks. Many insurance companies offer reduced rates to owners who install security devices.

• Keep your car's VIN (Vehicle Identification Number) and a complete description in a safe place at home. Since 1969, the federal government has required manufacturers to engrave a unique number, the VIN, on all passenger cars in one visible and several hidden locations. One VIN is engraved on a metal plate on the dashboards near the windshield. VINs are registered with the FBI's computerized National Crime Information Center.,

QCAP Receives $2,800 From State Employees

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., has received charitable contributions totalling over $2,800 from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Employees Campaign (COMEC) over the past year.

In the COMEC program, state employees make pledges through a payroll deduction plan and pick charitable organizations to receive their contributions.

QCAP will use the contributions to support its services for individuals and families in need.

Rosemary Wahlberg, executive director of QCAP, said: "The generosity of state workers is especially appreciated at this point. We are seeing so many needy families hurt by unemployment and cutbacks in social programs. These contributions will go toward helping these people through hard times."

QCAP services include the emergency food center, fuel assistance, housing counseling, child care resource and referral, basic education and job training, weatherization, and the HeadStart Program.

Quincy, North Bring Back N.E. Medals

Quincy and North Quincy brought home medals from the New England Track and Field Championships at Brown University.

Quincy's Chris Walker, who had an outstanding year in the high jump, did not win a medal in his specialty, but did win one in the 55-meter hurdles.

Walker only cleared 6'2" in the high jump and failed to advance any further, finishing out of the scoring, but came back to finish a close third in the hurdles. The finishing judges conferred for almost 20 minutes going over the photo finish.

Walker missed first place by .03 seconds and second place by .01 seconds.

"His start is not his strong point," said coach Jack Green, "but Chris comes on strong at the finish. He should be better in the 110-meter hurdles outdoors this spring."

Green and trainer Kevin Enos accompanied Walker to the meet.

North Quincy's Suzanne Lewis continued her front running, taking second place behind Spaulding H.S. (Rochester, N.H.) speedster Danuyelle Wood in the two-mile.

Several Mass. girls passed up the meet including Brockton's Deirdre Milligan and Lexington's Maria Berger, both of whom Lewis had hoped to compete against again. Both beat Lewis in a close finish in the all-state meet.

With Wood out to a huge lead (she won in a meet record 10:57.7), Lewis chose to control the pack from the front for most of the race with Belmont's Alexa Delaney in close pursuit. Delaney surged ahead with 800 meters to go, but Lewis turned it on in the final 400 to finish in 11:33.2. Delaney took third in 11:37.8.

North coach Jeff Hennessy was happy for his star's performance, but disappointed in the lack of competitors.

"Suzanne did something different for a change--she got in front but stayed relaxed and showed some good leg speed," he said. "This will come in handy for the big spring meets. It's too bad Milligan and Berger were no-shows, it would have spiced things up a bit."

North's 4x200 relay teams didn't fare as well. The boys' team of Mark Sinclair, Tony Licciardi, Mike Yee and John O'Donnell finished ninth and the girls' team of Susanne Hamilton, Katy Deady, Ilana Cobban and Amy Wong finished 12th.

--TOM SULLIVAN

Cheney Blocked In Attempt To Disband Consolidation Committee

Councillor Michael Cheney was defeated Monday night in his attempt to disband a recently formed consolidation committee which has been studying ways to consolidate city and school department offices.

Cheney introduced a resolution at the City Council meeting asking the council to disband the committee because it had been violating the state's Open Meeting Law by meeting in private.

"If the committee continues to exist in its present form, then the issues of public trust, disclosure and fair government practices will always be in question," the resolution said.

The consolidation committee had been formed by Council President Charles Phelan, Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien and two other councillors.

When Phelan ruled Cheney's resolution as being out of order, Cheney pointed out that a majority vote of the council was necessary to uphold the president's decision.

The council voted 6-3 in support of Phelan, with Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro and Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio siding with Cheney.

Phelan said that according to the bylaws, the council president has sole authority over appointing council committees, and thus only the president has the authority to dissolve them.

Chretien for his part said in a written statement that he personally took responsibility for the accidental violation of the Open Meeting Law.

"It was my mistaken understanding that four or less city councillors could meet in private without violating the Open Meeting Law," said Chretien. "It takes five councillors to constitute a quorum of our nine-member city council, so essentially four councillors are unable to set policy.

"I made a clear but unintentional mistake in scheduling private meetings and without making a public announcement 48 hours in advance. This error was mine alone, not the council president's and not that of any other city councillor.

"I agree with the spirit of the Open Meeting Law and pledge to comply with it in the future."

At a School Committee meeting last week, School Committeeman Daniel Raymondi had charged that the consolidation committee was acting in violation of the Open Meeting Law. District Attorney William Delahunt and City Solicitor Stephen McGrath subsequently declared that this was indeed the case.

Sheets Hopes For No-Layoffs Budget increasing.

For example, the city's pension fund will rise approximately $1 million to $11 million. The mayor noted the entire $11 million will not be spent next year. The increase is needed so that the city can "catch up" to fully fund its pension liability, he said.

The cost to pay the health insurance premiums for municipal employees in Quincy will likely climb $1.5 million, Sheets said.

In addition, the city will pay an additional $445,000 on debt service because of the $7 million bond issue for the West Quincy sewer interceptor project. Quincy will also undergo a $200,000 property revaluation process. The process is mandated by the state every three years.

On the plus side, Sheets noted the city will realize some substantial savings in FY 93.

A new ordinance which changes the city's health care program for retired Quincy workers will save $900,000 next year. Under the new program, retirees age 65 and over will essentially receive the same health coverage from Medicare and Medex as Blue Cross/Blue Shield but at a reduced cost for Quincy.

In addition, the mayor anticipates an increase of $1 million in new growth and $1.5 million in additional property taxes under Prop 2 1/2. The city will also receive $2.3 million from the MWRA for hosting the authority's interim sludge processing facility in Quincy Point.

Quincy's apparent stable fiscal future could be a signal of an improving state and local economy. Sheets, who has confronted the most fiscally troublesome times in recent memory, said the FY93 budget is shaping up to be the best since taking office in 1990.

"This is the best of the three (budgets). I think we've bottom out and I'm optimistic about FY 94," he said.

After the budget is submitted to the council, councillors have 45 days to vote on it.

Unclaimed Money List To Appear In Sun March 26

State Treasurer Joseph Malone recently released the names of over 31,000 individuals and businesses that are due more than $50 million from abandoned accounts.

Under the state's Unclaimed Money Law, bank accounts, insurance proceeds, payroll checks, stock certificates and the like that have been inactive for at least five years are deemed abandoned. All such accounts must be reported to the treasury, which then attempts to notify the rightful owners or legal heirs.

Names of Quincy residents and businesses who are on the list will appear in the March, 26th issue of The Quincy Sun.

"Currently, there are over $50 million in unclaimed accounts. We will make every effort, using every means at our disposal, to make sure that this money is returned. This money belongs to these people and I want them to have it," Malone said.

The treasurer noted one important aspect of the Unclaimed Money Law which requires that until claimed, all funds are kept in the state's general fund where they are invested for the benefit of all Massachusetts residents and taxpayers.

Coffee, Pastry Shop Planned At T-Station

The Quincy License Board has continued, for one week, a hearing regarding a proposed takeover of the Orient Express Chinese takeout restaurant at the Quincy Center MBTA station.

New owners Mr. and Mrs. George Tsolirides want to replace the Chinese restaurant with a coffee and pastry shop called Express Coffee.

However, Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue wants to make sure the facility is cleaned up before the license is transferred.

"Numerous things need to be brought up to code," Gallahue said. "This is the time to make sure it gets done."

The board's policy is to review a restaurant when it applies for a license transfer.

Gallahue and Building Inspector Matt Mulvey suggested to the new owners that they meet with officials from their landlord - the MBTA since the T may be responsible for some of the upgrades.

Currently ventilation, plumbing, heating and electrical work needs to be done.

Tsolirides said he has every intention of getting the facility back in proper condition.

meetings on any out of the ordinary events at the motel.

Ayers said he was unaware that Quincy Motel Corp. was withdrawing its appeal. The motel's hearing with the ABCC had been scheduled for today (Thursday).

"Similar setups in Randolph (all ages dances) have had a lot of problems," said Police Chief Francis Mullen. "I have a shortage of manpower as it is."

Nacar asked the board if he could change his request from all ages to age 18 and over to eliminate the possibility of problems with teenagers.

4 "All Ages' Concerts Approved At Nightclub

Footprints Nightclub in Quincy Center has received permission to conduct four "all ages" concerts but Police Chief Francis Mullen warned that he will recommend they be canceled if there are any problems.

Owner John Blythe asked the board to license three Sunday afternoon shows on March 22, 29 and April 5 and one Friday evening show March 27 from 6-10 p.m. co-sponsored by Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

The concerts will feature local artists including Steve Sweeney of Dorchester, Kerry Anderson of Milton and the group Bullwinkle, Blythe said.

"My understanding is that when you came before the board originally (to open the club) it was for adults only," said board chairman John Gillis.

Blythe told the board there would not be dancing but patrons would be seated like at the movies.

"I'm willing to give it a try but if there are any problems I'll recommend we discontinue it," Mullen said.

"If there were problems I would discontinue it myself," Blythe said.

ConCom To Address Environmental Impact Of N.Q. Intersection Project

The Quincy Conservation Commission will meet to address the environmental impact of the reconstruction of the Quincy Shore Dr.--East Squantum St. intersection Wednesday, March 25 at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chambers, City Hall.

The City is therefore soliciting community inputs in identifying community needs and proposals for its Fiscal Year 1992-93 CDBG Program.

CDBG funds can be used to carry out eligible activities that benefit low and moderate income people, address slums and blight conditions, or meet an urgent community need. These activities may include acquisition by non-profit entity for any public purpose, public facilities and improvements, demolition, public services, removal of architectural barriers, rehabilitation and preservation, special economic development activities, and planning activities. There are CDBG limitations on expenditures for certain activities.

Request for proposal packages can be obtained from the Department of Planning and Community Development (PCD), City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA 02169 or by calling (617) 376-1362. Proposals must be received by the PCD no later than April 10, 1992.

Park, Recreation Board Meeting On Ballfield Permits Wednesday

The Quincy Park and Recreation Board and Park Department officials conducted the annual managers and coaches meeting on the use of municipal ballfields for the 1992 season Wednesday, March 18 at 7:30 p.m. at the Park and Recreation Complex meeting room, 100 Southern Artery, Merrymount Park.

The purpose of the meeting was to resolve any duplication of requests preceding the Monday, April 6 meeting when Park and Recreation board members approve applications presented by baseball and softball leagues and teams.

Also discussed were the utilization of field by adult softball teams and the problems created for neighboring property owners by undiscriminating parking, debris and lack of compliance with the rules and regulations governing the use of public park, playground and beach areas.

Raymond C. Cattaneo, executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments, noted the increasing interest in adult softball, youth soccer programs and the growing number of girls and womens leagues that have developed over the past number of years.

All leagues must be represented at the meeting in order to assure a fair assessment of the permits that will be issued this season.

Bertucci's Goal Gives Squirt B's Win

John Bertucci's goal with 3:30 left in the game gave Quincy's Squirt B hockey team a 1-0 victory over Framingham. The team is sponsored by Quincy Cable.

John Barron and Chad Fitzpatrick assisted on the goal and goalie Jeff Langille recorded the shutout.

Steve Ford, Brian Nolan, Paul Markarian, Billy Griffin and Sean Slattery played strong defense and Ryan Barrett, Mike Welch, Joey Ardagna, Kevin Regan, Sean Haidul and Pat Kenney played well on the forward lines.

The First Night Committee voted to hold the New Year's Eve celebration beginning this year. Festivities will take place in various Quincy Center locations both indoors and outdoors.

The Committee is soliciting proposals for activities including music, mime/movement, dance, theatre, puppetry, story telling, poetry, film, video, visual/environmental interdisciplinary and performance arts.

For information on proposal guidelines contact general chairman Mike Cheney, 471-1493 or consultant George White, 786-7175. Proposals may be mailed to "First Night," Quincy City Council Office, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169.

"The First Night call to artists is one of the first and most important areas. We look forward to receiving their proposals," Cheney said.

Responds To QCA Letter

Partnership Will Not Usurp Powers Of City Boards, Sheets Says

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The public-private planning partnership proposed to oversee development in Quincy Center would not usurp the powers of city boards and would lack the authority to change zoning laws, Mayor James Sheets told a local citizens activist group.

In a letter to Quincy Citizens Association President Arthur Chandler. Sheets assured that the home rule petition which would create the partnership "does not change or usurp the powers or authority of the City Council, Planning Board, Zoning Board of Appeals, or any other municipal board or commission.

"The partnership has no authority or power to change zoning laws. . . The power of the City Council, in the area of Zoning Law, remains absolutely unchanged. It has never been the intend to alter any of the powers of the City Council."

The mayor's letter was written in response to a letter written by Chandler last week. In his letter, Chandler noted some of the concerns of the QCA regarding the partnership.

The partnership petition was approved by the council Monday. The state legislature and Gov. Weld must approve it before it can be enacted.

In his own letter, Sheets attempted to set the record straight on some other issues relative to the partnership and downtown revitalization, including the power of eminent domain which he said the council will retain.

In addition, the mayor said he does not support the creation of a Redevelopment Authority or Urban Renewal Authority. He also said the petition "neither proposes nor suggests that a Design Review Board will be created to substitute the present Historic District Commission."

Sheets said the partnership could choose to create a DRB to insure retail and commercial projects comply with the recommendations of the Historic Review Board.

The mayor stated his administration does not propose to emulate Williamsburg, Virginia, as a "bona fide" tourist attraction.

Instead, the mayor said the city will continue the Quincy historical lighting program south to Hancock St. and into the vicinity around the library, McIntyre Mall and the Hancock Cemetery late this summer. He also said his administration plans to add lights in the Adams Academy area as well as in Wollaston and North Quincy next summer.

Sheets told Chandler his administration has sought and consulted with outside professional experts in the redevelopment of downtown shopping areas. He noted meetings with the developer of Cape Cod Mall and the former mayor of Norwalk, Conn., voted the "Most Livable City in the U.S."

Although the Quincy partnership plan has been compared to a revitalization effort in Lowell, Sheets said, "Quincy is not patterning its future after Lowell or any other city....Quincy is Quincy--unique--and cannot, in reality, be patterned after any other city."

Furthermore, the mayor said the partnership petition has "absolutely nothing to do with the Hancock Parking area. In addition, no specific construction project is envisioned for the Hancock Parking area at this time. It is listed only as a developable parcel."

He also said the partnership has nothing do with an "enterprise zone." The mayor said the petition allows both Wollaston and North Quincy to participate if they should choose to do so. "Both business associations have received information about and have extensively endorsed the partnership creation," Sheets said.

As for free parking, the mayor said to remove the parking meters "once the partnership is operational and the promotion of retail in Downtown Quincy begins."

Meters raise $400,000 in parking revenues annually. "Once the revitalization of downtown begins, I hope that the economic benefits of that will help us to recapture the $400,000 in lost revenue from the removal of paid parking."

Finally, the mayor said the partnership will have eight roles and responsibilities: market retail; work with the mayor and council to determine design standards; start evaluating the Old Colony railroad station and crossway-connector plans; begin creating a master plan for development in Downtown Quincy; coordinate the city's lighting history program; set up small business low-interest or no-interest loan programs; commission pedestrian flow and vehicular parking studies; and recommend action on parking meters.

For Outstanding Community Service

Frank Kearns Honored As Quincy Sun's Citizen Of Year

Frank J. Kearns, 79, of Quincy, a community activist for the city's elderly, homeless, lonely, needy and poor for 15 years, was honored Sunday as The Quincy Sun 1991 "Citizen of the Year."

The seventh annual award was presented at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center attended by approximately 100 family members, friends, city officials and invited guests.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or for a special achievement.

Other Photos Pages 10-11

Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth presented Kearns, who has made community service a "second career" since his retirement as a postal clerk in 1977, with a clock plaque as the Sun's 1991 "Citizen of the Year."

"Frank is a community activist and advocate for the city's elderly, homeless, lonely, needy and poor. And it was for this community service that he was nominated by Fr. John Ahern of St. Ann's Church in Wollaston," Bosworth said.

Reading the inscription on the plaque, Bosworth said Kearns is a "dedicated activist and advocate for any and all in need." He also pointed out the clock symbolizes the time Kearns has given to the community and "how you help make the community tick."

When Kearns retired, he did not want to sit idle.

Donnelly Decision Triggers Scramble

BRIAN DONNELLY
Stepping Down

PAUL HAROLD Definite Candidate

JAMES SHEETS
Seriously Considering

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Congressman Brian Donnelly's surprise announcement Tuesday that he will not seek re-election this year triggered an immediate chain reaction expected to turn the local political front virtually upside-down.

Sen. Paul Harold (D-Quincy) said he definitely is a candidate for the 11th Congressional seat held by Donnelly the last 14 years. "I will make an official announcement by the end of this week," Harold told the Sun Tuesday afternoon.

Mayor James Sheets, who is "seriously considering" a run for Donnelly's seat, is expected to make his decision by the end of the week. If the mayor enters the race, it would be his second run for Congress.

Harold, who has served in the State Senate 14 years, said, "It would be a natural progression to serve in Congress. I would be able to continue my efforts in the areas of crime, environment, transportation and housing among other issues."

In 1978, Donnelly defeated Sheets for an open seat after former Cong. James Burke stepped down. The mayor said being a congressman has "always been one of my dreams." However, one factor that may keep him out of the race is his obligation to Quincy citizens as its mayor, he said.

"I simply have to sit down and think about this situation before I make a decision," he said.

With Harold's seat opening up, State Rep. Michael Morrissey (D-Quincy) said Tuesday he will likely run for Harold's seat which comprises Quincy, Braintree, Avon and Holbrook. "If Paul makes a decision to run for Congress then I will probably run for his State Senate seat," Morrissey said.

Others who may join the race for Harold's seat include State Rep. Steve Tobin, City Councillor Michael Cheney, former councillor and present City Solicitor Stephen McGrath; and Neil Sullivan, first deputy Secretary of State and a vice chairman of the Quincy Democratic City Committee. Braintree State Rep. Suzanne Bump is also considered a potential candidate.

Task Force Votes To Raze Lincoln School

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The Lincoln School Task Force voted unanimously Monday to recommend that the school be torn down.

The Task Force will present its recommendation to the School Committee April 1.

City Building Inspector Matt Mulvey has estimated that it would cost between $220,000 and $250,000 to demolish the 100-year-old school.

The issue which would result from demolishing the building is "What to do with the property?" said School Committeeman and Task Force chairman Dan Raymondi.

One option would be to sub-divide and sell the land for development as single family homes or three-family town houses. The property is assessed at $628,000.

Raymondi said the Task Force wants any proceeds from the sale of the property to go towards easing overcrowding at the Lincoln-Hancock and Bernazzani elementary schools.

Another option would be to build a new school on the site which would cost between $800,000 and $1 million, Raymondi estimated.

To renovate the existing building would cost from $1.4 to $1.7 million at least, Mulvey estimated.

The Task Force recently toured the school along with other concerned residents and city officials.

Raymondi said the Task Force reluctantly decided demolition was the only feasible course of action.

"This was not an easy decision because of the feelings of the neighborhood and people who attended the school," Raymondi said. "But after walking through the building and seeing its present condition, the committee (Task Force) felt it should come down. It is beyond repair."

6 A.M. Opening For W. Quincy Cafe

The Quincy License Board voted to allow the Old Railroad Cafe, 273 Willard St., to open at 6 a.m. instead of 10 a.m. on a three-month trial basis.

Restaurant owner Antonis Katsakis told the board he hopes to take advantage of early morning traffic to sell coffee and takeout items.

Ward 4 City Councillor Tom Fabrizio said a "no left turn" sign would prohibit northbound cars from legally entering the Old Railroad parking lot. Fabrizio said cars may park on the street illegally or could cause traffic problems by ignoring the sign.

Fabrizio praised Katsakis and his business however. "He and his wife have been good neighbors."

'Junk Car Alley' License Board Target

The Quincy License Board has taken aim at cleaning up a Southwest Quincy street neighbors call "Junk Car Alley."

The board is targeting the Liberty Street block between Quincy Street and Brook Road. The commercial area, crowded by cars and trucks and interspersed by rundown buildings, is set among a residential neighborhood.

A hearing regarding possible license violations by a used car repair shop, D.W. Tarbox, II & Sons, 85 Liberty St., has spurred the board to look at the entire area.

Ward 4 City Councillor Tom Fabrizio said he would have other businesses in the area called before the board to crack down on license violations.

During the hearing neighbors complained about cars parked on the sidewalk, trucks blocking the street and sidewalks, junk cars in the area, cars parked the wrong way on the street and truck traffic.

"The cars parked on the sidewalk do not belong to me," said owner David Tarbox. "I think the neighbors are confusing me with Harbor Motors. Our cars are always in the lot and never on the street."

Harbor Engine Co., 97 Liberty St. also repairs cars.

Police Chief Francis Mullen told the board he recently sent an officer to investigate the 85 Liberty St. site. The officer took photographs which showed 13 cars parked neatly in the Tarbox lot. The officer's report also said there were no debris on the lot.

"There is no question about congestion," Mullen said.

MWRA To Hold Two Hearings On FY93 Sewer, Water Bills

Quincy residents and officials angered by rising sewer and water charges will have a chance to air their gripes to the MWRA next month.

The Authority will hold two public hearings in April to seek comments and feedback from elected officials, residents, representatives of industries and other interested parties concerning the MWRA's FY 93 budget, including wholesale water and sewer charges.

The hearing dates and locations are:

•Monday, April 6 at 7 p.m., at the Somerville Community Service Center (formerly the Western Junior High School), 167 Holland St., Somerville.

•Tuesday, April 7 at 7 p.m., Norwood Town Hall, Memorial Hall, 566 Washington St.

For more information regarding either hearing, call Len Cawley at 617-241-6057.

Quincy is one of 43 communities which receives water and sewer service from the MWRA. Another 17 communities in the MWRA district are water customers only.

According to MWRA Media Relations Officer Pat Baker, the projected average increase for combined water and sewer service in the MWRA district for FY 93 is 36 percent.

In Quincy, the combined charge is projected to rise 38.4 percent. The water charge is projected to rise 5.2 percent while the sewer charge is projected to soar 49.7 percent in Quincy.

The sewer charges are rising dramatically in Quincy and many other MWRA communities primarily because sewer customers are footing most of the cost of $6.1 billion Boston Harbor cleanup project.

For example, Quincy's sewer charge is projected to climb $3,630,129 next year, from $7,309,873 in FY 92 to $10,940,001 in FY 93.

The water charge in Quincy is expected to jump to $2,620,849 next year compared to $2,491,409, a difference of $129,440.

Combined, the city's water and sewer charges will likely rise $3,759,569, from $9,801,281 in FY92 to $13,568,851 next fiscal year.

Other communities in the district also face skyrocketing sewer charges. In neighboring Weymouth, the sewer charge is projected to jump 43.8 percent or $2,009,515. The FY 92 sewer charge was $4,589,017 and the FY93 sewer charge projection is $6,598,532.

MWRA wholesale rate charges will generally account for about 60 percent of local water and sewer bills received by consumers. They reflect MWRA charges and the costs of operating municipal waterworks and sewer systems, Baker said.

New charges will take effect July 1.

WARD 2 CIVIC Association President Mike Marshall presents a $300 check to Michelle Lydon, chairperson of the Collins Rest-a-While on Southern Artery, to help restore the park. Officials say $60,000 is needed to rebuild the site. Quincy Park Improvement Committee will hold an auction Monday, April 6 at the Quincy American Legion Post 95 to help raise money.

Fire Dept., Coast Guard Rescue 4 Boys From Town River

The Quincy Fire Department and the Coast Guard combined to rescue four Germantown boys who were adrift on a raft on Town River in freezing temperatures Saturday.

The Germantown and Quincy Point Fire Dept. rescue teams were alerted at about 4:20 p.m. Saturday to a report of four boys drifting on a raft in Town River.

The Fire Dept. notified the Coast Guard Station at Point Allerton, Hull, and launched the rescue boat. The boys eventually drifted under a pier at Proctor & Gamble on the Fore River where they abandoned the raft and clung to the pier pilings.

Firefighter Al Julian lowered Lt. Tim Pettinelli by rope to be with the boys and make sure they were safe until help arrived. Moments later a Coast Guard cutter arrived and the boys were taken aboard and brought ashore.

Paramedics examined the boys who were "scared stiff and freezing," according to Deputy Chief Joseph Walsh. The four boys, John Steinberg, 12, George Sanchez, 11, Tom Brown, 9, and John Naramn, 8, all of Taffrail Road, were driven home by Quincy Police following the 45-minute episode.

Health Code Violations Delay Coffee Shop License

The licensing of a coffee and sandwich shop at the Quincy Center MBTA Station has been delayed for at least two more weeks until health code violations are corrected and a meeting with police is held.

The License Board continued, for two more weeks, the hearing regarding Express Coffee Shop which will take the place of Orient Express which serves Chinese food.

The new business will focus on selling coffee, baked goods, cold cuts and sandwiches, said Thomas Largey, attorney for the applicants George and Gail Tsolirides.

George Tsolirides told the board he will cut the seating capacity from 40 to 18.

Health Inspector Jane Gallahue said there were 14 violations found during a recent inspection including broken exhaust fans in the restrooms, broken freezer door, unshielded lighting, rusty food racks, wooden food racks, and dirty walls, ceiling and floor.

"We want these corrected," Gallahue said.

Police Chief Francis Mullen said he wants the applicants to meet with the Quincy Police officer who patrols the beat in the area and MBTA Police.

"It has come to my attention that we have had some problems in the past... I'd like to see that the problems don't occur again," Mullen said.

Quincy's Yesterdays Column Will Resume Next Week

Medically Speaking

by Michael M. Bakerman, M.D., F.A.C.C.

WHAT TO DO ABOUT DOMESTIC VIOLENCE

Domestic violence of every kind has reached epidemic proportions in America. For example, it is now estimated that from 25 to 40 percent of injuries of women in emergency rooms are related to domestic violence. This tragedy is compounded by the fact that as few as three percent of these cases are identified as family related. Both the federal government and the American Medical Association have stepped forward to call for better recognition of cases of violence within families, as well as for putting safety at the top of the priority list of treatment policies. Training in this area for health care professionals and more enlightened protocols for emergency rooms and other facilities are also being encouraged.

P.S. The average 18-year-old in this country will have seen 200,000 violent acts on television, including 40,000 murders.

It is the duty of every responsible health care provider to report suspected incidents of domestic violence. If you would care to discuss anything in this column, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. We focus on treating the patient, rather than the disease. When treating patients, I always try to consider how I would like myself, my wife and children or my parents to be treated by a doctor. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24 in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy hospital and South Shore hospitals.

Ted Undecided

Ted DeCristofaro — will he or won't he?

Will he finish up his current sixth term as Ward 2 city councillor and step into retirement?

DeCRISTOFARO

There is speculation that he will call it a career. By the end of next year he will have served 12 years.

"I don't know," he says. "Right now I am undecided."

And it may be a year before anything is official.

"I'll make an announcement by next February or March — one way or the other."

MARSHALL

There are at least two potential candidates waiting in the wings should he decide to bid farewell to City Hall.

One is Mike Marshall, son of Sheriff Clifford Marshall, a former Ward 2 councillor himself. Young Marshall is now president of the Ward 2 Civic Association — an organization his father founded in the 1960s.

Another potential candidate is Mike Condon, son of Joanne Condon, former Ward 6 councillor and one-time mayoral candidate.

CONDON

Not too long ago, George Miller, who made an impressive run for City Councillor at-large last year as a political newcomer, would have been considered a likely candidate but right now his eye is on the state representative seat occupied by Ron Mariano.

Mariano was also a potential Ward 2 council candidate but that was before he succeeded Robert Cerasoli on Beacon Hill.

School Committeeman Dan Raymondi, who DeCristofaro succeeded as Ward 2 councillor in 1981 still lives in the ward. But he's not interested in returning to that seat.

Sure, this is a Presidential election year. But city election speculation is always in season.

SPEAKING OF WARD 2 and the Ward 2 Civic Association, plans are set for a recognition night April 14 at the Fore River Clubhouse for former Ward 2 councillors.

The five living former councillors whose combined service spans nearly a half century are: Carl Anderson who was first elected in 1943; William Papile (1947), Joseph LaRaia (1959), Clifford Marshall (1965), Dan Raymondi (1975).

TOLAND

A night of Irish songs and laughter with Tom McSharry at the piano and Bob Curry (sporting an Irish top hat) and Tom Galvin leading the singers who included:

Mayor Jim Sheets, Councillor Peter Kolson, former Councillor Jack Lydon, Acting School Supt. Gene Creedon, Carol Lee Griffin, Joyce Baker, Alicia Coletti, Gloria Noble and Pat herself.

Isabel Armstrong, Diane Lydon and Michele Lydon composed a parody on the spot to the of "A Little Bit Of Heaven."

A great night. And, by the way, Pat was there on time. She even got there early.

MORRISETTE LEGION POST honored Paul Hunt and George Burke the other night for outstanding service and contributions to the post's many programs.

HUNT

BURKE

Hunt is judge advocate and a past commander and Burke, former Norfolk County district attorney and city councillor, is a long-time post member.

Incidentally Burke, and his son, George, were among a Quincy group that traveled (by limousine) over the weekend to Worcester to take in the NCAA tournament.

Burke, a former U-Mass star, was rooting for his alma mater over Fordham. And young Burke, a Syracuse graduate was rooting for the Orange over Princeton.

They stayed over for the U-Mass-Syracuse game Sunday with father apparently outrooting son as U-Mass won in overtime.

Burke plans to fly to Philadelphia today for the U-Mass-Kentucky game at the Spectrum.

Kentucky Coach Rick Pitino played basketball at U-Mass and broke the assists record held by Burke. The pair are fraternity brothers at U-Mass.

Thank QEA For Support Of 'Yakoo'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Congratulations to the Quincy Education Association. As members of the student body at North Quincy High School and also as members of the Ad Hoc Committee, which researched the use of the North Quincy High School symbol of pride and excellence (known affectionately as the "Yakoo"), we wish to extend our thanks to you and other members of the Quincy Education Association who recently supported a policy that school symbols be "positive images and role models."

Members of the student body have long awaited a policy such as this. For over 34 years, the "Yakoo" symbol, modeled after Dr. Allan Yacubian, has been a positive symbol of pride and respect for North Quincy, its citizens and its high school. It is indeed satisfying to see that North Quincy High School is receiving the recognition it so richly deserves for maintaining such a positive symbol for such a long period of time.

Throughout his life, Dr. Allan Yacubian has embodied the values that we wish every person possessed. These values are seen through Dr. Yacubian's most generous contributions of time and money as a successful medical profession, community leader, and benefactor to the Quincy Public Schools.

Through the "Yakoo" symbol, Dr. Yacubian has served as a positive role model for thousands of people. What more positive a role model could the students of North Quincy High School have than Dr. Allan H. Yacubian?

In today's troubled American society, it is encouraging to see that people can have a positive symbol such as this. It is also encouraging to see that as educators, the QEA recognizes this symbol and endorses its use. In recognizing this symbol, you are teaching the students of North Quincy High School a lesson they will always appreciate and never forget.

Donnelly Wants More Time With Family

In announcing his decision not to seek an eighth term Tuesday, U.S. Rep. Brian Donnelly said he prefers to be a full-time father rather than a career politician.

"I have been mulling this decision ever since my friend, Rep. Dennis Eckart (D-Ohio), announced his retirement earlier this year. We have similar family situations and frankly my son (age 5) and daughter (age 10) are at a time in their lives when they deserve more than a part-time father."

Donnelly and his wife, Virginia, live in Dorchester with their two children, a daughter, Lauren, and son, Brian.

"I can no longer reconcile spending a few hours every weekend with my children and missing important events in their young lives, as acceptable to what my fatherly responsibilities demand," Donnelly said.

"This is now my 20th year in elective office, 14 in Congress and six in the Massachusetts House of Representatives. I never intended to spend my entire adult life in politics. Twenty years is enough at this time in my life."

Donnelly said he will miss many of his constituents, friends and colleagues he has met since arriving in Washington in 1978. However, he added he will not miss the travel and time demands as a congressman.

"I will miss many of the people I have met and grown to respect over the years. However, I won't miss rushing from airport to airport, the 800-mile weekly commute or the constant demand on my time both in Washington and Boston."

The 46-year-old Dorchester native said he had hoped to delay his announcement until the redistricting plans in Massachusetts were "totally settled."

"Unfortunately, it seems as if the court case could carry on until June or July. With a May 5 filing deadline in Massachusetts and in fairness to any candidate who might seek this seat, I felt I could not delay this announcement any longer.

"I hope that if our state is reduced to 10 seats, the legislature won't dismember a Congressional district that has existed since the days of John Quincy Adams. Although I will no longer have a say in that decision, I hope community leaders will band together to insist that the integrity of the communities bound together for years be protected."

In addition, Donnelly announced that the fundraising functions of his political committee have been suspended. "The funds on hand will be distributed to charity or Democratic Party political activities," he said.

First elected to the 96th Congress in 1978, Donnelly was re-elected by overwhelming margins in each succeeding Congress. In 1988, he defeated an aggressive challenger and received more than 84 percent of the vote. He ran unopposed in 1990.

While in Congress, Donnelly served on the Public Works and Transportation, Merchant Marine and Budget Committees. He currently is a member of the Ways and Means Committee and its subcommittee of Health, and Select Revenue Measures.

Donnelly's decision brought words of praise and surprise from local officials.

"He has done an outstanding job and is an outstanding friend of Quincy," said Mayor James Sheets. "It's a tremendous surprise. I thought he'd be in Washington for at least another eight years.

"But that's politics. The only constant in politics is that it's always changing."

Sen. Paul Harold said, "He has a tremendous record of achievement. His stepping down is a loss for the district and the Commonwealth."

Rep. Michael Morrissey said, "I was kind of shocked obviously. I was taken by surprise. I wish Brian well."

Decision Triggers Political Scramble

"It's such a recent development. I'm going to take some time and give it some thought and consider all of my options," Tobin said.

One local official who will not run for Senate this year is State Rep. Ronald Mariano. He told the Sun Tuesday that he will seek re-election this year.

"I don't think I'm ready (for the Senate). I have an awful lot of things I want to do for Weymouth and Quincy," Mariano said.

If Morrissey enters the State Senate race, a scramble would likely result for his seat in the First Norfolk District which comprises Ward 3 Precincts 3, 4 and 5; Ward 4 Precinct 3; Ward 5 Precincts 2, 3 and 4; and all of Ward 6.

Names mentioned as possible candidates for Morrissey's seat include Councillors Larry Chretien, Chuck Phelan and Bruce Ayers, newly elected Democratic State Committeeman Mike Bellotti, and former Ward 5 council candidate and attorney John Keenan.

Speculation for Donnelly's seat spread Tuesday throughout the district which consists of cities and towns in Norfolk and Plymouth Counties as well as some Boston wards. Specifically, the district includes Quincy, Avon, Braintree, Holbrook, Milton, Randolph and Weymouth in Norfolk County; Brockton, Abington, East and West Bridgewater, Rockland and Whitman in Plymouth County and Wards 15, 16, 17 and 18 in Boston (Suffolk County).

Other potential congressional candidates include Barry Hannon of Braintree, Norfolk County Registrar of Deeds; Bill Golden, a former State Senator and former Quincy city solicitor; Paul White, a senator from Dorchester-Milton; Brockton Mayor Winthrop Farwell, State Senator Michael Creedon and Rep. Thomas Kennedy, both of Brockton; and former Brockton City Clerk J.J. Lyons.

It won't be long before the speculation is over and the actual field of candidates is known.

The deadline to submit nomination papers for district and county offices, including the state senate and state representative races, is Tuesday, April 28.

The deadline to submit nomination papers for Congress is one week later, Tuesday, May 5.

'Junk Car Alley' License Board Target

Association, told the board cars are frequently parked in the wrong direction along the street. He said the situation caused a head-on collision between two cars there Monday afternoon. He also said cars parked on the sidewalk force school children to walk in the street and that large trailer trucks making deliveries to the steel and monument companies there block the street.

"It's sad to say but this area of Liberty Street is known as Junk Car Alley," Aristide said.

Claire O'Brien of 147 Liberty St. said she counted 20 cars on the Tarbox property recently and that the lot is covered with oil.

"There is oil all over the place. I think the ground should be tested for contamination," she said.

O'Brien told the board last week that she saw work being done at 85 Liberty St. on a recent Sunday. Tarbox is not licensed to work evenings or Sundays. He agreed to halt work on Sundays.

Building Inspector Matt Mulvey reminded Tarbox that he was supposed to have installed a bathroom with a sink for hand washing as a condition of granting his Used Car Repair license in January of 1991.

"I don't own the building. There is a bathroom we can use if we need it," Tarbox said. He told the board he rents space in the building from Charles Downing of Braintree.

"I think the owner of the building should be here. He is responsible for the condition of the building," Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue said.

The board voted to continue the hearing for two weeks and will ask Downing to appear at the April 7 hearing. In the meantime the board will do a team inspection of the site.

Frank Kearns Honored As Sun's Citizen Of Year

Instead, he decided to find out "what the made Quincy tick."

"He wound up helping to make it tick," Bosworth added.

A companion award, a framed copy of a special front page of The Quincy Sun detailing Kearns's selection as the 1991 "Citizen of the Year" was presented by Editor Robert Bosworth. Extra copies were distributed to those in attendance.

Kearns thanked The Quincy Sun and the selection panel for making him the 1991 Citizen of the Year. "I'm very honored and privileged to be here today," he said.

Kearns also thanked Fr. Ahern for his kind words in nominating him. "He is my spiritual director."

In accepting the award, Kearns said, "There is a saying--or should be--that the greater the gratitude, the shorter the speech of thanks. In listening to the remarks preceding mine, I sometimes had difficulty in realizing that some of the references were to me.

"You have portrayed me, I think, with all the warts removed and the rough edges smoothed over. It's a portrait that not only touched me, I fear it retouched me. That, as much as the honor itself, is what makes this occasion so moving to me.

"So I shall not take up your time with long litany. Suffice to say thank you for selecting me the 1991 Quincy Sun 'Citizen of the Year,'" he said humbly.

Several close friends, associates and city officials also commended Kearns for his dedication and volunteer service to the community.

Mayor James Sheets, who has known Kearns for many years as first a councillor and now mayor, said, "I know of really no one today who is more deserving of this award than Frank Kearns."

Sheets summed up Kearns's contributions to Quincy and its residents this way: "Frank Kearns is a friend to all people. It doesn't matter what walk of life you come from... Frank Kearns has always been there to help."

City Council President Charles Phelan presented Kearns with a commendation recognizing the recipient's community activism and volunteerism. Phelan noted Kearns's commitment to city causes is illustrated by the fact that Kearns is the only private citizen who receives a council agenda.

"We salute your exemplary lifestyle and may your care and concern for others be returned manyfold," Phelan told Kearns.

Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall also offered kind words to Kearns. Noting Kearns is a deputy sheriff and "has the tin (badge) to prove it," Marshall said, "Frank is a leader, a doer, exemplifying all the good qualities of a friend."

A SPECIAL FRONT PAGE of The Quincy Sun telling the story of Frank Kearns's selection as the 1991 Sun "Citizen of the Year" is presented to him by Sun Editor Robert Bosworth at Sunday's reception held at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center.

"Frank goes above and beyond," Marshall said. "I'm very proud that he's a deputy sheriff. He's a dear friend and I can't think of anyone more deserving,," Marshall said.

John (Jake) Comer, executive director of the Quincy Housing Authority, thanked Kearns for his dedication and concern as a QHA commissioner. He also said Kearns deserves the title of "honorary city councillor" because he attends every council meeting.

"When it comes to doing his job, when it comes to going to a meeting...There is no one in this city that deserves our respect more than Frank Kearns," Comer said.

Kearns is a graduate of Boston Latin School and Boston College where he received a BS degree in science. A former Charlestown resident, he moved to Quincy in 1939 after marrying the former Mary Hynes.

They were married 48 years until her death in 1988.

His daughter, Mary Lou Dewar, traveled from her home in Thousand Oaks, Calif.,to attend Sunday's reception and help honor her dad. Kearns also has three grandchildren.

Since retiring from the Post Office in 1977, Kearns's second career has been helping people.

In 1980, he was appointed to the Quincy Council on Aging by Mayor Arthur Tobin and reappointed by Mayors Frank McCauley and James Sheets.

Since 1980, he has been appointed to 15 community assistance groups and organizations and continues to serve actively on them all.

Among them:

The South Shore Elder Services Board of Directors, which operates four nutrition sites in Quincy and programs in Quincy and 10 other communities; and Quincy Community Action. As treasurer of the QCA's Southwest Community Center, Kearns helps the organization feed 600 needy families a month as well as provide fuel assistance and housing for the elderly and poor.

In 1986, Kearns was appointed a commissioner of the Quincy Housing Authority by McCauley and was reappointed to a five-year term last February by Sheets.

Kearns is also affiliated and active in other organizations, including:

Quincy Fair Housing Board, Citizens Housing and Planning Association, Inter-Agency Council of the South Shore, Quincy City Club, Quincy Citizens Association, American Association of Retired Persons, National Association of Federal Employees and the Quincy Historical Society.

He is also a former Silver Hair legislator representing the Norfolk County senatorial district.

"Frank's career of helping people has been magnificent," Bosworth said. "But that's only part of Frank Kearns," he added.

"He is involved in the community in many other ways, quietly doing little things and big things for those who need help whether its an encouraging word, taking someone to the hospital for radiation treatment or seeing to it that a family has food on the table and fuel in the oil tank when the thermometer is around zero."

Kearns said he approaches every day as a challenge: a challenge to help someone in need. "I see every day as a challenge. I have to do some good for the hungry, homeless, handicapped or poor," he says, explaining he helps others personally or through his own contacts.

Each time he helps someone, Kearns said he seems to get the same response: "You have made my day, Frank."

As the 1991 Citizen of the Year, Kearns told his audience Sunday, "Thank you. You have made my day."

North Opens April 1 Here Against Billerica

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy baseball team, scheduled to open the season against new rival Billerica next Wednesday, April 1, at Adams Field, appears ready to rebound from last year's disappointing season.

After appearing in the Eastern Mass. Tournament two years in a row, the Red Raiders, loaded with sophomores playing their first year of varsity ball, had a frustrating 4-16 record.

In addition to losing virtually his entire team from the previous season, coach Leo Donovan lost one of his top pitchers, son Sean Donovan, who suffered an arm injury in his first game and spent the entire year on the sidelines.

Donovan, a southpaw, is back stronger than ever after extensive exercising and joins junior veterans Liam Higgins and Mike Patch as starting hurlers, giving North a fine starting crew. Sophomore Dan Duncan also will see service pitching.

Donovan has two fine catchers in senior co-captains Serge Belcastro and Mark Kelleher, outstanding hitters who also will play in the outfield.

Junior Pat Shea will be back at third base, junior Adam Calvert will be back at shortstop, Patch will be back at second base in addition to pitching, senior Mark Walsh is back and will play second and junior Charles Rozanitis, up from the junior varsity, will be at first base. Senior veteran Scott Kohler will be the designated hitter and also will play first.

Senior veteran Chris Peck, an infielder last year, will start in the outfield as will junior Mark Cahill, out for the first year, and junior Dave Reinhart, up from the jayvees.

Sophomore Jim Sapienza will play both the outfield and infield and junior Vin Anderlionis will be another outfielder. Duncan also will see service in the outfield.

"Donovan, Higgins, Patch and Duncan give us a fine pitching nucleus and we have two outstanding catchers in Belcastro and Kelleher," Donovan said. "We will have a good hitting team with Kelleher, Belcastro and Higgins particularly fine hitters. The defense will be solid and, although still young, it is experienced.

"We will have six or seven juniors in the starting lineup and all played as sophomores and have experience. I don't want to be too optimistic, but I think we should rebound from a disappointing season."

Patch, Belcastro, Calvert, Shea, Higgins, Donovan and Kelleher all played for Morrisette Legion's Zone 6 champions last summer and will be back this year with Morrisette, which will host the Northeast Regional Tournament in August.

Dave Perdios, the Morrisette coach, is back as Donovan's junior varsity coach and Jack Outerbridge returns as freshman coach.

Following the scheduled opener with Billerica, North will play at Billerica, Saturday, April 4, and will open its Old Colony League season April 6 at home against Plymouth.

A Few Words on FUNERAL SERVICE

Should Children Come to the Funeral?

Don't deny your child the emotional outlet of a funeral. Children can cope better than you think!

Don't force them to attend. Each child reacts differently and we'd be glad to discuss this with you in advance.

The child needs to know what to expect! You may wish a private appointment and we'll try to make time to help you, if needed.

Above all, discuss this with sensitive children as most of them need your help or ours during this period of time.

Ideas Invited For City's 200th Birthday Party

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A big party is in the works for Quincy's 200th birthday and the planners not only would like to have you attend but to help come up with ideas for the celebration.

What kind of events would you like to see, asks John (Scotty) Miller, who is coordinator of the celebration for the Quincy Tourism Association.

The party will commemorate the 200th anniversary of Quincy's separation from Braintree as an independent town in 1792. What is now Quincy was the North Precinct of Old Braintree.

"I'm looking for ideas," said Miller. "I want to get as many people in Quincy as possible involved with the program, so that it shows off the city in its very best light."

A number of events are already being planned for the celebration, which will coincide with the July arrival of the Tall Ships in Boston.

More than 150 foreign and domestic sailing vessels from 21 countries will come to Boston July 10-15 in celebration of the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of the Americas. Several educational activities and events are being organized in Boston by a non-profit corporation known as Sail Boston 1992.

Some of the events being planned for Quincy include:

•Trolley tours around the city;

•A blues concert at Veterans Memorial Stadium;

•Shuttle boats between Boston and Marina Bay;

•An International Food Fest and Multicultural Festival at Quincy Center Plaza;

•An historical walking tour;

•An area-wide sale in Wollaston and Quincy Center Sidewalk Bazaar;

•A "Big Band" concert in front of City Hall;

•Public boarding of ships at Marina Bay.

Most of the events will be day-long affairs. Some, such as the concerts and the Multicultural Festival, will take place at night, while still others, such as Mayor James Sheets' reception of the officers and crews of the ships, will be morning events.

Badges will be sold to those attending the events, with "guest" badges being sold to visitors from other cities and "host" badges to Quincy residents. Those wearing badges will be entitled to discounts at the various events, Miller said.

"It may sound trite, but I'd like our 80,000 residents to wear their (host) badges with pride and do their best to treat our guests with hospitality and make them feel comfortable," he said.

Miller noted he has already received the support of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, as well as leaders at Marina Bay and Presidents Place. He also had a meeting scheduled in Wollaston yesterday (Wednesday) and said he hoped to gain support from others in North Quincy in the near future.

"I'd to get the schools and their students more involved," said Miller. "And other business leaders in the community, too; we could use their support.

"All of the people in the city with any input are welcome to give me a call. This is something that, if we use it properly, we could get a really good feeling going."

Miller said other ideas he has been considering include a time capsule (he would appreciate suggestions as to what would be placed inside) and a display of historic Quincy memorabilia. He also said he would like to hear from photographers interested in taking shots of the city's historic sites for a calendar or some other pictorial history.

"This is going to be a big party, with really nice events," said Miller. "I think it will be a really big success."

Those interested in contributing ideas to the bicentennial birthday celebration may call John Miller at 847-0929.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

License Plates

License plates frequently are stolen from other cars and used on stolen cars for other crimes. Get in the habit of checking your plates when you drive. A few drops of solder on the bolts or blurring the threads will help safeguard your plates.

Avoid Buying A Stolen Vehicle.

• Verify that the VIN plate is intact and check it against the VIN on the ownership documents.

• Ask the seller about the vehicle's history and past financing and insurance. Verify this information with the bank or insurance company.

• Be wary when purchasing used parts for auto repairs -- you could be patronizing a "chop shop" and indirectly encouraging auto theft.

What To Do If It Happens To You ...

If your vehicle is broken into or stolen, inform the police immediately. Stolen vehicles are often used in the commission of another crime. Quick action by you may not only aid in recovering your vehicle, but prevent its use for illegal purposes.

Take Action Today!

1. Get your Neighborhood Watch group to look out for abandoned and suspicious vehicles and educate its members on preventing vehicle theft.

2. Check your state's laws regarding salvage titles, secure ownership documents, and VIN inspection programs. Are they sufficient protection against professional thieves and "chop shops"?

3. Engrave the VIN in several locations on the car, such as the door frame or under the hood and trunk lids.

4. Fill in the vital records form for your car and file it away in a safe location.

Purchasing Homeowners Insurance

Your Realtor has located the perfect house for you, and your Bank has approved your mortgage loan and sent you a commitment letter. Now, you have to purchase Homeowners Insurance to protect your investment. Where do you begin?

The first-time home buyer has many decisions to make. First, you must select an Agency that represents many companies to give you the best selection of insurance to fill all your needs and can provide the service you deserve.

Secondly, your agent must determine the amount of coverage necessary on your home after viewing the property. It is advisable to insure your new home to 100% replacement cost in the event of a loss. Many times, replacement coverage on the contents of your home is recommended at a minimal cost. Also, a room-to-room inventory of your possessions is helpful in determining the total value of your possessions. If you have valuable jewelry, silverware, antiques, collectibles, and other items, you may want to have these items appraised and scheduled on to your homeowners policy. High limits of at least $300,000 for liability is essential. This provides coverage for medical expense, legal defense, and any resulting court judgements against you for negligence or if someone is injured on your property.

Finally, you must select the company that best suits your needs. Your agent can be a great help to you in this process. Many companies have premiums that vary according to your age, the age of your home, the town or city it is located in, non-smoker credits, alarm credits, and on and on.

At Mahoney & Wright Insurance, we're ready to serve you! With over 20 locations, we're the largest insurance agency in Massachusetts. We represent over 50 insurance carriers. Since 1923, the skilled professionals at Mahoney & Wright insurance, have been providing personal service to your neighbors.

Inside MWRA's Treatment Plant

Converting Sludge Into Fertilizer Pellets

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

MWRA officials borrowed the state of Missouri's "Show Me" motto to get their message across Monday during a media tour of the Quincy Point sludge treatment processing facility.

Led by new MWRA Executive Director Doug MacDonald, authority officials did not simply tell media representatives how the facility converts sludge into fertilizer pellets. Rather, they "showed" the media precisely how the process works.

Officials wasted no time in showing off the end result of the process: BB-size fertilizer pellets. Before entering the facility, MacDonald stopped and put his bare hand inside a bucket full of pellets.

"To me, the most interesting part of this is that it feels clean," he said, grasping a handful of pellets while inviting the media to do the same.

"When you feel it, it doesn't leave a residue on your hands." Sifting the dark material through his fingers, MacDonald said, "It's clean. It doesn't look any different than what you and I put in our fertilizer spreaders."

Besides notebooks, pencils, pens, recorders and videocams, the 20 media representatives also used another important instrument to help them record the tour: their noses.

NEW MWRA DIRECTOR Doug MacDonald holds fertilizer pellets made from treated sludge outside the Authority's $87 million processing plant in Quincy Point.

Outside, there was no detectable odor. Inside, a musty smell prevailed. Like a damp basement on a humid summer afternoon, the smell was noticeable but hardly overpowering.

ERIC BUEHRENS, MWRA sludge residual manager, points out sludge as its carried along a conveyor belt from wide-fabric belts to the heat drying drums.

(Quincy Sun photos by Tom Gorman)

Having passed the odor test, the representatives embarked on a 90-minute informative tour of the sprawling $87 million plant Monday morning.

The pelletizing plant includes four one-million gallon storage tanks; a new 600-foot pier with two barge unloading stations; eight two-meter belt filters; four 9000-lbs per hour sludge dryers; five 700-ton fertilizer storage silos; and a new rail line. All processing equipment is enclosed in an odor and pollution controlled 100,000 square foot building.

The facility is approaching its fourth month of operation. Before last December, sludge was dumped into Boston Harbor. Now, nearly a half a million gallons of the sloppy, soiled mud-like material is barged from Deer and Nut Islands to the Fore River facility six days a week.

The sludge is dumped directly from the barges through a hose into one of the plant's two, one-million gallon storage tanks where it is treated with potassium permanganate to neutralize odors.

Since water makes up 97 percent of the sludge, the first step in the process is to remove as much of the water as possible. After thickening agents

To Prevent Over-Consumption

License Board Shuts Off Pitchers Of Beer

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Patrons who enjoy cold pitchers of beer at Quincy restaurants and bars were 'shut off' Tuesday when the License Board voted, 5-0, to ban the popular pitchers.

The board decided to outlaw serving pitchers to prevent over-consumption of beer by individuals. The vote was prompted by a discussion of a request by Dee Dee's Lounge of Wollaston for permission to serve pitchers of beer.

The decision directly affects a handful of the cities 94 establishments licensed to serve beer including Grumpy White's Pub on Sea St., Adams Shore, Cagney's Pub and Washington Tap on Washington St., Quincy Center, Kelly's Pub & Grub on Billings Road, North Quincy, and Darcy's Pub on Willard St., West Quincy.

A "pitcher" of beer usually holds an amount equal to five 12 oz. draft beers.

Pizza Hut on Washington St., Quincy Point, discontinued serving pitchers of beer last year.

The vote prompted a varied response from bar owners.

"I think it stinks," said Mark DiBona of Cagney's. "It's going to drive business away."

Bob White of Grumpy's was less critical of the ban.

"I'm not too upset about it," White said. "What the reaction of our customers will be... I don't know. It works out to the same price (pitcher versus individual glasses)."

DiBona said Cagney's will be hurt because he promotes a "pizza and pitcher" special. "It was a great deal. We brought in a lot of family business... parents could bring in their kids and get a pitcher, some pizzas and some cokes for 10 bucks.

"We've never had a problem (with pitchers). My bartenders handle them strictly. If handled correctly it's (pitchers) a good thing," DiBona said.

"This hurts everybody. Every dollar I bring in helps the city through taxes," he said. DiBona also said his advertising attracts customers from nearby towns such as Weymouth which helps other Quincy businesses.

"Serving pitchers made it easier for our bartenders and patrons," White said. It made less work for bartenders and less trips to the bar for customers.

"We started it (serving pitchers) a few years ago. We tried to promote the draft beer business to get the bottles off the premises," he said. White said keg beer helps with prevention of theft, rodent control and storage.

The License Board last adopted policies aimed at regulating the consumption of alcoholic beverages in September 1984. The policies, which went into effect Jan. 1, 1985, included prohibiting the sale of half-price drinks, two-for-one drink specials, free drinks, and reduced price "happy hour" drinks.

Sheets Appoints Norwood Man New Traffic Engineer

John T. Gillon of Norwood has been appointed the city's new traffic engineer effective April 13, announces Mayor James Sheets.

Gillon replaces David Kinnecom who resigned earlier this year to take a job with the Department of Transportation in Utah. Gillon is currently an engineer with the Town of Brookline handling all transportation and traffic related projects.

He was one of 18 applicants for the $50,000 annual job. Sheets said Gillon is a highly skilled and qualified engineer. "We needed someone who could hit the road running," the mayor said, noting the new engineer will have several projects which need immediate attention, such as the reconstruction of the Quincy Shore Dr.--East Squantum St. intersection and the redevelopment of Downtown Quincy.

"Without (Gillon), we may have had to bring in outside consultants," the mayor said.

Gillon is a Massachusetts Certified Professional Engineer and holds a bachelor of science degree in civil engineering from Northeastern University. He attended Franklin Institute of Boston, Boston College and Massasoit College.

Sheets noted Gillon's technical, managerial and organizational skills made him the clear choice for the traffic engineers position. "John Gillon has extensive experience in administration and design of civil and transportation engineering projects. I believe he is uniquely qualified to face the transportation challenges we face in this city."

A four-member panel comprised of Executive Secretary Thomas Koch, Personnel Director Kathy Yaeger, Public Works Commissioner David Colton and Planning Board member James Kelly, a retired engineer, recommended Gillon for the job after a series of interviews.

Of the 18 applicants, three reside in Quincy. Sheets said he would have liked to hire a Quincy resident as the city's new traffic engineer. However, he said the most qualified person for the job was Gillon, a Norwood resident.

"While I would have liked to hired a Quincy person, I'm obligated to see that the best candidate gets the appointment. That person was Mr. Gillon. He was the clear choice."

Gillon's appointment will run concurrently with the mayor's term.

Sheets 'Comfortable' With Decision Not To Run

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Mayor James Sheets, who took himself out of the race for Cong. Brian Donnelly's seat last Friday, said he has had no second thoughts about his decision.

"I'm comfortable with my decision," Sheets said Tuesday in his office. "There are a lot of people who though I should have run, including some disappointed members of my family. Sometimes you feel bad talking to them because they would have worked hard.

"But I made my decision in the best interest of Quincy. I just couldn't walk away from (the mayor's job). That would have bothered me."

With a dozen department heads looking on and his wife by his side last Friday, Sheets announced he would not run for Congress this year, denying himself a chance to fulfill a lifelong dream.

Sheets said the only reason for not entering the race for Donnelly's seat was his commitment to serving Quincy and its residents as mayor. Although his family would have supported a run for Congress, Sheets said he could not have been a candidate in good conscience.

"This decision has been very difficult for me. The battle has been what my heart tells me to do and what my character tells me to do. My heart tells me to go to Washington and my family would have been committed to do that.

"However, I could not really have lived with the decision to enter the Congressional race. I feel I have made a commitment to the City of Quincy two years ago and I cannot violate the integrity of that

"For that reason, and for that reason alone, I will not be a candidate for Congress," Sheets declared last Friday morning.

"It was truly a battle of my hearting saying 'go for it' and my character saying 'I cannot violate that commitment. I will stay on as mayor as long as the people will elect me."

If he had run and been elected to succeed Donnelly in the fall, Sheets said he would have arrived on Capitol Hill with the political "baggage" of unkept promises. As mayor, he has pledged to solve the city's fiscal problems and revitalize the downtown area.

JAMES SHEETS

As a congressmen, he said those goals would not have been realized. "That's the last thing the people of this country want."

Since his college years, Sheets said he has dreamed about serving as a U.S. representative. Thirty years ago, when he was dating his wife, Joann, Sheets said he discussed that same dream with her.

In 1978, he attempted to fulfill his dream by running for an open Congressional seat after former U.S. Rep. James Burke announced he would not seek re-election. He was defeated by Donnelly who has represented the 11th district since.

"I tried to fulfill that dream in 1978 but I lost to my friend Brian Donnelly, and we have remained good friends ever since. He has been a major factor in this city's accomplishments."

Asked to comment on her husband's decision, Mrs. Sheets said, "I feel pretty sad because it's always been his dream going to Congress. But I expected him to say no."

As for his own political future, Sheets said he wants to stay in office long enough to realize some of his goals, most notably downtown revitalization.

"Downtown revitalization is absolutely critical to the future of this city. I would want to be firmly in place and underway before I step down."

After learning the mayor's decision, Quincy municipal employees reacted with disappointment and admiration.

"It was a difficult couple of days in the decision making. I am sure he looked forward to running for Congress but he felt a deep commitment to the people of Quincy who elected and re-elected him mayor to finish his agenda," Executive Secretary Thomas Koch said.

"I have mixed emotions because coming from a political background, I would have been up and ready for a big challenge like a congressional race. But as executive secretary, there are plenty of challenges for me and his administration.

"I'm happy for him because I think he is comfortable with his decision."

City Solicitor Stephen McGrath said, "I feel bad for Jim. It was a lifelong dream for him to run for Congress but it's a credit to him that he's made a decision to remain committed to Quincy as its mayor. I admire his decision to stick with it."

Assistant City Clerk Joseph Shea said, "It's a disappointment because I'm sure he'd make a great congressman but the city needs him to continue his programs, like downtown revitalization. He's kept us on an even keel through troubled times."

Sheets, who turns 57 this year, did not rule out running for Congress after his stint as mayor is completed. "We'll evaluate every opportunity as it occurs."

MBTA Earmarks $10M To Reduce Red Line Noise

The MBTA announced Tuesday that it will spend $10 million for noise abatement projects along the Red Line from Dorchester through Quincy to Braintree over the next five years.

The money is earmarked for a combination of improvement projects, including track improvements, new equipment purchases, noise barriers, some soundproofing of homes and businesses near the line and some taking of property if needed, Sen. Paul Harold said.

In Quincy, two critical areas have been identified by the MBTA: the area around the Wollaston Red Line station and the Adams National Historic Site.

The MBTA has already spent $50,000 to identify the worst impacted areas and another $50,000 to determine different options and solutions for the noise problems.

"I'm pleased to see an immediate response by the T," Harold said. The senator had filed legislation several months ago urging the MBTA to respond to the noise problems. "This money will go a long way toward reducing the noise along the Red Line."

MBTA General Manager John J. Haley Jr. said, "We're determined to make major improvements in the reliability of our service, condition of our stations and the impact we have on our neighbors."

Haley said the MBTA will purchase 86 new subway cars for the Red Line starting this year. The new cars are designed to reduce noise by eliminating older cars which have shaky suspensions, vibrating doors and other rattling noises.

The MBTA will also consider installing noise barriers, soundproofing and track improvements along the Red Line. In some areas, the Authority may buy properties that cannot be shielded from noise, Haley said.

The MBTA will conduct engineering studies and tests for noise to rank the high-priority lists. Haley said the T will customize the noise reduction effort for each area.

Bentley's Sports Bar Approved

Bentley's Steak House, 579 So. Artery, has received conditional approval to change its name to Bentley's Sports Bar & Grille.

The License Board agreed to the request of restaurant manager Brian Leonard to change the name and add coin-operated pool tables and sports games including basketball, darts and bowling.

The club previously had three pool tables and one game and will now be allowed seven pool tables and four games.

Building Inspector Matt Mulvey moved to approve the request pending compliance with zoning regulations.

City Solicitor Stephen McGrath told the board he believed that pool tables do not fall under a city ordinance limiting an establishment to four pinball or video machines.

No Alcohol Shows For Minors A No-No At NQ Night Club

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The Quincy License Board denied permission for the Outer Limits Club to allow minors admission to "no alcohol" shows.

The board voted 5-0 Tuesday against the request by Ken Nacar, vice president of Quincy Bay Inn which runs the North Quincy nightclub. Nacar had requested permission to hold "18-plus" shows at which no alcohol would be served.

Nacar objected to the decision and questioned why Footprints Nightclub in Quincy Center was granted permission to hold "all ages" shows at a recent License Board meeting.

"There is a double standard here," Nacar said.

"There is no double standard here," shot back Board Chairman John Gillis. "Footprints does not have a liquor license. They don't attract people there to drink."

Gillis said he did not approve of allowing persons under age 21 into establishments like The Outer Limits which normally sell alcohol.

Police Chief Francis Mullen was also opposed to the "underage" shows because of problems with similar shows at Vincents in Randolph.

"I monitor Quincy and I monitor what goes on in other communities. I'm not going to take a chance on it. Not as long as I have some control over it," Mullen said.

The hearing had been continued from the board's March 17 meeting at which Nacar requested the "no alcohol" shows during the club's 30-day liquor license suspension which began March 23.

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers had objected to the request at the March 17 meeting. Ayers and Nacar met with the Squantum Community Association. The community group voted unanimously to recommend that the club not hold any events during its 30-day suspension. Nacar told the board he agreed with the neighbors and would postpone the shows until after the license suspension.

Ayers also told the License Board that the group is concerned about future plans of the nightclub regarding "underage" shows.

Medically Speaking

ARTHRITIS FRAUD

When it comes to our health, Americans are all too trusting in trying remedies advertised to ease pain and cure disease. More than 37 million Americans suffer from arthritis, and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration has ranked arthritis fraud as number one on its lists of medical frauds. Arthritis sufferers are particularly vulnerable to quacks and con artists because the condition is chronic and cyclical. After trying a product, the disease might happen to go into remission, leaving the patient to believe that the product was responsible. Worthless treatments such as copper bracelets and skin creams may be harmless, but others, such as snake venom or megadoses of vitamins, could be dangerous.

P.S. Some 38 million Americans use fraudulent medical products every year, and one out of ten of them suffer harmful side effects.

Although "quick-fix" mail order remedies can seem appealing, in the long run, they prove to be no bargain. If you would like to learn more about this topic, or about how you can modify your lifestyle to help ward off heart disease, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. Political Floodgates Open

Be careful walking by City Hall.

You could get run down by a speeding candidate.

Congressman Brian Donnelly's decision not to seek an eighth term has triggered what could be the biggest game of musical chairs seen on the local political front in many years. Maybe the biggest ever.

DONNELLY

And the chairs could keep moving right into next year's city election.

But they could have come to a screeching halt.

If Paul Harold, for some reason, had changed his mind about running for Donnelly's seat it would have sent a lot of potential candidates back into the wings to wait for another cue another time.

HAROLD

Harold was probably the first to jump into the Congressional race and the first to start collecting nomination paper signatures. He'll have an official announcement soon.

His candidacy will keep those musical chairs moving on the local front.

Harold has a good shot at the seat. As state senator representing Quincy, Braintree, Holbrook and Avon he has developed a good, strong vote base which he no doubt will have as a Congressional candidate. He's a good campaigner who pays close attention to the needs of the people he represents.

He must have been a little concerned, though, while Mayor James Sheets was pondering whether to take another crack at the Congressional seat he lost out to Donnelly 14 years ago.

The pair would have split crucial votes in Quincy, probably enough so to give the seat to another candidate.

SHEETS

Sheets' decision not to run is seen as the right one. He could have run and lost and still been mayor. But if that had happened, it would have been a campaign issue next year if he decided to run for a third term as mayor.

Opponents — and there would have definitely been two or more — would have been out telling Quincy voters that Sheets was more interested in political opportunity than serving the people who elected him.

Of course, if he had run for Congress he might have won the seat and that would have thrown the mayor's race wide open next year. But he apparently felt he owed it to the people to stay on as mayor.

Harold's candidacy for Congress has really opened the local political floodgates and the speculation tanks.

Rep. Michael Morrissey is a definite candidate for the senate seat and is expected to make it official next week. Morrissey, who was elected in 1976 at age 22--upsetting veteran incumbent Joseph Brett--has had his eye on the senate seat for sometime now. He has in the past thought of challenging Harold for it.

City Solicitor Steve McGrath, former Ward 5 councillor and one-time mayoral candidate, also looks like a definite candidate for the senate seat.

Ron Iacobucci, who has run for the city council, has nomination papers out. So has Dorothy Shea of Furnace Brook Parkway.

But you can stratch Arthur Tobin from the senate derby. The former mayor, now clerk magistrate at Quincy District Court, held the seat before Harold.

And although it was reported that he was thinking of making a run to regain it, those close to him never thought he was really very serious about it.

Now that Morrissey and McGrath look like certain contenders, he says he doesn't want to be cast in the role of spoiler.

That could be considered being serious. But the fact that his son, Rep. Steve Tobin, told him he could use his (Steve's) name if he ran for the senate, sounds more like he was kidding about running.

Morrissey's candidacy for state senate will open up his representative seat and the line of candidates is getting longer by the day.

Steve Colman, a former State House aide to Morrissey with a law practice now in Wollaston, says he will run for that seat.

Michael Cronin of Bromfield St. has nomination papers out. Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien is definitely interested. So is Michael Bellotti who was recently elected Democratic State Committeeman.

Others reportedly considering a bid are: Susan Gallagher who challenged Morrissey two years ago, Senior Citizens-Youth Director Brian Buckley, former Ward 6 Councillor Tom Nutley and John Keenan.

And looking ahead to next year, if Chretien were to win the state representative seat you might see Keenan running for the Ward 3 seat. Another potential candidate is Michelle Lydon, daughter of former Councillor Jack Lydon, who held that seat.

Deadline for obtaining--and filing--nomination papers is April 28.

You may need a scorecard to keep track of all the players before it's over.

From Sludge To Fertilizer

have been added, the liquid sludge is filtered and pressed to remove about 90 percent of the water. Wide fabric belts, which resemble newspaper printing presses, squeeze the sludge and convert it into sheets called sludge cake.

"This is the heart of what we do," MacDonald said, pointing to the belts and cakes. The cake is roughly 25 percent solid and 75 percent water.

After as much water as possible has been removed, the sludge travels by conveyor belt to the drying ovens. Operated at 720 degrees Fahrenheit, the giant rotating ovens retain the sludge for about 30 minutes, simultaneously drying the sludge and forming it into pellets about an eighth of an inch in diameter.

Pellets that do not meet size requirements are recycled through the oven with the new sludge cake. The high heat of the ovens kills bacteria and pathogens and makes the sludge safe for handing.

The pellets are blown into five 700-ton silos where the product is stored until it can be loaded onto railroad cars for transport to markets.

Currently, the MWRA sells the fertilizer mainly to "middle men" who in turn sell it to agricultural firms and farms, including citrus groves in Florida.

Although there are trace levels of contaminants, officials assure that the material meets all state and federal safety standards.

The facility is presently processing 45 to 50 dry tons of pellets per day. The plant has the capacity to convert 145 dry tons a day. Typically, the entire sludge to fertilizer process takes one day. However, the plant has the capacity to churn out fertilizer in as little as one hour, said Mike Thayer, manager of operations for residuals.

Already, MWRA officials are eyeing expansion at the plant. Last week, the Authority received expansion design bids. They hope to begin the $30 million expansion project in the summer of 1994.

The project will include adding two more dryers and more fertilizer storage facilities.

Officials say the expansion, which is already in the MWRA budget, is necessary to handle additional sludge created after the new primary and secondary treatment facilities are completed later in the decade.

Capacity at the Fore River plant will double after the new Deer Island primary treatment facility is completed in mid-1995 and double again after the authority begins secondary treatment. In the new secondary treatment planned for Deer Island, the MWRA will use a biological process the combines wastewater and microorganisms in large tanks with constant aeration and mixing.

Essentially, secondary treatment promotes the growth of microorganisms that work together to consume wastes present in water. The end result is secondary sludge or residuals, which the authority plans to convert into heat-dried fertilizer pellets.

After expansion, officials say the plant will eventually operate 24-hours a day, seven days a week, 365 days a year. The workforce will grow from 20 employees working 2 shifts to nearly 100 employees and three shifts.

MWRA officials contend the sludge to fertilizer plant is the most cost efficient method to treat sludge. The $87 million facility represents 1.4 percent of the total $6.1 billion cleanup project. Moreover, the facility is taking on 30 percent of the cleanup project.

"(The sludge facility) is probably the most cost effective portion of the cleanup project," Thayer said.

Dollar for dollar, MacDonald said the pelletization process if by far the most sludge for the sawbuck.

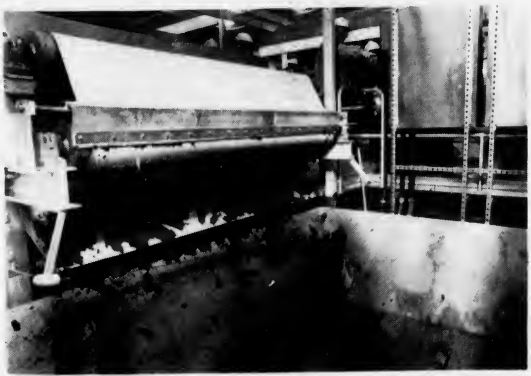
"It's new and it's clean and it works," the director said after the tour. "What we're trying to do is we're trying to spend your money wisely to create a system that works.

"We're dealing in an appropriate way to treat the waste we generate. This is nothing that nature doesn't do on its own course. This just speeds it up."

With the sludge being diverted from the harbor and into the Quincy Point plant, officials say the public will notice the "dramatic effects" on the quality of water in Boston Harbor this summer.

MacDonald said the cleanup will first be visible along the beaches of Dorchester and South Boston followed by Quincy.

"The Boston Harbor cleanup is happening as we speak," he said.



WIDE-FABRIC BELTS resembling printing presses compacts treated sludge into "sludge cakes" and then drops the material into a vat to be made into fertilizer pellets.

Lewis Elected City Manager At $10,000 A Year

April 2-8
1956
36 Years Ago

Edward T. (Red) Lewis, administrative assistant for the past three years, was elected to the $10,000 a year post of City Manager of Quincy by a 7-0 vote of the City Council.

Lewis would be making $3,500 less than his predecessor, Donald H. Blatt, who resigned March 19 to accept a similar post in West Hartford, Conn.

It was learned that the City Council was considering the appointment of George A. Yarrington, executive director of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, to the job of administrative assistant.

NEW POST OFFICE NEEDED
